Editorial.

The signs of the times are very apparent ; hurry and bustle is the order of the day. Lockers are being cleaned out, book-covers torn off, scribblers consigned to the rubbish boxes, and all personal effects of value jumbled together in delightful confusion. The last assembly bell has just sent its clang through the classrooms, now ringing with laughter and buzzing with excited conversation, but so soon to be desolated of all life. Hall is already filling up, and the members of the cricket team are cheered to their seats for the last time. The Head, accompanied by his colleagues, has just taken his place, and an expectant hush hangs over all. The first bars of the familiar hymn roll out, and three hundred young voices rise in united praise and thanksgiving for the blessings of the past year. The lists are read, and the final instructions for Speech Day are given, cheers for King and Country are called for, and then the whole school rises to its feet whilst the Head Master pronounces the benediction as a last united act of worship within the old walls. The lads then file out, some with high hopes for business success, others bent upon some profession, and yet others to offer their lives in the defence of home and dear ones. And so another year closes :

The old order changeth, giving place to new.

Those returning are fired with a zeal to more than fill the gaps left by their predecessors, and as each successive batch of "finished" gentlemen goes forth to fight life's battles, the old alma mater smiles and is content. She goes steadily on with her work—the noblest work in the world—the task of moulding the character of the young life of the British Empire ; so that in the broader fields and sterner occupations of manhood, the Empire's sons may quit themselves like men, and have the strength to march breast forward,

 Never doubting clouds will break, and yet touching their lives so closely that they must ever look back with pride and joy upon the days they spent at the "best school of all."

Speech Day.

Speech Day this year was admirable in every respect, especially for its swing and for its brevity. Much was said and done and felt during that ninety minutes at the Town Hall on Tuesday, December 12, and the general feeling was that we had made a good finish for the year and got off the mark well for the holidays. His Excellency the Governor and Lady Galway lent dignity and grace to the occasion, and supporting them on the platform were the Head Master, the Attorney-General, the Mayor of Adelaide, the President of the Conference, the Director of Education, Sir Charles Goode, Mr. F. Chapple, C.M.G., and a fine muster of the College Committee.

The prizes did not present so formidable a barrier as usual, but their value was in one sense greater than ever. Each first prize was a copy of the Lady Galway Belgian Book, bound in school colours, while the rest were certificates, the value of which will increase with the years.

The proceedings opened with the hymn "God the All-Terrible," and after prayer had been offered by the President, the Head Master welcomed the Governor and Lady Galway, and then called on the Captain of the Cricket Eleven (H. G. Prest) to read the annual sports report:—

"The record for this year indicates that good work has been done by our representatives, although we have not won the success we attained during the past two years. We succeeded in defeating St. Peter's in Football, Tennis, and Cricket, but our rivals gained a victory over us in Athletic Sports.

Owing to Easter coming so late in the first term, the Sports Committees advisedly decided to hold the Intercollegiate Sports prior to our own Athletic Sports. This involved much work, as heats for all races had to be run off in order to select the best competitors for each event. S. Howard was elected captain of a well-trained Sports team, which we hoped would add another win to our succession of victories. But owing to the fine races by L. V. Pellew, our rivals' Captain, and the disappointing form of our Juniors, St. Peters gained a margin of 12 points over us.

Howard, who was our highest scorer, ran in great spirit to avert the first defeat we have experienced for two years, and was awarded a merit badge for his fine efforts. R. M. Fowler, who possesses the ability and style of a remarkable hurdler, won the Steeplechase, and established a record in the 120 Yards Hurdle event, lowering the time in which this race has been run on six former occasions.

Soon after the Intercollegiate Sports, our own Sports were held on the College Oval. Tassie carried off the College Championship, and a keen competition was witnessed for the Cup, which was eventually won by Howard, who is to be congratulated on his fine exhibition of running and jumping.

The beginning of the Football season gave promise of great success, and many improved players were discovered by the frequent practices which were organised in the beginning of the second term.

As there were not enough teams to form the Amateur League, difficulty arose in arranging a full programme of matches. The coaching of the teams was again in the hands of Mr. Gordon Dreyer, whose instruction and training proved to be particularly advantageous to the First Eighteen. We are very grateful for his services, which rendered the season so successful for us.

On July 15th, our annual match versus St. Peters was played on the Adelaide Oval, and we again recorded a victory. Our team on the whole was heavier than St. Peters, and combined play, followed by accurate goal-kicking, earned for us the result for which we had so thoroughly trained. All our men played so consistently that it was impossible to single out any best player. In this difficult position, the ball was awarded, as a compliment, to the Captain. The gold medal presented by the Old Collegians' Association for the most consistent player during the season, was awarded to Howard, who followed brilliantly all through. Merit badges were also awarded to Howard, Tassie, and Wilson.

The Second Eighteen was fairly successful in the Students' Association, which provided much interest for the Saturday matches, and programmes were also arranged for the Third, Fourth, and Fifth eightheens.

After the September vacation, we looked forward to the approaching Tennis match with St. Peters, and again we wish to thank the friends who placed their courts at our disposal. Unfavourable weather interfered somewhat with practice, but under Mr. Ward's supervision a strong team was finally selected. E. J. Swann was elected Captain, and we heartily congratulate him and his five on the way in which they outclassed their opponents and won by 12 rubbers to 3. The one striking feature of the match was the skill displayed by G. M. Hone in the first single.

The Tennis Tournament at the school, which began in the first term, was not concluded until the end of the second term. G. Hone here again showed his skill in the game, and by winning both the Junior and Senior Championships established a splendid record in the school. The success of the Tennis is due to Mr.

Ward, whom we beg to thank for his continual interest on our behalf.

The Ashton Shield, awarded for district competition in all departments of sport, fell to the Boarders, who gained a margin of 8 points over the Souths.

Miniature Rifle Shooting is growing increasingly popular. It was not possible to organise any competition this year in this department of sport, but it is hoped that matches will be arranged next year.

The recent cricket match against St. Peters, which is still in our minds, provided much interest and excitement, and our First Eleven proved that they had taken full advantage of Mr. C. R. Davies' coaching.

In conclusion, on behalf of the boys, I wish to thank the Head Master, and the other masters on the Sports Committee, especially Mr. Grey, our Sports Master, to whom we cannot be too grateful for the interest he has taken in the welfare of our sports."

In submitting his annual report, the Head Master prefaced his remarks with an expression, on behalf of the school, of loyalty to the throne, which his Excellency represented, and to the Empire of which Australia was so great a part. He added that it was gratifying to be able to say that, in spite of the trying conditions under which they were living, the numbers in attendance at the College all through the year had been higher than at any time last year. The increase in the Preparatory School was especially pleasing, because the most difficult work lay in their efforts to fit into the school life boys who came late, and usually stayed for only a short period. The advance which such boys made was often very noticeable, and, for that very reason, their regret was the greater at sending them out into life so much less adequately equipped than they would be if they stayed longer. The class work had been maintained at a creditable standard throughout the year. The most noteworthy feature had been the improved standard reached in the Fourth forms. By refraining from sending boys for the primary examination they had been able to realise their wish to raise the standard of these forms, and they hoped to reap the advantage of this improvement in the senior school.

Several changes had taken place on the staff. Mr. K. W. A. Smith joined at the beginning of the year, and had done good work. Captain W. S. Gilbert, after six years of useful work at the school, gave himself wholly up to military work in the middle of the first term. His place was filled by Mr. R. M. Dunstone, who also enlisted for service some weeks ago. An appointment to fill the vacancy had yet to be announced. The school was indebted to Mrs.

Vanes, who came to their assistance when a difficulty faced the staff recently in the Preparatory School, where she was doing good service. Though the school had not had to face such disorganisation of the staff as was feared might be the case, he had had to make heavy demands on his colleagues during the year, and he wished to express his grateful appreciation of the cheerful loyalty with which they had met them. Also to express his thanks to the prefects and to the school generally for the response that had been made to their efforts on their behalf.

The Higher Public Examination results just published showed that the Sixth Form boys had won five places on the general honours list. He congratulated them: and especially S. Howard upon winning third place on the list, with first place in English and modern history; and A. F. Hobbs on being fourth on the list with first place in biology. Howard had also been awarded the Tennyson medal as the best candidate of his year in English.

The college had suffered two outstanding losses during the year in the death of Sir Samuel Way and of Mr. E. B. Colton. Both were associated with the school from its foundation, and both served faithfully to the end. The appointment of Mr. Arnold E. Davey as treasurer in succession to Mr. Colton had given much satisfaction to well-wishers of the school.

The war had been with them all the year, but it had been their endeavour so to control their emotions, and so direct their energies as to maintain, both in their individual and corporate life, unimpaired efficiency. As a school they had not taken part in any distracting movements for patriotic purposes, but week by week, as part of the ordinary routine of their life, they had contributed steadily to patriotic funds, and at times had done more. When the Christmas boxes were sent to the trenches, 102 went from the school, bearing a picture of the college and a greeting from its members. The boys again forbore to accept prizes at their annual sports. They had also given up their form prizes, and had asked to be allowed to devote the value of them to patriotic purposes. The net results of their efforts for the year had been that £235 was contributed to the needs of the Empire.

Once again they pointed with pride to their roll of honour. As many as 630 Prince Alfred Boys had given their services to the Empire; 40 had fallen, and 11 had won special distinction. Their enthusiasm over their achievements reached high-water mark when they tried to show Lieut. H. V. H. Throssell how much they appreciated the splendid valour that won for him the V.C. Later on the whole school was moved, as probably it had never before been moved, when, soon after the great push began, news came that three who had gone direct from the service to the school into the service of the Empire had fallen in battle within a few hours of each other—two from the staff (Captain J. W. Bracket and Lance Corporal G. C. Davies) and one from the class-room (Private Bruce Godfree). More detailed enumeration of the sacrifices and exploits of their schoolfellows was not needed there; they were trying to keep a record of them for future generations. Suffice it to say now that they had made an imperishable record upon the life of the school, and had given them the right evermore to say what they had written with their blood, that Prince Alfred was a school "blessed in her offspring of heroes."

The course of the war had prompted a stocktaking in many departments of their national life, and a comparison of procedure with that of other nations, especially that of Germany. Much comment had been made upon their educational methods, and a frank study of these comments could not fail to be helpful. The effective use made by Germany of scientific and technical knowledge had impressed observers greatly, and British educational activities had been severely criticised, with the result that their systems were said to be sadly deficient in scientific and technical training. It was not his wish to weary them with lengthy reference to the various matters at issue, but it might not be out of place to make a few observations upon what seemed to him the most important phase of the whole question—the real value that they as a people set upon education. It could not be denied that their boys had a splendid capacity and adaptability for facing an emergency. The marvellous manner in which their young manhood had responded to the demands of the past two years was a proof positive that the ancient spirit was not dead, and that, with all its weaknesses, their system of training had a wondrous power of keeping it alive, if not at all times operative.

It had been said that a Briton was developed by emergency, a German by system. Everyday life was not made up of a series of emergencies, but of a succession of calls upon average faculties applied to daily routine. In preparation for these, Briton and German were at the two extremes. The former placed too little store upon faculties and dispositions patiently trained for daily routine; the latter put this training before every other consideration. Further, they expected British boys to be ready for life's demands so much earlier than Germans. The young of the human kind took so much longer to equip for their life's work than the young of any other kind, and the demands of the passing years with their more highly artificialised modes of life were calling for an increasingly long period of preparation. A comparison in 1902 revealed the fact that in 9 German institutions there were four times as many youths over 18 years still pursuing their education as there were in 99 British institutions over 15 years of age. He quoted that comparison simply to support his contention that, before any comparison of curricula or methods of teaching should be instituted, they should frankly review the British attitude towards education as it finds expression in the practice. The rivalry between classics and science for pride of place was quite secondary in importance. Age for age, it was probable that Australian boys who had access to their best educational facilities had as good a training in science as German boys similarly situated, while among German boys there was probably far more classics taught than with the Australians. The first consideration was not so much what was taught, or how it was taught, as whether their boys were taught at all in sufficiently large numbers, for a sufficiently long period, to justify their demand that they should hold their own against others.

It could hardly be said that they valued education when the qualification for admission to their State and Federal services was so low; when it was regarded as a positive disadvantage to a boy wishing to serve his country in what should be a splendid field of service to have prepared himself for entering it by a course of education pursued to perhaps his 18th birthday. Further, the lack of scope in those services for men who had university degrees or their equivalents was greatly to be deplored. Were the foes of Australia satisfied with the preparation which satisfied Australia in the corresponding departments of their national life? Again, it seemed to him that Australia needed more educated men upon the land, whence all their wealth is derived, perhaps more than anywhere else. Yet he was still continually told that, as the boy was only going on the land, the most meagre mental equipment would suffice. Preparation for hours of leisure, for pursuing intelligent enquiry into the many problems connected with landed interests, and for the great field of service connected with local government and administration, was not regarded as a serious demand upon their consideration, much less an obligation upon them. Similar comments might be made about their national life, but those he had made would suffice to support the opinion that, if Australians were to hold their own in the coming years, a higher value must be set upon education. In conclusion, he expressed the conviction that when, as a people, they resolutely demanded for their sons an ampler education, when they were prepared to submit them in greater numbers for a longer period to an uninterrupted course of study, and to meet cheerfully the expense involved, then they would find that their sons were second to none in capability, and that curricula and methods of teaching adapted to their needs would be at their service.

His Excellency the Governor, who was greeted by the boys with three ringing cheers, said :—"It is hard to realise that a whole year has passed since I last attended your prizegiving. We have passed through another year of stress, anxiety, great hope, and great pride, and yet we are still in this terrible war, which has been going on for $2\frac{1}{2}$ years. We do not yet see the end. I would pay my tribute of admiration and convey my thanks to this great school for the splendid manner in which it has taken such a great share in the war. I was prompted to wear this uniform as a compliment to your great record. Last year I was able to compliment Lieutenant Throssell, V.C., an Old Boy of Prince Alfred College. This year I was able to compliment Captain Blackburn, V.C., an Old Boy of St. Peter's College."

At the mention of Captain Blackburn's name, all the boys stood and spontaneously gave three hearty cheers.

His Excellency proceeded :—That is a very graceful compliment. The 630 representatives of Prince Alfred College in the firing line, you may be sure, have carried with them the school tradition, and one of the pleasantest thoughts of those who have won distinction must have been that they had brought credit upon their old school. The training and discipline of the school, together with the control of the home, are the factors which make or mar success in life. We are glad that we have these two schools—there are others in South Australia, but these are pre-eminent—who have answered the call of duty so nobly. The school wall is the one place where the Old Boy most desires to see his name inscribed. When it is there, his name will be handed down as an example of duty well done, and of what I would call carrying out the "facile princeps" of the school tradition. It will be one of the proudest thoughts of Lieutenant Throssell to know that his name is on the school walls. Throssell I am told—and I was expecting it—has gone back to the post of duty and honour, in spite of the result of the referendum. These are days of social and industrial unrest, due in a great measure to weak home control in some instances. Our prisons are fuller than they should be, for the same reason—neglect in the start of life. Many have lost a chance of public usefulness because of weak parental control. You know those lines of Scott :—

• Sound, sound the clarion, fill the fife !
And to the sensual world proclaim :
One crowded hour of glorious life
Is worth an age without a name.

That sentiment your men have been carrying out at the front during the last $2\frac{1}{2}$ years. We are particularly anxious about recent events in the Near East, but it is only a phase, and it will all come right in the end if we only keep on as we have been going and try to do still a little better. It is no good crying over spilt milk or harping on what might have been. That is what one is inclined to do when thinking over the referendum, but those who were ready to do their duty will do it. I am certain Australia is not going to fail. I am even more certain that the two great colleges are not going to fail, but will continue to send men as long as men are wanted and as they become available. I have never lost my confidence in ultimate victory. We have, no doubt, greater sacrifices before us than ever, but England in previous wars has fought for years and come out on top, and she is going to come out on top this time.

Each year I offer a couple of bats for the best batting and the best bowling average in the Intercollegiate match, and I must congratulate Prince Alfred on winning both of them this year. Crosby wins the batting, with 54 and 26, and Howard the bowling with 7 for 72. It seems to me it is a Howard year this year. The best all-round performance in the match was put up by Pellew (S.P.S.C.), with an aggregate of 64 and 8 wickets for 103.

His Excellency presented the school prizes and particularly congratulated S. Howard, the dux, and captain of the school, who is covered with honours this year. Mr. Bayly warmly congratulated Howard upon his achievements academically and in the sports field, and thanked him for having done so much, as captain of the school, to assist him in conducting the College as a Christian school should be conducted.

The Governor, in presenting the captain's certificate and the Tennyson Medal for literature to Howard, said he should be a proud young man to have received such a testimonial from the Head Master to his educational and sporting qualifications and his character.

On the motion of the Hon. J. H. Vaughan, a hearty vote of thanks was tendered to the Governor. The singing class rendered the choruses, "The Cossack Cradle Song" and "Skating Song," and C. W. Reeves and G. P. Warnecke recited "Julius Cæsar," act IV., scene III. This not only agreeably varied the proceedings, but reflected the highest credit on the performers. The singing of the Intercession Hymn and the retirement of the Governor closed the formal part of the afternoon's proceedings; then we rounded things off with vigorous snatches of school songs, congratulations, and farewells.

School Notes.

On November 28th, we, as a school, enjoyed a somewhat unique experience. Regret had been expressed that there was nothing within the College to remind passing generations of Mr. Fiddian, the Head Master under whom the College was opened in 1869. When this regret came to the knowledge of Mr. M. M. Maughan, the Director of Education, he at once seized upon it as affording an opportunity for doing honour to one whom he ever remembers with great regard. Mr. Maughan got into touch with as many of the pioneers as possible, and they gladly joined him in his scheme to present a portrait of Mr. Fiddian to the school. For this purpose there mustered at prayers on November 28th, 1916, the following, who described themselves as "sixty-niners":—M. M. Maughan, A. Langsford, J. T. Cooper, E. F. Fyffe, C. W. Lewis, T. Baulderstone, E. Hannaford, J. W. Padman, A. Champion, W. Jarrett, and A. M. Bonython; others sent apologies for absence. After prayers Mr. Maughan spoke on their behalf with appreciation and feeling of the influence that Mr. Fiddian had exercised in their lives. He then asked Mr. Fiddian's son, the Rev. J. R. Fiddian, to unveil his father's portrait, which was veiled by the school flag. As the flag fell and revealed the features of the first Head Master, the school, at the call of the Captain of the School, gave three ringing cheers for the "sixty-niners." Mr. Fiddian then spoke with evident feeling of his pleasure at thus revealing to the school the features of his father. He went on to reveal to us a personality of singular sweetness, scholarly attainments, and cultured bearing, so that we were able, in no small measure, to share their sentiments, and to understand why it had been a delight to these boys of other days thus to renew their youth with us. The portrait of Mr. J. A. Hartley, the second Head Master, has been hung in line with that of Mr. Fiddian, and when, early in the coming year, the Old Collegians' Association places the bust of Mr. Chapple at the end of the Assembly Room, the sequence will be complete. Mr. W. D. Taylor, the President, represented the Old Collegians' Association, and Messrs. W. Lathlean and P. E. Johnstone represented the School Council.

As most of the Prefects will close their schooldays at the end of the present year, they decided to leave upon the walls some memento of their year of happy companionship as leaders of the school. They therefore asked the Head Master to accept a picture of the Tiber, in the hope that it would not only be a memento of their prefecture, but that it might also inspire their successors to mark their year of office in similar fashion.

The following account of Bruce Godfree's end has been sent by a comrade. It will be read with interest by all at the school:—"Bruce Godfree was killed by a shell. He lost his life in attempting to save two others who had been buried by a previous explosion. Bruce was working hard to dig them out when another shell came. His work was not in vain, as both men were dug out alive and sent to hospital."

The Prefects, on behalf of the school, asked that the fifty pounds saved by giving up the class prizes might be divided among the following five funds:—Red Cross, Belgian Relief, Y.M.C.A. Army Department, Trench Comforts for Coffee Stalls, Repatriation Fund.

S. Howard and A. F. Hobbs have been awarded Government Bursaries. The former intends to take up the law course; the latter the medical course. R. B. Hone has been selected as one of the two South Australian representatives to enter Duntroon Military College. W. L. Spinkston was awarded the second John Creswell Scholarship on the results of the Junior Commercial Examination.

Boarders' Notes.

Back again into the field of scholastic endeavour, animated by high hopes in regard to the forthcoming public examinations, and also expecting to be well represented in the field of sport.

Our expectancy with regard to the latter was soon realised, and we are proud of the fact that the captain of the team which defeated St. Peters so signally at tennis, was chosen from the boarding house in the person of Swann. Howard (vice-captain) and Finch also represented the house, and played a vigorous game.

The boarders were substantially represented in the "Inter." cricket match in the persons of Howard (vice-captain), Swann, Pflaum, and Finch. All played exceptionally well. Howard succeeded in carrying off the governor's prize for his clever trundling, and Swann made 73 runs for his side.

Early rising seems to have been the most outstanding feature this term. Why, even Jock rose to greet the early dawn, twice to our knowledge! It was 4.30 a.m.—the morn was painting the hills with resplendent glory, grey giving place to purple and gold, the birds (curlews and kookooburras across the street) were breaking forth into melody, until a "mix" over an unoffending worm caused discord, the dorm. alone showed no signs of animation, no sound with the exception of sweet Aeolian airs played by Morpheus upon a variety of nasal organs, when hark! What was that? Cr-rickitty—cr-reek went No. 7 window, followed by a certain amount of bustling. All the "stewpots" awoke, glanced at the time, and turning over entered upon their beauty sleep, which lasted until the call-over bell sounded. But one or two more curious, rose to investigate this new state of affairs. Subdued chokings and splutterings seemed to emanate from the bath room. This confirmed our suspicions. Someone was ill and enjoying the luxury of a fit in private. We opened the door silently, when lo and behold, what a sight! There he was wallowing away beneath a pouring shower of icy cold water, like an old woolly buffalo. We went back to bed to enhance our beauty.

Prof. Jeffington Stooltapper with his assistants gave a series of practical demonstrations in spirit rapping in the dorm. recently. Some of the spirits were evidently employed in better and far away regions, as they were laggardly in their responses. They had small knowledge of race-horses. The Prof. in a short and edifying address, said that he with a few others, possessing similar concentrating faculties, could twist the whole school off its foundation and make it waltz round the grounds. We suggest for the Prof's. benefit that he should have wheels put on the stool before his next exhibition, since it would not necessitate so much muscular energy.

We heartily congratulate Howard upon winning the Tennyson medal, and also upon the prominent position which he holds upon the honour list.

Porky had the bad luck to break his right arm in the gym. a few weeks previous to the examinations. He was our commercial hope and while sympathising with him we commend him for his pluck in attacking his task left-handed. We are looking forward to see him well placed on the list.

Who is the boarders' hope for 1917? Pinkie!

Springer, who had to retire to the hills on account of illness, returned in time to sit for the exams. His boxing rival, Grimy, hasn't turned up this term to prove his vaunted superiority.

The light-footed and gay members of the house have found great enjoyment and recreation in the dining-room on Saturday evenings.

The "Whacker Club," which is more generally known as the "Dirty Dozen," held its final meeting lately. Great mystery surrounds the doings of this select company, but some inkling of their programme may be gleaned from the ample supply of viands which responsible persons have seen conveyed into their "den," and also from the confused and boisterous sounds which afterwards rumble through that portion of the building.

The companionship of Mrs. Bayly and party on Saturday evenings has been a source of great pleasure to the boys.

Literary Society Notes.

Since our last issue the Society has had two meetings of importance—the mock trial and the mock banquet.

In the mock trial, H. R. Finch was arraigned on a charge of over-working. He was defended by S. Howard and E. J. Swann, whilst the Crown was represented by C. A. Tudor and T. E. Cooper. After much interesting evidence had been heard and examined, the accused was pronounced guilty, and the judge, M. Newbold, sentenced him to two weeks' absolute deprivation of work—which sentence was rendered practicable by the fact that the holidays were to follow immediately. Both sides are to be congratulated on getting together excellent cases.

The final meeting for the session was the banquet held in the dining-hall, which was tastefully decorated with the school colours, flowers, and flags. The proceedings opened with a Latin grace, and the lads fell to business with zest. After the first edge had been taken off their appetites, Mr. Bayly, the president, proposed the loyal toast, which was followed by the National Anthem. S. Howard then proposed "The School," which was responded to by C. A. Tudor, whose speech was followed by the "Best school of all." Various toasts followed, among them "The Masters" by M. Newbold, responded to by Mr. Dunstone. "The Society" by H. R. Muirden, followed by response by R. S. Lee. Then came the toast to the "Old Boys" by F. Wilson, to which Mr. Taylor, the President of the Old Collegians' Association, made vigorous response. N. E. Lade then proposed the health of "Our Representatives in the Sports Field," to which H. G. Prest, the cricket captain responded. H. R. Finch followed with the toast, "Boys Leaving," to which T. E. Cooper responded. The next toast was "Our Men at the Front," by E. J. Swann, replied to by R. A. Piper. The last on the list was "The Ladies," proposed by S. Lord and responded to by G. H. Jeffrey in the absence of all members of the fair sex. Various choruses were sung between the speeches; S. Howard sang "Hearts of Oak" and "The Harp that once thro' Tara's Halls"; E. W. Davies gave a selection on his violin and A. P. Dawkins one on the flute. R. M. Fowler amused the audience by one of Dennis's extracts. A very enjoyable evening was thus passed, and it made a very successful termination of the 1916 session.

Cadet Notes.

Although the work of the Senior Cadets throughout the State has been suspended, the school has continued its work in the usual manner. There has been no event worthy of special mention this term, as the whole-day drills have been postponed. Notwithstanding this, the work of the company has been steadily carried on, and a marked improvement can be seen in the bearing of the Cadets.

It has been found very difficult to sustain the interest in the miniature range owing to the fact that Mr. Dunstone, who was largely responsible for this work, enlisted in the middle of the term. The Head Master then took over the responsibility of the matter, but it was found that on account of the examinations, cricket, and tennis, it would be impossible to carry on the shooting with success until after the Christmas vacation.

As it was decided by the authorities that the Citizen Force camp should take place immediately after the examinations, those who were liable to attend this camp have not been drilling with the company this term. Several of them have already gone into camp, and we hope to be able to recount some of their experiences in our next issue.

In conclusion, we would like to thank Mr. Dunstone for the excellent manner in which he has conducted the drum band and taken control of the rifle range. We all join in wishing him the best of luck and a safe return. The heartiest thanks of the company are due to Captain Ward for the interest which he has taken in the company during the year.

Prep. Notes.

As we have not sent anything in to the Chronicle since last Christmas, Sir thought it was up to us to write a short account of the year's doings.

During this year, 26 new boys have entered the Prep., and five of them are boarders.

As there were so many of us, it was very hard to get cricket practice for everyone, and so we were very pleased when we found that Mr. Grey had arranged to put down a new practice pitch on the big school grounds for us, and also was going to let us use the good wickets at the back. We wish to thank him very much, for we have been able to play much more than we could before.

During the year we have played St. Peter's Prep. twice. We played them football on our grounds on August 8th, and after a good game they beat us. Scores:—S.P.S.C., 6 goals 5 behinds; P.A.C., 3 goals 3 behinds.

On November 28th we played cricket, and this time we won—S.P.S.C., 44 runs; P.A.C., 78 runs. Cosgrove and Homburg bowled well for us, and Homburg (22 not out) and Muirden (15) were the highest scorers. Muirden also kept wickets very well.

In the Drawing Examinations the Prep. boys did very well indeed—so Mr. Ashton said. In the Preparatory Division we got eight honours and one pass; In Division I we got eight honours and two passes; and in Division II Burden took honours, so he is easily our best artist.

During the year Sir promised to give two awards to each division—one for the best and the other for the most improved homework.

The school prizes for the year's work have been won by Glyde (dux of the Prep), Burden, Cowling, Godlee, and Hall in Senior A; by Walter Evans, Harris, Mervyn Evans, Taylor, and Reid in Senior B; and by Fry, N. Pearson, and Philip Bayly in the Juniors.

Heroes.

With mingled tears of sorrow and of pride,
 Her fallen sons grey Alma Mater mourns—
 Contending passions sweep her soul by turns,
 Nor stem nor mitigate that woeful tide.
 In vision oft she dwells out there beside
 Those hillocks green by gloried Dardanelles,
 Where now majestic silence, reigning, tells
 In wordless whispers how they fought and died.
 The vine-clad hills of trenchéd France resound
 Again and yet again each puissant stroke.
 The riven wreck of that despotic yoke
 Shall ne'er the neck of Liberty surround
 While blows like these are struck; 'twill but provoke
 Avenging wrath the despot to confound.

The Annual Concert.

On the night of August 19th, in spite of drizzling rain, an even larger crowd than ever assembled at the College for the Annual Midwinter Concert. Even after the aisles were filled with chairs, there were several for whom it was impossible to find seating accommodation. It is fine that so many friends of the school are always eager to attend this—one of the few functions that can be held at the school itself.

The Head Master spoke a few words of welcome, and the Third Form then commenced the programme with a rousing chorus, "A Sergeant of the Line," which was followed by a pianoforte solo by D. A. Burnard.

The Prep. boys opened their account with the "Charcoal Man," which was enjoyed quite as much as it was on a previous occasion some years ago.

An effort was now made by the Lower Third boys to advertise efficiently the valuable household remedy, "Jenk's Vegetable Compound," which, judging by the appearance of some of the bottles displayed, should indeed possess remarkable qualities, curative or otherwise.

W. Reeves and G. P. Warnecke next entertained us with a praiseworthy rendering of the quarrel scene between Brutus and Cassius, from Julius Cæsar.

We were then favoured with a rendering of the charming song, "The Little Damozel," which was greeted with enthusiastic applause, and Miss Ridings was obliged to respond to a vigorous encore.

The audience was now held spellbound by Mr. Edward Reeves, who in his magnificent fashion figured Mark Antony in his oration over Cæsar. This fine recitation was received with an unmistakable demand for more.

An Old Boy, Mr. A. L. Bertram, entertained us with a song entitled "Three for Jack."

Three of the boarders' prefects—Howard, Newbold, and Tudor—caused much mirth among the audience by expressing in their song, "A Little Farm," their ideas, amongst other things, of an ideal wife. They each had a very appropriate idea of the wife that would suit his particular taste, and responded to an inevitable encore with a piece of ragtime which produced perhaps more laughter than their previous effort.

After the interval, the Third Form gave a humorous chorus, "The Irish Orchestra," which, as may be imagined, was an ideal one.

Following this, came a pianoforte duet entitled "Midnight Fire Alarm," by K. Symons and C. R. Anderson.

The Prep. boys once more delighted their hearers and themselves with a humorous recitation entitled "Seein' Things," which is guaranteed to produce nightmare every night for at least three weeks.

A shopping experience which, we sincerely though perhaps vainly hope that our lady friends are not often subjected to, was next related by the Upper Third boys in the chorus, "The Other Department, if you Please."

J. Fox amused the company with his description of Mr. and Mrs. Burton's difficulties with the curtain, in the piece "Burton's Curtain," and for this he received a vigorous round of applause, and had to answer with an encore.

Miss Ethel Ridings then rendered "Coming Home," and for the excellent fashion in which she gave it was brought back again.

The Prep. boys gave us the chorus "Toys," and Mr. Reeves was once again received with great applause, and gave us "My First Recital," and was of course recalled.

The boys sang "Till the Boys Come Home" as the final chorus, the audience joining in the refrain.

The Head Master thanked the audience for their presence, and expressed the hope that in the near future they would have a hall large enough to take all in with comfort.

Our grateful thanks are due to those who helped us in the programme, especially Miss Ethel Ridings, Mr. Edward Reeves, and

Mr. A. L. Bertram. The success of the evening's entertainment was largely due to Mr. Robertson, who gave so much time and trouble in providing a programme which seemed to meet with the approval of everyone present.

Intercollegiate Cricket.

The Intercollegiate cricket match was commenced on Friday, December 8th. During the week the weather had been very good, but on Friday morning, clouds began to form and it looked very much as if we would have a thunderstorm. In spite of the weather a large number of lady friends of the two schools were present at the Oval, selling colours and buttons for patriotic purposes, and flags and coloured parasols presented a very festive appearance.

Prest won the toss and decided to bat, the Hone brothers being first sent to the wickets. Jose opened for Saints with a maiden over and then Hardy took the ball at the other end. R. B. Hone opened our score with a single, but two balls later G. Hone lifted one to Pellew at point. 1-0-1.

Swann then came in and promptly started to score with a boundary. Hone was let off in slips and Swann shortly afterwards returned a catch to Jose, who made no mistake. 2-11-15.

Prest then came in; Hone opened out and the runs came somewhat faster. Henderson then relieved Jose and after being hit for four by Hone, clean bowled him. 3-11-36.

Jones joined Prest, and these two settled down and seemed quite at home with the bowlers, although a couple of chances were given. The century was reached with a four off Jose by Prest, and soon after the play was stopped for luncheon, the score being 3 for 103. Prest 39 and Jones 26.

After the luncheon adjournment, St. Peters' fielding improved, but Prest, who was having most of the bowling, kept things lively until he completed a fine innings of 57 by hitting an over-pitched ball to point off Pellew. 4-57-128.

Howard then joined Jones and started with a boundary, but he was then dismissed by the same bowler. 5-7-135.

Jones now began to open out, and, with Finch as partner, it seemed as if there would be another long partnership, but Jones was bowled by Pellew. 6-44-154.

Crosby then came in and shortly afterwards Finch was run out. Vawser joined Crosby and this pair brought the score up very quickly; Crosby, who was punishing the bowlers, hit Henderson for six before being caught by Tennant off the same bowler. He had played an exceedingly useful innings of 54. 9 for 236.

Pflaum and Harbison were then left to hold the last wicket, and the score crept up to 252, when Pflaum was clean bowled by Jose.

Saints' first pair was Gregerson and Florey. After driving Harbison for four, Gregerson was clean bowled by Pflaum. 1 for 5. Jose then came in, but Florey was clean bowled by Harbison. 2 for 15. Pellew joined his captain, and Jose gave a fine display, although drizzling rain began to fall. He was dropped at mid-on, but after that made no mistake. Owing to the rain, play had to be adjourned at 5 o'clock. Score—2 for 46.

SECOND DAY.

The match was resumed on Saturday, when Harbison opened the bowling for us against Jose (32) and Pellew (5). Harbison's third ball shattered Pellew's wicket. The score was now 3 for 46.

Tennant then joined Jose at the wickets, and Pflaum bowled at the other end. Runs came very slowly, and with the score at 56 G. Hone replaced Pflaum. Jose was caught in the slips by R. B. Hone from his second ball. Thus two of Saints' best bats were very cheaply disposed of. 4 for 56.

Addison was the next batsman, and Jones was put on instead of Harbison. A slow one from G. M. Hone, who was keeping a good length and puzzling the batsmen, was lifted right out of the ground by Tennant, this being the second 6 of the match. Harbison again bowled instead of Jones, and when the score had been carried to 89 Hone gave place to Howard. When Tennant had compiled 24, he stepped out to Howard, and a chance of stumping him was missed, but two balls later Addison was caught and bowled by the same bowler. 5 for 94. The partnership had added 38, Addison scoring 18.

Tennant was joined by Hayward, and Swann relieved Harbison. At 29, Tennant hit Howard to Harbison at cover-point. The score was now 6 for 105, and Howard's bowling read 2 for 9.

Hylton came next, but Hayward was soon bowled by Howard for 5. 7 for 116. Howard, 3 for 11.

After the luncheon adjournment, Fisher resumed with Hylton, and soon ran his score to 14, when he was clean bowled by Harbison. Without any addition to his score, Hylton was bowled by Howard. 9 for 137.

Hardy was the last man in, and several changes were made in the bowling before the pair could be separated. The innings closed for 159, when Hardy hit a ball high from G. Hone and was caught by Howard.

Howard was the most successful of the bowlers, obtaining 4 for 31. Harbison and G. M. Hone also bowled well, obtaining respectively 3 for 37 and 2 for 21. Pflaum obtained 1 for 25.

Thus we had a lead of 93 on the first innings. Again the two Hones opened the batting for us. A feature of the match was the rapidity with which the first wicket fell in every case, and this time R. B. Hone was bowled by Jose when he was only 4. 1 for 10.

Swann now came in, and immediately opened his account. Hone was batting for twenty minutes without scoring. Runs now came steadily until after an hour's play, 60 runs had appeared, and Hone, who had made 24, was caught by Jose at mid-on off Henderson.

Swann was now 17, and Prest, who now came in, when he had made 4, cut a ball hard to Pellew at point, but was missed. After making one more, he sent an easy catch from Pellew to Henderson at point. 3 for 84.

Swann, who had been batting brightly, was joined by Jones. The latter hoisted the century after just 100 minutes by square-cutting Jose for 2, but after Swann had reached 50, was caught by Henderson off Hardy.

The next batsman, Howard, opened confidently, and soon ran into double figures. He then lifted Hardy high to mid-off, and Jose and Fisher both ran in to take the catch. A collision resulted, and neither fieldsman succeeded in holding the ball. When Swann had made 62, he returned a ball to Hardy. He had played a fine innings, and had given no chances. He is to be congratulated on making the highest individual score of the match. The score was now 5 for 141.

Finch now came in, and he and Howard held their own until stumps were drawn. Howard had batted freely for 26.

THIRD DAY.

The rain which fell early on Monday morning did not improve the wicket, and at times the ball bounced in all directions. Finch (7) soon fell a victim to Pellew, and Howard soon followed, being caught by Hayward off Pellew.

Crosby then came to the rescue, and by hard hitting, brought his score up to 26, when Hardy beat him with a good ball.

Not much more opposition was offered to the bowlers, and after 40 minutes' play we were all out for a total of 204. This left Saints 298 to make to win.

Gregerson and Henderson opened for Saints, but the former was bowled by Harbison with his first ball.

Jose joined Henderson, and these two played a very careful game. At 12, Jose was dropped in slips. After this he played his usual open game till he hit one from Pflaum to Harbison at point.

Pellew then came in. Henderson continued his steady game, and when the luncheon interval came he was still not out.

After the interval, Henderson was soon dismissed, having been in for more than an hour for 10 runs, but he helped Saints a good deal.

Tennant then came in, and, after 21 runs had been added, he was caught by Pflaum off Howard. Florey and Addison quickly followed, but Hayward stopped the rot for awhile and then was caught by Harbison at point. Hylton was soon dismissed for 4. Fisher joined Pellew, who opened out and knocked the bowlers about until he hit one off Jones to Howard. He had played a very good innings for 59. Fisher now opened out, and with Hardy as partner brought the score to 167 before he was dismissed by a brilliant catch by Howard.

His Excellency, in handing the shield to H. G. Prest, congratulated him on the victory, and on the way he had handled his side. He also referred to the good feeling and sportsmanship which existed between the two Colleges. At the call of our Captain, three cheers were given for the Governor, and each school then gave three cheers for the other.

CRITIQUE OF THE TEAM.

(By the Captain).

Crosby, W. A.—As a batsman is a hard hitter, but is inclined to hit too much at times. Drives and pulls well, and is to be congratulated on his batting in the recent College match. Fields well in the out-field, where he is a sure catch.

Finch, H. R.—A batsman who drives well, and possesses a solid defence, and can be relied upon to keep his wicket up. Has proved to be a smart wicketkeeper, who takes the ball neatly on both sides of the wicket. With more experience his wicketkeeping should be a great asset to next year's team.

Harbison, E. J. K.—The best and most consistent bowler in the team. Bowls with plenty of pace, keeps a good length, and swerves well, especially with a new ball. Has shown improvement in his batting, but is still weak on the leg. Is a safe catch, and from the deep-field throws in excellently.

Hone, G. M.—A patient and steady opening batsman, who possesses strokes all round the wicket. With the ball he breaks well, and as a "googly" bowler has had a fair measure of success. Is alert in the field, and gives promise of developing into a champion cricketer.

Hone, R. B.—A batsman who makes good use of his reach, and cuts and drives well. Hits hard, but does not use good judgment in choosing balls to hit. Fields well in the slips.

Howard, S. (Vice-Captain).—Shows decided improvement as a slow leg-break bowler, although at times his length is somewhat inconsistent. When in form; his deliveries are very troublesome to batsmen, as was indicated in the Oval match. Is a forceful bat, with a powerful drive, and fields brilliantly in any part of the field.

Jones, R. N.—A much-improved left-hand batsman, who scores particularly well on the leg, and possesses a fine off-drive. As a bowler, he is not quite accurate enough, and bowls too much on the leg, but has captured a number of wickets. Good field, and throws in exceedingly well.

Pflaum, L. H.—Has the makings of a good cricketer. Bowls a fairly slow ball that hangs in the air and is very deceptive. Has improved greatly in his batting, and possesses a strong defence, and off-drives well. Safe catch.

Swann, E. J.—One of the best and most consistent bats in the team. Has a very sure eye, and when set scores all round the wicket, being particularly good on the off. Bowls a fairly fast delivery that rises from the pitch at a great pace, but his length is rather short at times. Good field.

Vawser, J. A.—A cautious left-hand batsman, who improved towards the end of the season. Is rather stiff, but square-cuts and off-drives well. Fields well in the deep-field, where he has held some splendid catches.

(By C. R. D.)

Prest, H. G. (Captain).—Good type of batsman, but did not strike form until late in the term. Must hold his bat higher. His back play needs a little attention. Very good on the on-side. Very good length bowler, and splendid field. The excellent feeling, keenness, and success of the team are sufficient proof of his success as a captain.

Christian Union.

The attendance at the Christian Union during this term has been up to the standard of the former ones. Although there has been a slight decrease in the average, the examinations, for which most of the senior school were preparing, without doubt accounted for this. A break was made while the examinations were being conducted, and this necessitated bringing down the session to nine meetings, for which the average attendance was 69. We were pleased to have Mr. L. A. Mander, who was only recently a student here, for the first meeting, and he gave us a fine address. This especially appealed to those who were attending school with him. On the following week Mr. D. Northey, President of the University Union, spoke, and we appreciated the representative of another union. Chaplain Colonel G. W. Kendrew, who has just returned from the front, Rev. S. Evans, and Dr. F. S. Hone followed in succession, and gave splendid addresses. Rev. R. S. Stanley advised us to work steadily and continuously, explaining that many great men were never in a hurry because they were never idle. The next meeting was conducted by Rev. F. Lade, who grounded his thoughts on the feeding of the multitude, and pointed out that the best for the greatest number was obtained by giving, not by grabbing. Dr. E. H. Davies mentioned the war, and from the example of selfishness thus shown in a nation, urged us to be unselfish ourselves. A month passed while the examinations were being conducted, and then the Head Master addressed the largest meeting of the term, at which 102 were present. He urged those returning to strive and fill up the gaps which would be made by others leaving, and then gave some sound advice to those leaving. He urged them to remain true to the influence of the school, to keep up her high standard, and especially to remember the views of the Union, in always refraining from scoffing at religion. This ended the work for the year, and we wish to thank all the speakers, also Mr. J. A. Haslam, for showing such keen interest in our work and for all that they have done for us.

SECOND ELEVEN.

A meeting was held recently in the Prefects' Room to consider the formation of a Junior Association. The following teams were represented by their Sports Secretaries:—S.P.S.C. II., Adelaide High School, C.B.C., Kyre, Sacred Heart, P.A.C. II. It was decided to form an Association, and to call it the Adelaide Students' Association; to play two-day matches, and eight balls to the over. The old Sydney method of scoring points was adopted, viz:—Two innings—win 3 points, loss -3; one innings—win 2 points, loss -2; tie 1 point; draw 0. The benefits arising from this Association are already very noticeable, and the good effects will be more marked as time goes on. The players play their games under real match conditions. In one match the first day's play was decidedly against us, but on the second Saturday's play what looked like defeat was turned into a fine two-innings victory. The Second Eleven has not lost a match, and has a comfortable lead. It devolves upon the Second Eleven of 1917 to maintain this high standard of play and finish top. There are four matches still to be played. The full results of matches will be published in our next issue.

Intercollegiate Tennis.

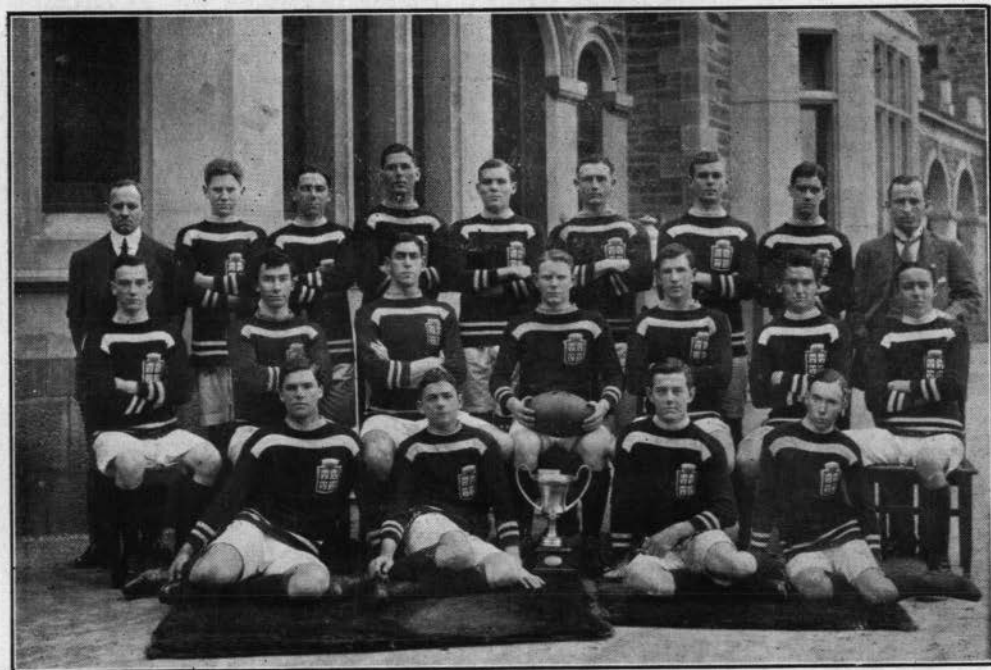

We were fortunate this year in having a fine day for the Intercollegiate, as the weather has been so uncertain. There was a very large number of friends of both schools present, and a good competition was expected, but in this respect the match was rather a disappointment, as we finished with a good majority of rubbers to our credit. The teams were:—

S.P.S.C.—R. Hyton (capt.), G. E. Jose, H. W. Florey, K. Wilson, G. Hardy, Johnstone.

P.A.C.—G. Hone, E. Swann (capt.), S. Howard, R. B. Hone, R. M. Fowler, K. Eaton.

The game started in the morning, and the first round consisted of three doubles. Our first double, G. and R. Hone, played St.

Peter's third double, Hardy and Johnstone, and beat them in two sets. Our second double, Swann and Howard, then played Saints' second double, Florey and Wilson, and we won this also. In the third contest our third double, Fowler and Eaton, played Saints' first, Jose and Hylton, and put up a very good game, being beaten in the third set.

In the next round, the fourth, fifth, and sixth singles were played. Hone beat Wilson in two straight sets. Fowler beat Hardy after a very close game, as they played three sets in each, the final score being 6-5. Eaton beat Johnstone in two sets, but at one time it looked very much as if Johnstone had the better of it. When this round was finished, play was stopped for luncheon, the scores being five rubbers to one in our favour.

After the luncheon interval, the second round of doubles was started. Our first double played Saints' second double, and beat them in two sets, although the first set was very close. Our second pair lost to Saints' first, after putting up a very good game, and our third double beat Saints' third.

In the next round the best tennis of the day was seen. In the Championship Single of the Colleges, Hone played a brilliant game, defeating Hylton in two sets straight. Swann put up an excellent game against Jose, and beat him in two sets. This was one of the best rubbers of the day, and some very good tennis was witnessed. Florey beat Howard in two sets. Florey is to be heartily congratulated, as he was the only member of Saints' team to win his single. The scores were now 9 rubbers to 3, and we had already won the match.

In the last round, our first double played Saints' first double, and a close contest resulted in Princes winning the third set and thus winning the rubber. Our second double beat Saints' third double after playing the three sets, and our third double also beat Saints' second in the third set. The final scores were 12 rubbers to 3.

The tennis throughout the match was quite up to the standard of previous years, if not better than usual. The credit of this was largely due to Mr. Ward, who gave so much time and trouble to coaching the team this year and in previous years.

DETAILED SCORES.

Hone and Hone beat Hardy and Johnstone, 6-5, 6-2;
Fowler and Eaton lost to Hylton and Jose, 6-4, 4-6, 0-6; Swann and Howard beat Florey and Wilson, 6-2, 6-3.

R. Hone beat Wilson, 6-1, 6-3; Fowler beat Hardy, 6-5, 4-6, 6-5; Eaton beat Johnstone, 6-5, 6-4.

Hone and Hone beat Florey and Wilson, 6-5, 6-0; Howard and Swann lost to Hylton and Jose, 2-6, 6-5, 4-6; Fowier and Eaton beat Hardy and Johnstone, 6-2, 6-4.

Hone beat Hylton, 6-0, 6-2; Swann beat Jose, 6-4, 6-3; Howard lost to Florey, 3-6, 2-6.

Hone and Hone beat Hylton and Jose, 2-6, 6-4, 6-2; Howard and Swann beat Hardy and Johnstone, 6-3, 2-6, 6-5; Fowler and Eaton beat Florey and Wilson, 3-6, 6-2, 6-1.

The Ashton Shield.

The final contests for the Ashton Shield were concluded during the third term. The District Tennis provided excellent practice for the Oval match, and resulted in Norths getting first place with 3 points, Boarders second with 2 points, Easts third with 1 point, and Souths fourth.

Towards the latter end of the term the District Cricket was concluded by two matches—North v. South and Boarders v. Easts. Souths were successful in defeating Norths by 8 wickets, and Boarders beat East by 7 wickets. As each of the districts—Norths, Souths, and Boarders, had won two matches and lost one, they each obtained 4 points.

Thus the final stages of the District Shield Contest found Boarders again top, Souths second, Norths third, and Easts last. The scores were:—

	Football.	Cricket.	Sports.	Tennis.	Total.
Boarders ...	6	4	6	2	18
Souths ...	4	4	2	—	10
Norths ...	2	4	—	3	9
Easts ...	—	—	4	1	5

Intercollegiate Gym. Competition.

M. S. Lee is to be congratulated upon his efforts at the Intercollegiate Gymnastic Competition. He was beaten for first place by a quarter of a mark only in a total of over 100. He is a worthy successor of those who won the medal for us during recent years, and he has an exceptionally good style in his work. Unfortunately he did not do himself full justice in the competition.

Fallen in Battle.

G. J. Sandland entered the school in 1897. He was recently reported as killed in action in France.

A. W. Copley, a Western Australian boy of 1910, has been killed in action in France.

F. S. Jeffery, who was at school from 1905 to 1907, has been killed in action in France. After a good school course, he took up teaching under the Education Department. He was a successful and sympathetic teacher, and will be remembered with gratitude by many who came under his influence.

A. E. C. Gepp was at the school from 1908 to 1913. From school he passed into Duntroon Military College, being second in his year of all candidates for admission. From Duntroon he was appointed to active service as a lieutenant, and sent to Egypt. His work in Egypt was so good that he received his third star, and was sent to France, where he met his death in action before he had reached his twentieth birthday. He was an enthusiastic soldier, whose unassuming bearing and sterling qualities won for him the esteem of a host of friends.

G. deQ. Robin, at P.A.C. from 1909 to 1912, had an unusually brilliant career at school, and at the close of it was awarded a Government Bursary. He went to the front with the 9th Light Horse, and was killed in action.

Frank B. Holland was at the school from 1907 to 1910. He volunteered for active service, and was killed in action in France.

Reg. A. Davey was at the school from 1906 to 1914. After leaving school he went to England to train for the air service, and made such rapid progress that he very soon received a commission in the Royal Flying Corps. He was sent to the Dardanelles, where he did excellent work, and was promoted to senior flying lieutenant. From the Mediterranean he was sent back to England, and met his death by drowning while on service in the North Sea. He was but 19 years of age, and received the rank of captain—a brief but brilliant career.

John A. Kelly, who entered P.A.C. in 1894, died of pneumonia while on service in France. He went to Gallipoli from Queensland in 1914 with the 2nd Light Horse, soon after the landing. He was wounded and sent to England, but after recovery returned to Egypt. He was then sent to France, where he died on May 16. Among the Anzacs he won a reputation as a fearless fighter, and had a great reputation as a bomb-thrower.

J. A. Raws entered the school in 1910. After leaving school he took up journalistic work, and was well known in journalistic circles for his good work. He gave up an important position on the staff of the Melbourne "Argus" to enlist, and held the rank of lieutenant. He attained eminence as a skillful tennis player, and played in interstate contests. He was killed in action in France on August 23rd.

L. G. Morrison entered the school from Broken Hill in 1908. He volunteered for service as a private soldier, and has been killed in action.

L. E. Pearce was at the school in 1913. Soon after his 18th birthday he joined the Army Medical Corps. He was on duty in camp at Tel-el-Kebir and at Salisbury Plains. While on duty at Brigade Hospital, in Hampshire, he contracted meningitis, from which he died on October 1st.

H. W. Humphries came to the school from West Australia in 1910, and remained till the end of 1913. He left Australia with the 27th Battalion, of which Capt. Blacket was adjutant, and after seeing service in Gallipoli was invalided to England with enteric fever. After recovery he was sent to France, where he was killed in action on November 5. He was a good all-round athlete, and held the rank of sergeant.

Kenneth H. Hobbs was at the school from 1906 to 1911. He joined his father as an orchadist after leaving school, and won universal regard for his sterling and manly qualities. At the call of duty he went to the front, and was wounded in July last. On his recovery he returned to the firing line in France, where he received wounds to which he succumbed on September 16. He held the rank of sergeant.

R. L. Williams was at the school from 1909 to 1911. After leaving school he joined his father in the sheep and wool industry, and became an expert with the shearing machine and at wool-classing. He left this work to enlist with his schoolmate, L. J. Branson. At school, as a cadet, he won a reputation as a rifle shot, and was champion in the battalion contest in 1910. After a short course of training here he left for further training on Salisbury Plains, whence he was sent to France, where he met his death in action on November 5.

H. G. Shapley was at the school in 1911 and 1912. He was intercollegiate champion in gymnastics. He enlisted in the Army Medical Corps, and was attached to the 1st Australian General Hospital, Cairo. From this he was drafted into the 13th Field Ambulance in France, where he met his death in action on November 17th.

Raymond H. Pflaum was at school during 1913, and was a good all-round athlete. He left for Egypt in November, 1915, where his battalion was on duty on the Canal defences till June, 1916, when they were transferred to France. He was wounded and taken prisoner by the Germans in July. He succumbed to his wounds just after attaining his 19th birthday. His elder brother, Sergeant Theo. Pflaum, was mentioned in despatches for gallant work in the attack in which Ray. was wounded. He came across Ray. lying on the battlefield, but the latter, though severely wounded, would not let him remain behind, but urged him to go forward, saying he would do all right. Later on the company was outflanked and had to retire, leaving the wounded on the field.

Distinctions Won.

Distinctions have been awarded to several Old Boys for splendid work done by them during the great operations that have been going on on the western front of the war since the great push began. The school congratulates them most heartily, and for the benefit of the school, past and present, we have endeavoured to set out the circumstances under which these distinctions were won.

Surgeon-Major L. W. Jeffries left Australia with the Second Expeditionary Force, as Captain to the Army Medical Corps, and saw a good deal of service in Egypt and Gallipoli, where he was wounded. His work here brought him the honour of being mentioned in despatches. He afterwards went to France as medical officer of a battalion. He has been promoted to major, and has been awarded the D.S.O. The following letter of congratulation from General Birdwood tells the whole story in a charming manner:—"Dear Jeffries—This is a line to congratulate you most heartily upon the D.S.O. which I am so very glad has been awarded you for your devotion to duty during that time from the 13th to 15th August, when so much heavy fighting was going on near Mouquet Farm, and when I know you personally left your dressing station and went to the front line to attend to the wounded and reorganise the stretcher bearers. I know, too, when only a few stretcher bearers were left, how you took parties out and assisted them to carry back the wounded, after having dressed them under heavy fire. No praise can be too high for such action, and I sincerely thank you, and trust you may be spared to serve with us until this war is over.—Yours sincerely, W. R. Birdwood."

Major Henry Kenneth Fry has had a course of service almost identical with that of Major Jeffries, except that he has had the good fortune to escape harm. He also did such good work at Gallipoli that he was mentioned in despatches for conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty. He also went on to France, where he has been promoted to major, and has been awarded the D.S.O.

Lieut. R. L. Rhodes has been awarded the Military Cross under circumstances detailed in the following congratulatory communications from Generals Sir H. V. Cox and W. R. Birdwood:—"Major-General Sir H. V. Cox, K.C.M.G., C.B., C.S.I., commanding the 4th Australian Division, congratulates Lieut. R. L. Rhodes, 50th Battalion, 13th Australian Infantry Brigade, who, on the 12th and 14th August, 1916, displayed great bravery and coolness under heavy fire (severely wounded), B.E.F., France, 23rd August, 1916." "Dear Rhodes—I write to congratulate you very heartily upon the Military Cross which you have won by the bravery and coolness which you displayed under heavy fire near Mouquet Farm from the 12th to 14th of last month. You were, I know, buried four times by big shells, but still continued to lead your men, until you had yourself to be taken to the rear badly wounded. Such an example is worth anything, and in thanking you for it I do sincerely trust that you are now very much better, and that we may have the good fortune to have you back with us again to help finish this war to its eventual complete success.—Yours sincerely, W. R. Birdwood." Lieut. Rhodes was for some time in hospital in Oxford, but has now recovered from his severe wound.

Captain David M. Steele, who is regimental medical officer to the 16th Battalion, has been awarded the Military Cross. Major-General Cox congratulated him on his conspicuous bravery and devotion to duty under heavy fire. The official notification states that he attended wounded under heavy fire and trying conditions with great courage and determination. It was due to his organisation and skill that they were successfully withdrawn from the position.

Lance-Corporal G. C. Davies has been awarded the Military Medal. Before his death it was known that he had done something worthy his splendid spirit. The details, which have since come to hand, are as follows:—Lance-Corporal Davies found and brought in Lieut. Ross, who was badly wounded, and returned into no-man's land to carry in Corporal Munday, of Crystal Brook, another comrade, who was mortally wounded. These gallant deeds were both performed under heavy fire from the enemy trenches. Lance-Corporal Davies was killed on June 29, while returning from a successful raid on the enemy trenches, just before the beginning of the great battle of the Somme.

Corporal L. J. Felstead has also been awarded the Military Medal, but the details are not yet known. With charming modesty his own letters simply state that he has been awarded the Medal, that he is glad for the sake of those at home, and that he felt that other fellows deserved it quite as much as he. This simple statement makes us eager to know more.

Lieut. A. J. Lee has been given his commission, and has been awarded the Distinguished Conduct Medal for his splendid work in the Romani fight on Sinai Peninsula. He and F. T. Stanton were both in this fight. The former enlisted from West Australia and the latter from New South Wales. Both fought through the Boer War, and they met recently in Egypt. Lieut. Lee is in the 10th Light Horse. He was with Lieut. H. V. H. Throssell at Hill 60 on the night when he won the V.C. Lieut. Lee was wounded on the same night. He writes with enthusiasm of the many Old Reds he has met on service, and of the bonds that at once springs up between them when the old school is mentioned.

Lieut. R. K. Wood has been given his commission, and has been awarded the Croix de Guerre. He went to London in September, 1915, and offered his services with his own motor car to the British Red Cross Society. He was at once sent to Bologne, and ran his car between there and the west front for a few months. Next he was sent to Nice, where he was attached to a convalescent hospital of British officers. He was next offered a position at Verdun by the French Red Cross authorities, and there, after nine months' service he won his commission and award.

Old Boys.

H. A. East called on his way back to West Australia from Duntroon, whither he had been sent for a special course of training before being appointed to a command.

Reece Hague, who left recently to take a post on the staff of a Perth newspaper, was presented with the school badge in gold by the president of the local branch of the Australian Journalists' Association. The appropriateness of the gift impressed us greatly.

P. E. Correll left Adelaide recently to go to London, where he hopes to submit several inventions to the War Office. His inventions have been very favourably commented upon in Adelaide. We wish him every success in his mission.

E. G. Stephens, B.Sc., was nominated by the University of Adelaide for an appointment in the munitions department in Britain. He left in September for England. A. J. Jefferis, B.Sc., has been sent from Queensland on a similar mission, and S. J. M. Dunstan, who has been in New South Wales supervising construction works for a big firm, has been appointed by the Defence Department to proceed to England on munition work.

T. C. S. Watson called. He has come down from the far north-west of West Australia to enlist in South Australia.

H. C. Kelly sent an interesting menu card from somewhere at sea. It was a record of an intercollegiate celebration on September 27, at which 11 Old Blues and 16 Old Reds celebrated their schooldays together. The only toast in an after-dinner musical programme was "The Intercollegians"—a most suitable toast, under the circumstances, to bring together Red and Blue on their way to fight for the Red-White-and-Blue.

Alfred Chapple, M.A., B.Sc., is working in an aeroplane factory at Farnborough. There was great jubilation recently at the works because one of their machines brought down a Zeppelin.

Rev. N. J. Cocks, M.A., of Pitt Street, Sydney, has been elected Chairman of the Congregational Union of New South Wales. Rev. W. H. Raynor, B.A., of New Town, has been appointed to a similar position in Tasmania.

W. N. Parsons has been elected Mayor of Unley, and L. W. Grayson Mayor of Port Augusta West.

H. W. Hague has qualified for an Associate Membership of the Institute of Civil Engineers, London.

Eric Chinner, in a few lines of greeting which reached the school after the news of his death, said playfully that, as they were likely to "hop over the parapet" in a few days, that might be the last greeting from many of them. His words proved all too prophetic of his own end.

N. A. Webb, LL.B., has been appointed Stipendiary Magistrate at Port Pirie, and also Deputy President of the Industrial Court. We congratulate him, and wish him a long and happy period of office in these responsible positions.

The following is from a letter from Arthur E. Howard, who, with Gordon Short and H. L. Brose, has been interned in Ruhleben Camp since the outbreak of war:—"Last night Gordon Short, Henry Brose, and I had a little Old Prince Alfred Collegians' dinner. It wasn't a Grand Central dinner of course, but we revived old memories, and toasted the old school. I hope we picked the date all right. According to my reckoning the football match should be to-day—July 15. Farewell, for the present! You can afford to make the food parcels larger." The date was correct. The last sentence gives some suggestion of the extent of their menu.

N. W. Opie has left for the front in the service of the Y.M.C.A. Army Department. He has been appointed to a position in France.

Lieut. Hugo Throssell, V.C., has left Australia to return to active service. Old Reds will be glad to know that his health has been sufficiently restored to enable him to do so.

A. H. Harry, B.A., Senior Master of Geelong College, who has from time to time published poems in the school paper "Pegasus," was asked to publish a collection of his verses to be sold for patriotic purposes. This he consented to do, and the poems under the title "Feathers from Pegasus" have won such favour that a second edition has been printed.

News has reached us that the following Old Boys at the front have won their commission by service of especial merit in the field:—

R. L. Rhodes has been made a lieutenant. He was with the 10th Battalion at the landing at Gallipoli. He was wounded and sent to hospital in Malta. Later he went through a further course of training in Egypt, and was afterwards sent to France. Here he was severely wounded under circumstances that won him distinction and a commission.

J. H. Watts has been given his commission for efficient service in the field.

R. K. Wood has received his commission as lieutenant in the motor ambulance service, and has won distinction.

J. M. Maughan has won his commission by good work in the field. He was in the Intelligence Department in command of eight men, of whom all but two had been put out of action when last he wrote. He was then engaged in training another section.

R. G. Wilton was at Gallipoli with the 10th Battalion. He returned to Egypt and was attached to the 50th. He then took up machine gun work, and was exceptionally successful in the qualifying examinations. He has recently been appointed captain of a machine gun corps, and fought at Poizieres.

F. E. Throssell, who went with his brother, Lieut. Hugo Throssell, V.C., to Gallipoli, in the 10th Light Horse, has been promoted to lieutenant. He was wounded in Gallipoli and sent to hospital in England. He is now in France, where he won his commission, and where he had a narrow escape from death by a shrapnel bullet.

Obituary.

Arnold L. Steele died on August 18, 1916, after a long and tedious illness, which was borne with great fortitude. He entered the school in 1903, and after leaving school took up agricultural life. It was a matter of great regret to him that his weakness prevented him from joining his brothers Dave and Ken. in service at the front.

Alfred J. Birks died in America recently. He entered the school in 1884. Soon after leaving school he went to Paraguay, and lived in America until his death.

The death of Mr. John Roach has removed another of our our pioneers. He entered the school in 1870, the year after it was opened. An earlier generation will remember him as an active member of the Old Collegians' Association, who did so much to enliven many a gathering of both past and present scholars. His genial, kindly nature endeared him to all. He will be long remembered as one who did much to make the lives of his fellows happier and brighter.

Dr. T. C. Bennett died during the past term. He entered the school in 1877, and for part of 1881 was dux of the school. After leaving the College he went to Aberdeen University, where he graduated in medicine. He afterwards returned to South Australia, and practised his profession in several country districts.

THE LATE EDWIN BLACKLER COLTON.

During the past year the death roll of the College was heavy, and among those of our number who passed to the "great beyond" none will be more missed than he who was affectionately known to all as Ned Colton. With honour he bore a name honourably associated with the College since its foundation. From his youth up our late friend was intimately connected with Prince Alfred. As scholar, one of the founders of the Old Collegians' Association, and later a President of that body, Committeeman, Honorary Treasurer (succeeding his father, the late Sir John Colton), he worked enthusiastically for the advancement of the College, his work receiving great impetus from his high regard and passionate love for the school and pride in its history and achievement. An intimate friend writes:—"As a sport he was keen and clean; in business, the wise counsellor, ever faithful in his counsel; and on committees, punctilious to do the right thing in the right way. Now that he is no longer with us as an active worker, we feel that his social intercourse, his fine sense of justice, his earnest devotion and loving sympathy, his generous hospitality, and manly courage in face of almost insuperable difficulties and trials, and above all his sublime faith, are an inspiration to us all."

His life was gentle, and the elements
So mix'd in him, that Nature might stand up
And say to all the world: This was a man.

Extract from a Soldier's Diary.

France, 24/8/16.

At some unearthly hour on Saturday we started out and marched about four miles, where we camped in trenches. Here we proceeded to make ourselves comfortable, thinking we were there for the day, but in a very short time the order came to get ready to move right up.

Here was a job if you like! The whole battalion had to move off in single file up a communication trench, about two miles long or more. The way lay through the most desolate, shell-torn piece of country I have ever seen. The latter part of the journey was a nightmare. The trenches were non-existent—just a track leading from shell-hole to shell-hole, and on every side, and even in the trenches, dead men in various stages of decomposition. On the top of all this, we were subjected to a pretty heavy shell fire, which didn't add to the beauty of things. All the villages are just one huge dust heap, here and there a piece of timber sticking out like a grotesque arm. When at last we were in the front line the fun started. The Huns had chosen this time to carry on a particularly vicious strafe. One section of the trenches (which happened to be B Company's) came in for quite a lot of fun. The "hare-brained ones" concentrated on about 80 yards of it. In a very little time this portion was as unvaried in appearance as no-man's land. Shells were lobbing there with quite a clock-like precision of say one per second. I had the pleasure of crossing this place twice. Before I finished I had crossed it many times. On my way back I had several very near goes. I was buried about five times by shells. A big 9.2 lobs within a few yards of you. Everything goes up. First the sandbags and big pieces fall on your neck, then comes the small pieces, followed by a very fine, but very thick, cloud of dust. I was wet through with perspiration, and all this stuff falling on me. I was a picture; even my O.C. didn't recognise me. My pants were torn, my putties down, and I was dust and muck all over. At 10.30 that night we advanced under a barrage of fire and dug in about 200 yards out. Shrapnel was flying all round like hail. It is a wonder I wasn't hit. I was moving all over the place, right in the open.

Our barrage was wonderful. It means every battery we have concentrating on one long line. There was a terrific roar, and one long line of light. We had to dig in where this barrage had been. Some of the shell holes were 20 feet deep. The whole land is just one mass of shell-holes. You couldn't place your hand on any piece of ground that hadn't been turned over time after time.

I was hit by pieces of shell times without number. My "tin hat" was crumpled up by one piece and knocked down by it. Another piece cut my sleeve, other pieces bruised me. Taking it all through, I had some marvellous escapes. Our greatest trouble was water. Everything had to be brought out overland, and the Hun shelled our rear lines, and it couldn't be got through. We had to catch the rain in oil sheets, or go without for over 48 hours. Our fellows came up to the mark all right. They did well. I am very proud of my men, although there are very few of them left now.

Up till Sunday night we hadn't lost very many men, but Monday night we had to go in another 200 yards, and this time we got it. We had two machine guns and enfilade shrapnel from both flanks playing on us as soon as we left the trenches. Men were falling all over the place. I was directing the digging of a trench when I got hit. It gave me a very nasty shock.

After we had been out there for some little time it was decided that the position was too hot to hold, so we had to get back to the trenches we had left. I managed to walk back, and saw the men into the trenches, and then (with a disregard for shrapnel, snipers, or anything else) just wandered across no-man's land till I found Headquarters. Here I got Dr. Jeffries to tie me up. As soon as I was fixed up I went completely to the pack. It was the result of shell-shock. I followed Murray Fowler to a dressing station for about a mile, I suppose, crying to myself as if my heart would break; the tears were running down my face, and you would have thought I was a kid of two and had lost a lollie. It was most peculiar, and affected dozens of others in a similar manner.

No. 3 Southern General Hospital, West 11 Somerville, Oxford, England, 27/8/16.

At last I have reached the Mecca of all soldiers, "Blighty," as it is commonly called. On Friday afternoon I was packed up and put on a hospital train and transported to Calais. We couldn't see much of this place, as it was night, and everything was in darkness owing to aeroplane and Zeppelin raids. The town itself was just one big collection of tiled roofs, relieved here and there by a church spire. There seem to be miles of very fine docks though. We were put on a hospital ship, and turned in for the night. Next morning about 10 o'clock we set off. It was only a run of an hour and a half to Dover, but it was some trip. We were on a little high-speed contraption about 300 feet long with a beam of 30 feet. The Channel was very rough, and what the boat didn't go through she went over. I was down below in bed, so I didn't see much. Many were sea-sick. I was feeling tip-top the whole way, except for about two minutes just as land was sighted. However, in the two minutes I was sea-sick for the first time in my travels. I didn't mind the sensation, but I objected to the breaking of my record. At Dover we were put on another train and sent through to here. The country in the south is very pretty. It is fine, rolling, agricultural country. Everything is very trim and neat. All the towns and villages are delightful. Everything shows good order and taste. The roads are fine, not one that would compare unfavourably with our best. You find paved roads right out in the country. All the railway stations are big and roomy, and spotlessly clean.

As you get nearer London, among the suburbs, the scene changes. At first it is not unlike Mitcham and Unley, but as you get up to Kensington, Clapham, Chelsea, &c., you find dingy, dirty, poky houses, &c.

What I saw of the Thames was just a muddy stream lined with untidy wharves and barges. As you get out this side, nearer to Oxford, the country opens out again to trim fields and hedges. Everything strikes one as being in the miniature, and laid out and measured off exactly. The ordinary country is just like a big garden.

Somerville Hospital,

8th October, 1916.

Went for a fine walk this afternoon; visited Tom's Tower, the tower on Christ Church. There is one of the biggest bells in it in England. It has rung over Oxford for over a thousand years. At 9.5 p.m. it rings 101 times, the original number of students in the College at its inauguration. When it is rung properly it smashes all the windows in the tower. It isn't rung properly except on very special occasions. Now it is only struck. To get to it you have to climb 110 steps above the roof of the building. Originally it belonged to an Abbey, but when Wolsey built Christ Church he had the Abbey pulled down, and collared the bell. Wolsey, of course fell into bad odour, and passed off this mortal coil suddenly. Henry VIII. jumped his building. One of the towers which I have been up is supposed to be haunted by his (Wolsey's) ghost. I failed to see the ghost though.

"P.A.C. Chronicle" just to hand. I see one Rhodes still contributes.

"On September 1 we were reserve battalion, and our first job was to dig out a reserve trench—under fire—which had been pretty completely abolished by the German shell fire. The knowledge that the safety of the morrow is in the direct ratio to the work to be done is a wonderful stimulus to work, and our fellows dug like hell until the approaching dawn forced us to cease operations and wait until the results of the attack by the other three battalions should show where our support was most required. At about 7 a.m. my officer commanding received orders for our company to take all available tools up to the right battalion, so that they could consolidate their newly-taken position. The officer commanding with the guide went ahead with the first half of the company, whilst I followed close on his heels. We had close on a mile to go, taking into consideration the curves of the communication trenches, &c., and we were sighted by the sportive Boche early in the proceedings. He chased the party all the way with whiz-bangs (so called because that is all you hear of them) and high velocity, high explosive shell, which gives no warning at all, and is consequently very 'nervy.' We lost a few of the party here and there until I finally lost touch—owing to the casualties—with the leading party, and simply had to make the best of my way on without a guide. All I knew was that the tools were required in the front line of the captured position, and consequently figured it out that it was on me to get them there. We arrived at the front line held by our men previous to the attack. The communication trench had not yet been pushed forward to the captured position, although work on it was progressing as fast as possible.

"What was dug was only cover for a man crawling on hands and knees, and the last 50 yards had not been done at all. There was then left with me a sergeant, a corporal, and 15 men. The only thing for me to do was to crawl as far as possible and then get out and run the 50 yards. Of course the messengers had had to do the same thing to get information through, and consequently the Boche snipers, including one machine gun, were pretty well alive to the possibilities of the place, and I anticipated a fairly lively time. I told the sergeant to watch and see how I got on, and if the game seemed feasible to follow, and let the men run over one at a time until all got in. I got there all right and so did the party, with two exceptions—both leg wounds. One of my chaps subsequently went back and brought in the tools they dropped. The fellows were pleased to see us. We carried up five tools, picks and shovels, each. The Boche at that time was not worrying them very much, as I take it full particulars of what had happened had not yet reached his artillery. After a short breather I sent the party back the same way as we came and followed myself. In the back trench I met a runner carrying instructions for me to report to that battalion headquarters, where the lot of us were ordered back to where I had just been to work on consolidation and assist in the defence in case of a counter-attack.

"Over we went across the open again—third time for me and last—as they got the communication trench through that afternoon. A few moments after we arrived the Germans started to shell, and with the exception of half an hour the following morning, when they tried to rake themselves together to counter-attack, continued to do so in varying degrees of severity all that day and night, and the next day and night until our relief came on the following morning. After we finally settled down there, the Germans blew in all the saps and trenches in our immediate rear, with the idea that they could kick us out of our new position and leave us nothing to fall back on." All this is included in a quiet time.

Major L. W. Jeffries writes:—"We have just come out of the trenches for a few days' rest, before we have our second shot at the enemy. The artillery on both sides is indescribable. In the areas where the scrapping is going on, for about two miles on each side of the line, not a blade of grass is to be seen, nor a green leaf. The whole country as far as can be seen is like a huge ploughed field, pitted with shell holes as close as they can fit. Not a tree but is stripped of all its leaves and branches, leaving the shattered trunk standing; not a building stands; not a hedge is to be seen, and all roads and paths are lost in this sea of shell holes. For four days and three nights, I was in a deep dugout, a few hundred yards behind the lines, dressing the wounded. Shells burst all around and on top of us, but down there we were quite safe, although the lights were frequently blown out and the air filled with fumes and dust. I got no more than three hours sleep the whole time, and had to eat whenever I could. Washing and shaving were out of the question, and I was hardly fit for a drawing room appearance when we were relieved.

"One morning I had to go up through the firing line. Things were a bit uncomfortable up there, but I was glad that I had the chance of seeing what it was like. Another evening I tried to act as guide to some chaps with stretchers, up to one of our companies that had got isolated. We could not manage it, but we found a wounded 51st chap, in a deep dugout, and brought him back, so our labours had some result.

"The noise of the shells and guns is deafening and ceaseless, and if one had less work to do, would be pretty trying on the nerves. If you are moving about outside, you frequently have shells exploding pretty near you and hear the fragments whizzing by and hitting the trench. But it is best to be a bit philosophical and realise that by ducking and running you are just as likely to duck or run into a shell as away from it.

"At one time the enemy shelling was particularly hot all round our dressing station and the ambulance bearers could not get up to clear away the wounded; our dugout was full to overflowing, and the wounded were coming down all night, so that the trench was full for 40 or 50 yards of the poor beggars. There was nothing else to do but go out and dress them in the open, and we were all night doing this. I tell you this, because I thought perhaps you may receive some rather exaggerated reports of affairs. Men get pretty excited at times, and do not take a normal view of things. After all, the best reward for all one's work is the feeling of having done what is to be done and notfunking it.

"I felt very afraid of myself before we went into the stunt, fearing lest I should be unable to face even the modified dangers that a medical officer has to go through. But I shall not worry about myself again, and a chap gets a certain sense of elation when he has been able to prevent himself from becoming rattled in the midst of strenuous and hot times. My admiration for our infantry is unbounded. They have no dugout to seek shelter in, but have to lie out in shallow trenches and see their comrades shattered and mangled alongside them. Short of water and food, exhausted for want of sleep, with huge shells tearing the earth up all round, shrapnel showering upon them, and machine gun bullets whizzing over them. Yet they stick there, and when the word comes, leap out and advance in a steady line into the enemy trenches. How they do it is beyond my comprehension. But they do, and in my opinion all the 'kudos' in this war goes to the infantryman and his officer.

"My own A.M.C. men did wonderfully well and all deserve mention. It is difficult to pick anyone out.

"I saw Lance Rhodes wounded and did what I could for him. Capt. Murray Fowler also was treated and sent off through me. Both of them should do well. They have been spoken of most highly, by all concerned, for their great coolness and bravery."

The following is an extract from a letter from the late Pte. R. L. Williams, dated October 14:—"Well, I'm an old soldier now, and know the strain of battle. I tell you I felt mighty queer going into the front line at midnight, only 25 yards from 'Willie,' but the gods were merciful, and everything was quiet. Nothing happened to make us scared. Our trench was not very comfortable, being only an advanced post, right in front of the main line. If we make a noise, or show we are about 'Fritz' just drops a bomb, or more often a 'Minnie wafer' and up goes the whole job—me, sandbags, breeches, and boots. The front is a weird place at night; all along the line both sides send up lights (star shells) to see if the other is raiding or patrolling, and there is a rattle of machine guns all the time, but the time to see things fly is about 5 p.m., when both sides open up artillery and trench mortars to say 'good-night.' It is wonderful how one can dodge the big projectiles that come whizzing over, screaming all the way, and explode almost in one's ears; but we had only one casualty for the whole seven days we were in the line."

Tennis Notes.

Owing to the great number who entered for the various events, and the wet weather we experienced, the tennis tournament was not completed till the end of the second term, and the account of it had to be postponed for this issue of the Chronicle. There were record entries, and the quality as well as the quantity of the play was exceptionally good, so that great keenness was exhibited throughout the tournament in every grade.

G. Hone is to be especially congratulated on gaining both junior and senior championships, and winning the A grade singles. This, of course, was a most unusual performance. Swann was runner-up for the senior championship, N. Dawkins for the junior, and Burnard for the singles. L. Walsh won the B grade singles, winning the final from L. Wilson, and R. Lee and E. Story defeated M. Newbold and L. Walsh for the doubles. The Head Master presented the trophies in assembly at the end of the second term.

Practice for the intercollegiate tennis was keenly carried out, though football and wet weather at first interfered considerably with it. All in the practice team are to be commended for the way in which they maintained their enthusiasm right to the end. We now take the opportunity of thanking Messrs. Trott, Fowler, and Lavis, and the Head Master, who all so kindly placed their turf courts at the disposal of the team, thus materially aiding the team in its preparation.

CRITIQUE OF TENNIS TEAM.

(By the Captain).

Eaton, R. J.—Player with very free style, hitting too hard at times. Should watch his opponent more closely. Length of serve must be kept up. Good tosser.

Fowler, R. M.—Much improved. Has splendid low first serve. Runs in to net well. Should watch backhand strokes. Good volleyer.

Hone, G. M.—Easily best man in the team. Very strong backhand. Splendid at net and at volleying. Played brilliant game in the intercollegiate.

Hone, R. B.—Very strong server. Should steady down a little. Better in doubles than in singles. More care needed in backhand strokes.

Howard, S.—Greatly improved player. Good at net. Splendid first serve, but should improve length of second. Too anxious to win stroke on first return.

Prince Alfred Collegians' Lodge.

The anniversary festival of the Prince Alfred Collegians' Lodge was celebrated at the Freemasons' Hall on the 6th Oct. Wpl. Bro. W.R. Bayly presided over a splendid attendance of Brethren. He was supported by the Rt. Wpl. Deputy Grand Master (Bro. A. W. Piper, K.C.) and a numerous retinue of Grand Lodge Officers. In conformity with the usual custom in this Lodge, the retiring Master installed his successor, Bro. A. W. G. Pitt, the ceremony being rendered throughout in a most capable and finished manner. The Ritual embodying the Installation Degree was carried out in its entirety. There was nothing omitted, nor was there shown any undue haste in the delivery of the lines; but throughout there was an atmosphere of harmony, dignity, and "high seriousness," that was in every way pleasurable. Wpl. Bro. Bayly and the officers associated with him are to be warmly congratulated on the able manner in which they rendered the Installation Ceremonial. The following are the officers for the ensuing year:— Bro. A. W. G. Pitt, W.M.; Bro. R. O. Fox, S.W.; Bro. F. I. Grey, J.W.; Bro. H. Trewren, Chaplain; V.W. Bro. F. Lathlean, Treasurer; Bro. R. G. Neill, Secretary; V.W. Bro. J. R. Robertson, D.C.; Bro. E. J. N. Fisher, S.D.; Bro. P. E. Johnstone, J.D.; Bro. J. A. Haslam, Organist; Bro. C. P. Forwood, I.G.; Stewards—Bros. A. H. Dobbie, A. C. Edwards, C. W. L. Muecke, J. F. Ward, H. Thomas, F. Smith, J. H. Chinner, A. H. Hill; Bro. A. D. Sutherland, Tyler; Wpl. Bro. W. R. Bayly, I.P.M.

The Brethren afterwards dined together, and the remainder of a pleasant hour was occupied in listening to a flow of eloquence.

The Wpl. Master gave the Loyal Toast, and subsequently, in a brief sentence, proposed the sentiment of "The Grand Lodge."

The Deputy Grand Master (Wpl. Bro. A. W. Piper, K.C.) responded. He was glad to have had an opportunity of being there that evening and witnessing a beautifully rendered ceremony. The Lodge had a high reputation, and a high standard, too, not only of form and method, but also of sincerity and spirit. They all extended their warmest congratulations to Bro. Bayly on the quality of the service which he had rendered to the Lodge. Their happy gathering that night, he was pleased to think, might be accepted as a bright augury for the coming year, when, through the bravery and self-sacrifice of our soldiers, we might secure a real and lasting peace. It was somewhat premature to consider the problem of the order of things when peace should be restored. Their present duty was to utilise their resources to the utmost in order to end the strife as speedily as possible. There was a call to every man and woman to do his or her best according to their respective con-sciences. As Freemasons, they should carry the professions of the craft into daily practice. Freemasonry should be a leaven of good among the people, and help to guide them in right thinking and sincerity of action. (Applause.) Bro. Piper congratulated the newly-installed Master, and predicted for him a successful term of office.

V.W. Bro. F. Lathlean, in proposing the toast of the Worshipful Master, remarked that Wpl. Bro. Pitt had honestly earned his high position. He was a careful student of the ritual, and had spared no pains in order that he might give it due effect. He had no doubt that their newly-installed Master would justify his selection for the honour.

At the December meeting, the brethren of the Lodge took the opportunity of presenting Bro. R. G. Neill with a silver salver as a token of appreciation of the work he had done as Secretary of the Lodge almost since its inception. In making the presentation on behalf of the members, Bro. W. R. Bayly said that it had first been proposed that the recognition should come from the Past Masters only, as being specially privileged to know the value of Bro. Neill's services to the Lodge, but so many of the members had expressed their desire to be associated with them in the matter that the Past Masters had felt bound to allow private members to associate themselves with the movement. The speaker spoke of the enthusiastic response he had received from every member to whom he had mentioned the matter, and confidently assured Bro. Neill that accompanying the small token they were giving him there would be the entire goodwill and he might truly say the affection of the members. Bro. Neill replied in the modest manner which is so characteristic of the man, and assured the members that what he had done for the Lodge had been indeed a labour of love, but that to know he had succeeded in gaining and retaining the goodwill of his brethren would even enhance the value of their handsome gift.

United Collegians' Chapter.

Ex Æmulis Comites.

The ceremony of installing the Three Principals Elect—Companions A. L. White, J. W. Packard, and A. A. L. Rowley—was performed by Officers of the Supreme Grand Chapter—M. E. Comps. J. R. Robertson, W. Herbert Jones, and W. Brindal—at the Freemasons' Hall on Wednesday evening, November 22. There was a very large gathering of Royal Arch Masons, and the proceedings were characterised by that air of cordiality, tempered by a due solemnity, which is the distinguishing feature of these gatherings.

The newly-installed First Principal invested the following companions with their jewels of office:—E. Companions R. G. Neill, A. J. Archer, E. Bendall, A. E. H. Evans, A. S. Lewis, W. H. Selway, F. Lathlean, C. W. Rutt.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Old Scholars' Association was held at Jackman's Cafe on Monday, October 30, when Mr. W. D. Taylor (President) occupied the chair. It had been thought a fitting opportunity to say good-bye to the many Old Reds in camp. The flattering attendance of members included about 35 in khaki, who were present at the invitation of the Committee. The annual report and balance sheet were adopted on the motion of Mr. Taylor. There is no necessity to deal in detail with this here, as a copy has already been sent to each member. The election of officers for the ensuing year resulted as follows:—President, Mr. W. D. Taylor, Vice-Presidents, Messrs. A. L. Rowley, A. N. Day, and N. A. Webb; Treasurer, Mr. A. G. Collison; Representatives on College Committee, Messrs. R. O. Fox, W. Lathlean, F. N. Simpson, A. S. Lewis, Tom Steele, J. H. Burgess, and H. W. A. Miller; Committee, Messrs. G. S. Fowler, C. R. Davies, L. A. Mander, W. P. Murray, J. R. Robertson, W. E. Gray, and Henry Thomas; Auditor, Messrs. R. G. Neill and C. Viner Smith; Secretaries, Messrs. L. B. Shuttleworth and H. W. A. Miller.

The two Association Scholarships expired at the end of December. In anticipation of that, a ballot for the right of nominating fresh scholars was held. This resulted in favor of No. 180 (Mr. F. W. Kay, of Kangarilla), and No. 286 (Mr. F. A. Simpson, of the Engineer-in-Chief's Department).

The meeting was followed by a Smoke Social, when the soldiers were the guests of the Association.

Our New Committeemen.

Members will notice on reading the account of the Association's Annual Meeting that there are three new faces on our Committee, viz., Messrs. Henry Thomas, W. P. Murray, and W. E. Gray.

Mr. W. P. Murray entered College in 1892, and was in attendance for 6 years. Upon leaving he joined the staff of the Norwich Union Fire Insurance Coy., where his good work finally earned for him the appointment of chief clerk. After three years in this position he was appointed superintendent of agencies, but after two years in that capacity he left the Norwich Union to take over the management of the Sun Fire Office, which position he now occupies. Cricket and lawn tennis have received strong support from Mr. Murray. He acted as secretary of the Glen Osmond Lawn Tennis Club for seven years, and was vice-captain and a regular playing member of that club's first-class pennant team. In cricket he was a prominent bat for Glen Osmond Cricket Club for some years.

Mr. W. E. Gray represents the younger members of the Association on the Committee. He entered the College in 1912, and almost immediately won his way to the front in sports, in which department of school life he had an exceedingly brilliant career, as will be seen from the following:—Running—In Intercollegiate Sports Team, 1913, 1914, 1915; Football—In College First Eighteen, 1914, 1915 (Vice-Captain 1915); Cricket—In College First Eleven, 1914, 1915 (Captain 1915). He was made a Prefect in 1915, and was also a member of the Committee of the Christian Union up to the time of his leaving school in December, 1915. Mr. Gray is now on the staff of the Union Bank.

Prince Alfred Old Collegians' Assocn.

Patron—The Head Master.

President—Mr. W. D. Taylor.

Vice-Presidents—Messrs. A. A. L. Rowley, A. N. Day, and Noel A. Webb.

Hon. Treasurer—Mr. A. G. Collison.

Representatives on College Committee—Messrs. J. H. Burgess, W. Lathlean, A. S. Lewis, F. N. Simpson, T. Steele, R. O. Fox, and H. W. A. Miller.

Hon. Auditors—Messrs. R. G. Neill and C. Viner Smith.

Committee—Messrs. J. R. Robertson, L. A. Mander, C. R. Davies, Geo. Fowler, W. E. Gray, Henry Thomas, and W. P. Murray.

Joint Secretaries—H. W. A. Miller, c/o A.M.P. Society; L. B. Shuttleworth, c/o Shuttleworth & Letchford, King William St. Melbourne Branch—C. A. E. Sullivan, Stock Exchange Club, Melbourne, Hon. Sec.

Sydney Branch—Alfred G. Newman, Vickery's Chambers, Pitt Street, Sydney, Hon. Sec.

The objects of the Association are:—To keep Old Boys, wherever they may be, in touch with one another and with the boys at the school; also to foster and maintain their interest in the school.

The P.A.C. Chronicle, of which a large part is devoted to matters of special interest to Old Boys, is forwarded to each member of the Association.

A dinner is held annually, at a time which is thought likely to give as many Old Boys as possible an opportunity of meeting one another; and social gatherings are held whenever any occasion arises that makes them desirable.

The Association gives annually to the school the Old Collegians' Scholarship, of the value of fifteen guineas, and donates five guineas per annum to the Sports Fund. Two Scholarships tenable for two years are also awarded and are balloted for by the members.

The subscription is six shillings per annum. It is suggested that Country Members should remit sufficient to cover four years' subscriptions or become Life Members by payment of £5 5s. Any Old Boy wishing to become a member can do so by forwarding his name and address to the Head Master, or to any member of the staff, or to one of the Secretaries.
