Editorial

How often have we heard the expression, "It's not Cricket," held up as one of the outstanding examples of "The Old School Tie" tradition. The truth of the matter is that the ideal of "It's not Cricket" is not the sole right of any supposedly privileged classes, which are associated with "The Old School Tie," but, actually, the right of all peoples of British nationality.

As the Olympic Games were to the life of the ancient Greeks, so is the game of Cricket of importance to the populace of the British Empire. Cricket may be termed the national game of the British Empire, and in its play may be observed many of the characteristics of the British way of life. To outsiders, Cricket, even at its brightest, appears a terribly slow game, but, then, it is not compatible with British nature to undertake and execute things hurriedly or rashly. In the staid, unruffled progress of a game of Cricket, (as it is usually played), can be seen the slow but decisive course of action, doggedness of purpose, the exhibition of courage and, if need be, aggressiveness, and, above all, the dominant spirit of fairness and right, all of which, at one time or another, typify the British race.

To Australians, New Zealanders, South Africans, Indians, and West Indians, the game of Cricket is a source of union with the Mother Country, and its continuance bears promise of being one of the strongest ties of Empire kinship.

In this year of grace, 1947, we are blessed with the first visit for ten years of an English Cricket Team. And so Cricket is once more in the air, and thousands, including many whose knowledge of the game, one may think, is extremely scanty, are flocking to the cricket grounds. "Test Fever" is devastating in effects. Besides its traditional influence in increasing the mortality of office-boys' grandmothers, the Test Match atmosphere has a distinct uplift on the morale of the people. This has been seen recently in the almost holiday atmosphere that the Englishmen are bringing with them to the various cities on their itinerary.

We may thus see, that so far from being mere entertainment, Cricket is part of our national life, and the over-all spirit of fair play and sportsmanship is the element which finds such great expression in our way of living.

The principal ideal of "It's not Cricket," has no right, therefore, to be condemned as part of "The Old School Tie" tradition. Although he may not realise it the most raucous-voice barracker on the Hill judges the Game of Cricket, and the Game of Life, as much on the "It's not Cricket" basis as the most select patron of the Members' Enclosure. (Usually the former is louder in his acclamation of good play, both on and off the field.) "Cricket," says J. H. Fingleton, in his great book "Cricket Crisis," "is one of the good and clean things of life, and it is the application of the broad principles of this, our national game, that enables us in no small way to "play the game" in the Game of Life, over which the one great Umpire presides, and whose final right it is to say "Out!" or "Not Out!"

School Notes

Another year has gone! I wonder how much we have all done of what we meant to do when we started it!

We did not win the cricket! Congratulations to Saint Peter's on a good team. No one seems to know why our team did so badly in the first innings. These things happen.

Congratulations to Colin Hockney on a good fighting century and on a piece of fine work in captaining his team so well. It is also not often that a substitute wicket-keeper does as well as Hockney did all through the match.

We are all very sorry for Pittman, and hope he will soon be well again.

Everyone agrees that the Prep. Concert was a good show. Let us hope they will do it again each year.

The Prep. Sports gave everyone a very enjoyable afternoon. The Little Brothers' Race has become quite an institution.

We were all very proud of the Cadet Corps at the Ceremonial Parade. It was very steady, good work, and impressed the Commandant very favourably.

Professor L. A. Mander, on 14th November, gave one of the best talks to the Big School Assembly that we have had for a long time. He is an "Old Boy" of the years around 1914. He has a very good memory, and treasures up quite a number of school events, some humorous and some very striking, that made talking with him most interesting.

On 9th December about 300 boys and masters gathered in the Assembly Hall from 1.30 to 1.50 p.m. to hear Mr. William Herbert, the famous Australian tenor, sing. Mr. Herbert some years ago used to be a pupil of Trinity Grammar School, Victoria, under Mr. Mitchell, and it was a chance meeting with his old master that gave so many of us the pleasure of hearing Mr. Herbert sing. A beautiful voice and a very gracious manner! Mr. Herbert has already won fame, and all felt that he would go much further still in the profession he has chosen.

On 21st November Rev. A. D. McCutcheon, the President-Elect of the Methodist Church for 1947, came to visit the School. He spent a few hours with us, had lunch with the boarders and was very interested in all that he saw. I am sure it is a good thing for the President to begin his year of office with some knowledge of the School and its work. Let us hope that other Presidents in years to come will follow Mr. McCutcheon's example.

The Commonwealth Institute of Accountants, through the courtesy of their State Registrar, Mr. C. W. L. Muecke, an old Collegian, have offered a scholarship covering all examination and supervision fees of the Institute. They are also sending complimentary copies of "The Australian Accountant."

BOB MURPHY

For the second time in this year we have been saddened by the loss of one who had his place among us, and until just a few weeks before had come and gone about the School. It is very unusual for death to come to a boy during his school days. Bob Murphy had not been really well for some considerable time, and in August his health was so uncertain that his parents decided that he had better leave school in the hope that rest and treatment would improve his condition. It was not to be so. Only a few weeks ago he passed away quite suddenly. The whole School felt his going. We would again like to assure Mr. and Mrs. Murphy of our very real sympathy with them in this great sorrow.

THE GOVERNOR'S VISIT

On 7th November His Excellency the Governor Sir Willoughby Norrie, accompanied by Lady Norrie, paid us the honour of visiting the School. His Excellency arrived at 2.45, and was received by a guard of honour drawn from the Cadet Corps. He inspected the guard and then the Viceregal party was shown over the School by the Headmaster. The visitors made a very thorough inspection of all classes at work in the Big School and in the Prep. At about 4 p.m. His Excellency and Lady Norrie had tea in the Boarders' Library, and met all the members of the staff. After tea the visitors watched House cricket matches and tennis practice. The visitors left about 5 p.m.

The School was thrilled next day to find that His Excellency had given them a half holiday. We were all very pleased to feel that Sir Willoughby and Lady Norrie were sufficiently interested in our work to spend an afternoon at the School as they did. It was, I am sure, good for all our boys to feel that the representative of the King in our State was personally in touch with the School and had seen all that we were doing.

We hope the visit was a pleasant outing for their Excellencies. To us it was both pleasant and inspiring, and an honour for which we are all grateful.

Annual School Service

The service was again held in the Kent Town Methodist Church, and must have been an inspiration to many. The trustees of the Church acceded to our request to hold the service on the evening of 8th December, and for some of the older ones in the congregation it was like old times to see the church crowded out.

Rev. C. J. Perry, the School Chaplain, conducted the service, and a pleasing innovation was a School choir conducted by Mr. R. May. They sang very nicely a carol and an anthem, and led the singing of the hymns.

The School Captain (C. F. Hockney) read the lesson from 2 Kings, chapter 18, verse 21, to chapter 19, verse 1.

THE HEADMASTER'S ADDRESS

For some of you school life is almost at an end. You are thinking of the days ahead, when you will be free, free from some of the restraints that school has put up on you, and freer in the life of business or the University from the control your parents and your home have had over you. To some extent the same is true for those whose school days are not ending. Each year brings you one step nearer to what you sometimes feel is the complete freedom of adult life. As we look back tonight, behind you lie your home and your school. You have been urged to do certain things because they are right, and often you have felt rise within you the question "Why?" You have been taught to think of God and His Will for this His world; sometimes things that have looked so pleasant have been branded as wrong and not to be done by those who follow the Christ. I wonder how life looks to you tonight! And how is it going to look when you meet the times of testing. For remember, freedom bring responsibility. You will have to decide things for yourself. What are you going to do about it then? Which side will win, the right or the wrong?

It was because I wanted to talk about these things that I asked the Captain of the School to read to you that story about King Hezekiah. Seven hundred years before Christ he was king of that little scrap of land called Judah. He had been a good man and a good king, and had done his utmost to build up the religion of his people. But disaster came upon him. Down from the North came the armies of Assyria to attack Egypt. All the little kingdoms in their track were wiped out. Syria had gone; the larger northern Jewish Kingdom of Israel had disappeared; and now the generals of Sennacherib, the great Assyrian king, were encamped against Jerusalem. With insults and blasphemy they demanded the surrender of the city. No one had any illusions about the fate of Hezekiah. To surrender meant slavery for him and for his people, and to fight on seemed impossible. However, urged on by the great prophet Isaiah, Hezekiah decided to be a king and not to be a slave: to fight on and, if necessary, to die fighting. Of course, you know the end of the story: how plague broke out among the Assyrians, and miraculously Hezekiah did remain a king. But in our story this was all unknown. Hezekiah had to face a great decision. There was his choice: surrender or fight; be a slave or be a king.

In the Book of Isaiah this story is told again, and there it says that the demand was in a letter, "and Hezekiah received the letter and went up into the house of the Lord and spread it before the Lord." There you have the secret of Hezekiah's heroic decision, for it was heroic. It seemed as hopeless for little Judah to defy Assyria as for Belgium to stand alone against Hitler's Germany. Hezekiah had to face a choice of paths: one would lead to slavery (and it seemed impossible not to follow it); the other would leave him a free man and a king. It would almost certainly lead to his death, but it would be honourable and king-like to die fighting. What I want you to get clear is that Hezekiah found courage to make his decision in God and in God alone.

But all this happened over two thousand years ago. What has it to do with us? Well there are just two things in this story about which I want you to think. First, and very briefly: Never make the mistake of thinking that serving God will act as a kind of insurance policy against troubles in life. Hezekiah was a good king and had devoted his life to God's service, and yet troubles came on him. And so they may on you, however good your life may be. There is no law in God's universe to say that His servants shall find comfort or prosperity in life. God is not interested in our ease or prosperity, but in our character. He desires to develop in us spiritual powers that somewhere in His universe can serve His great purposes.

Second: we are all often faced with decisions like this of Hezekiah's—demands to do something or to leave it undone; to say something or not to say it. And many of these decisions will have results like Hezekiah's—we shall be kings or we shall be slaves.

You will meet many people whose ideas of purity, honesty and truth are not those of your home or school. You will have to decide whether you will hold to what you know to be right or go with the crowd—and that is so easy. On your decision will depend whether you are to be a king or a slave: a king in control of your own life and actions, or a slave bound by your own desires or the demands of others. Your ambition to get on in the world may prompt you to take a short cut to wealth by doing or saying something that is not quite straight, and it is so easy to say, "O every one does it!" I wish I could make you feel that every such decision is like the Assyrian demand on Hezekiah. You are being asked to surrender something, some standard of truth or honesty, some ideal that you have always held high. However cleverly it may be disguised, the real question is always, "Are you to be a slave or a king?" For however much you may gain in life by some word or deed that is not quite straight, that lie or that deed is your master forever, and your slavery grows ever harder as time goes on.

We are here tonight as members of a great school. In every generation of boys there are a few to whom the school owes much; but most of us leave school feeling we have done so little and gained so much. And yet it need not be so. A school is great not because of its wealth, its good examination results, its prowess in games, or its social prestige, but because it has housed and sent forth into life many who as boys and as men have faced their problems as Hezekiah faced his. We feel that we have behind us in our school something big and strong for the right. This is because in the past there have been so many in our school who have simply and unobtrusively lived a life of trust in God—a life that made them kings and not slaves, kings with no allegiance but to God. Will boys of thirty, forty, fifty years hence feel as we do about the school and its tradition? I hope they will, but if they do it will only be so if we or most of us meet our problems and make our decisions as Hezekiah made his when he "received the letter and went up into the house of the Lord and spread it before the Lord."

Speech Day

The Annual School Break-up was held at the Adelaide Town Hall on the evening of 13th December. There was a very fine attendance of parents and friends, as well as the big assemblage of boys in the centre block. The President of the Conference, Rev. R. H. Davidson, D.C.M., presided. The prizes were distributed by the Premier of South Australia, Hon. Thomas Playford, M.P. Dr. M. W. Evans, President of the Old Collegians' Association, proposed a vote of thanks to the Premier for his kindness in distributing the prizes.

THE HEADMASTER'S REPORT

Mr. Premier, Mr. President, members of the College Council, Ladies and Gentlemen, I have the pleasure and the honour of presenting to you the report on the working of Prince Alfred College for the year 1946.

It is first necessary to speak of the results gained by our boys in the Public Exams. of 1945. In these tests our boys did well. In the Leaving Honours again one of our boys, R. E. Steele, held the first place on the General Honours List. Altogether 18 of our boys gained the Certificate. We had 11 boys on the General Honours List with 27 credits among them, and six of our boys (P. F. Vawser, B. H. Smith, J. B. West, B. A. Chartres, G. B. Markey and R. G. Ferrett) won Bursaries out of the 12 that are given. In the Leaving there were some good passes and 48 of our boys gained or completed the Certificate. In the Intermediate we had considerably fewer candidates than usual. One boy, R. C. Bennett, won an Intermediate Exhibition, and 34 of our boys gained or completed the Certificate.

There are, of course, many boys in the School who are not yet ready for the Public Examination. Their work, as judged by our own final examinations, is good. There were few who failed to reach a reasonable standard, and many who did very well. In fact, the work of the VI and IV forms promises good results in the next few years.

In the Preparatory School the work has gone on quietly and very well. Here the outside standard by which we can judge ourselves is the report of the Inspector who examines III a boys for the awarding of the Progress Certificate. 44 of our boys were eligible for the Certificate, and to nearly all the Certificate was awarded. The variety and excellence of the work of the lower part of the Prep. School was displayed about a week ago at the Parents' Day held at the Prep. School. I am sure a large number of you were there and saw for yourselves what even the very little ones can do. You will, I know, join with me in congratulating Mr. Mitchell and his staff on the fine showing that the Prep. made on that very enjoyable afternoon.

The year has seen changes on the Staff. Mr. G. A. Dillon and Mr. B. H. Leak have joined our ranks in the Upper School, while Mr. W. L. Davies, Mr. S. Williams and Mr. A. H. Dennis have returned from various forms of war service. In the Prep., Mr. Maynard Close came back to us after three years as a prisoner of war in Europe and Mrs. Dennis has had charge of the very little boys, while Mr. Pereira and Mr. Dixon replaced some of our lady helpers of the war years. All these have done, and are doing, very good work. They have quickly made themselves at home in their new surroundings.

Unfortunately, Mrs. Dennis wishes to relinquish her work and begin housekeeping in earnest. We say farewell to her with sincere regret, and very real gratitude for the excellent work she has done.

At the end of last year Dr. L. L. Davey gave up general practice, and after twelve years of devoted service to his old School relinquished his position as School Medical Officer for the Boarders. It would be hard to over-estimate what we owe to Dr. Davey's unremitting care, and I welcome this opportunity of saying how deeply grateful we are to him for all that he has done for the School and its boys. To replace Dr. Davey was no easy task; but we were fortunate in securing the help of Dr. C. T. Piper. Dr. Piper, himself an old boy, has taken the School work very much to his heart and has done excellent work this year among the boys. We are very grateful to him, and I hope that his tenure of the office will be as happy and at least as long as Dr. Davey's.

Among Staff changes I must speak of our old friend, the College Bursar. Mr. Langley has been continuously in the service of the School since the beginning of 1897. It is not the lot of many to give to a school 50 years of unbroken service, nor service of such a character as Mr. Langley's service to Prince Alfred College has been. He came to the School as a young man, fresh from the great school of Kingswood in Bath, to teach classics and French. I can remember him well as he was in those days, dark-haired, dark-eyed, and a keen cricketer. I can remember him so well, ladies and gentlemen, because I was a small new boy in his Form on his first day at the College. He carried on as Classics Master until 1910, when he was appointed Second Master, in succession to Mr. W. R. Bayly. At the end of 1931 Mr. Langley retired from teaching and became the first full-time Bursar of the School. His work as Bursar has been carried out with the same thoroughness and exactness which characterised all his work in the classroom. Mr. Langley is no longer a young man—no one can serve the School for 50 years and still be young—and he has asked to be relieved of his duties, which advancing years are threatening to make burdensome. Mr. Langley will not actually give up until February next, and then the real farewells will be said. All will miss him, his neat incisive English style and his ready wit. May I, on behalf of the Council, the School, and his many friends among old boys and the boys' parents, wish him many years of health and happiness to enjoy in retirement his memories of a life of fine and devoted service given to a School that will long remember him. The School will feel strange to me next year. I have been at Prince Alfred for just over half of my life, and for the first time it will be a School without Mr. Langley. I shall miss him very much, a life-long friend without whose help, friendship, and advice my own work would often have been much harder.

The Council has decided to appoint Mr. C. R. Davies as Bursar to succeed Mr. Langley. I am sure that all friends of the School will welcome to this office a man with Mr. Davies' long connection with the School, and his intense enthusiasm for Prince Alfred College and all its works. Mr. Davies' resignation as a Master will be a real loss to the teaching staff, and his place as cricket coach for our First Eleven will be hard to fill. I have shared many experiences at the School with Mr. Davies, and am looking forward to his help in this new capacity.

All the usual activities of the School have been maintained, and in general the year has been one of steady effort and progress. You have heard the Captain of the School's report on the games, and can judge from that of their success. The Cadet Corps, the Scouts, the Debating Society, and all our other organisations have had a good year, and I wish to express my thanks to all the Masters and others whose work has made this possible.

At the beginning of the year Mr. Rolland May, Mus.Bac., joined our staff to teach the piano and take charge of the singing and music generally, both in the Big School and in the Prep. Mr. May has thrown himself wholeheartedly into this work and is quickly building up an interest in music among the boys. During most of the year, at lunch-time on Fridays, he has been giving recitals, sometimes alone and sometimes assisted by other musical friends. That the attendance at these recitals has often been over 200, and has even reached 300, tells how interested the boys are becoming in Mr. May's work. His choir, last Sunday at the School service and the singing this evening, are further evidence of his success. We are all very grateful to Mr. May and hope that he will for many years continue to maintain a sound musical tradition in the School.

Once a week, throughout the year, some of the boys have again had illustrated lectures from Mrs. A. S. Johnston on the history and meaning of Art. These talks are of great value, and I know they are much appreciated by many of our boys. To Mrs. Johnston, also, I feel that we owe much gratitude.

Again this year Mr. Ray Smith's VI u Science classes have produced the "Prince Alfred Science Journal." Last year was its first appearance, and this year's issue is, if anything, a better volume than the first. I know that many friends of the School are delighted with this work, and especially because it is to so large an extent the work of the boys. They have had guidance and inspiration from Mr. Smith, but all the work of writing, editing and producing has been done by the boys' committee. I am, and I am sure you all are, proud of this "Journal." I would like to see a similar magazine published on the literary side of the School.

Our weekly collections have been continued this year, and though, since the end of the war, they have fallen off somewhat and we have missed a week now and then, still we have, through the year, given over £250 to various patriotic and charitable funds. This, I feel, is well worth while, both for the assistance it can give to some institutions that need help so badly, and also because it is so good for our boys to get into the habit of giving and doing something for other people.

At each Speech Day during the last few years I have reported the founding of prizes by parents who wished in this way to preserve in the School the memory of a son who had fallen in the war. This year again I have to report that Mr. and Mrs. Ralph DeGaris have endowed the Cup for the Senior Hurdle Race in memory of their son Bill; that Mr. and Mrs. Furness have endowed a prize to be given each year in Music, in memory of their son Jack; and that Mrs. Harley has endowed, in memory of her son Kenneth, the prize that is given for the best original short story or play. Bill DeGaris, Jack Furness and Ken Harley were all lost while serving with the R.A.A.F. We are happy to have these boys' names commemorated in this way, but again would like to assure the parents of our sympathy in their sorrow.

The School has lost a good friend recently in Mr. Morley Bath, for many years the Managing Director of Rigby's Ltd. Mr. Bath died early in the year, and just recently his family have arranged, with the Council's consent, that the prizes which are given for the best literary and artistic contribution to the "Chronicle" shall from now on be known as the Morley Bath Memorial Prize. The School appreciates very much their thoughtfulness, and is happy to have the name of so old a friend as Mr. Bath kept alive in the School in this way.

Since last Speech Day we have lost one very well-known old boy of the School. I refer to the late Hon. Joseph Darling, M.L.C., of Tasmania. As a world-famous international cricketer, Joe Darling was for many of us older ones the idol of our youth; and there are still legends about the School concerning what happened on the day when Darling, from the centre pitch, hit a cricket ball through Mr. Chapple's study window. For many years Mr. Darling had lived in Tasmania and had gained high repute as a member of their Legislative body. His death is another break in the chain that links us to the earlier days of the School.

Two Old Boys of the School have been honoured by His Majesty the King during this year. Here in Adelaide Mr. E. W. Holden was knighted early in the year. Sir Edward is a very well-known figure in South Australia, and especially among Prince Alfred folks. To those of my time he is an old schoolfellow; to some of you he is one of South Australia's leading and most successful business men; to all of us he is a citizen of character and reputation in whose success and honours we feel pleasure. Mr. E. H. Stephens has lived for many years in South Africa, and for a large number of these years in Basutoland. He was honoured with the O.B.E. for his fine work in the war effort of Basutoland and Natal. These are places very far from Australia, and they sound very foreign to us; but the newspapers of Maseru speak of Mr. Stephens' work in a way which makes us feel proud that he belongs to our School.

The Parents and Friends' Association has had a good year. It has held three meetings to discuss educational problems, and a very successful dance. It has served, and is serving, a very useful purpose in bringing parents of our boys into touch with one another and with the School. There is a very friendly and co-operative spirit manifested in all its doings.

The Old Scholars' Association has had a much fuller year than it has had for some years. For the first time since 1939 the Association has held all its usual social functions and arranged its normal round of sporting events.

This return to its pre-war programme has put new life into the Association, as was shown by the unusually large attendances at all its meetings. The Secretaries are still at work trying to complete the lists of Old Boys who served and of those who fell in this Second World War. They will welcome any help that anyone can give them in their efforts to make these lists complete.

During these recent war years I have had frequently to speak of the death of many of our boys who had been serving in the Forces. It is unusual for death to take a boy out of the active life of the School, but this year has been made sad for most of us by two such happenings. In June we lost Peter Piper. His illness was tragically short. It was only about ten or or twelve days from the time he was known to be really ill until he was gone from us. Acute Leuchaemia ran a very rapid course. He was an alert, cheerful, capable boy, who bore his distressing illness with unusual courage. To Dr. Cyril Piper and Mrs. Piper, his parents, we again express the deep sympathy of the whole School, and hope that in time they, with us, may come to have mainly memories of his courage, his cheerful ways, and his happiness in his work and in his games. For a year or more Bob Murphy had not been really well, and at the end of the second term his health was so uncertain this his parents took him from School to try to get him better. Unfortunately, he became worse, and not many weeks ago he died. His death, like that of Peter Piper, cast a shadow on the whole School. To Mr. and Mrs. Murphy also we extend sincere sympathy in this great sorrow.

On 7th November His Excellency the Governor and Lady Norrie paid us the honour of visiting the School. They came to see the boys at work and play, and they did see both very completely. Every boy in the School felt that it meant much to him to realize that the Governor of the State was interested in what he was doing. The visit was a very pleasant interlude in a busy term of school work. The boys were thrilled that His Excellency granted them a half holiday; and I am very grateful to Sir Willoughby and Lady Norrie for giving us so much of their time. The visit was, I hope, for their Excellencies a pleasant outing; for us it was both a pleasure and an inspiration.

One very pleasing gift has been made to the School this year—Mr. F. W. Hercus has promised us a lathe, which will enable us to do some metal work. This machine, with the necessary motor and all complete, is to be installed before we begin school next year. I am sure that there are a number of boys who will find much pleasure and profit from its use. It is a fine thing to find parents of our boys so interested in the development of the School, that of their own accord they come forward with such valuable and useful gifts. We are deeply grateful to Mr. Hercus for this generous help. It may well be that this gift may stimulate some other friend of the School to help us in some other way. I hope it does.

Perhaps the most important event of the year, and that by which 1946 will be remembered in years to come, has been the launching of the Prince Alfred College War Memorial Appeal. Last year I spoke to you about the need of the School for more and better accommodation in almost every department of its work, and of the Committee that had been set up to enquire into the ways and means of fulfilling these needs. The Committee settled down to its work early this year, and was very soon faced with the additional and bigger question, "How are we to commemorate the service and the sacrifice of our old boys in this war?" I have spoken to most of you about this on other occasions, but I make no apology for doing it again. The Committee very soon decided to combine these two aims and to plan for the erection of buildings which will serve a twofold purpose. They will help the School to carry out its work more adequately for its increased numbers and they will also serve to keep before the eyes of all a reminder of the devotion and courage of the boys who have gone. There were hundreds who answered the call to the colours, about 1,200 in all, and of these about one in every ten has not come back. Many of these were boys who went with a care-free courage and an intense desire to do something with the life they loved. That life they gave, and it is this giving we must commemorate. I say "must," ladies and gentlemen, for it is a task in which I feel we cannot afford to fail.

The Appeal Committee has asked for £25,000. It has already over £5,000 in hand. It may be two, three or four years before we will be allowed to erect these buildings. In the meantime this fund MUST grow. It will need help, your help, my help, the help of every friend of the School. Prince Alfred has never been a wealthy School, but it has always been rich in the love of its old boys and friends; and, ladies and gentlemen, love is generous.

I leave this appeal with you. Many of you have already given, and given generously. To all of you I say that it is a privilege to help to do something for generations yet to come. There are many of us who dream dreams of the buildings we would endow if we had the means to do it, but very few of us have the means; and our buildings remain in the land of dreams; they are very truly "castles in the air." But there is the chance for a multitude of gifts, some small, some big, to make our dreams come true. I confess I have done a lot of dreaming about Prince Alfred—dreams that I hope my successors will have the pleasure of seeing come true. I hope that all of us will do all we can to make our War Memorial buildings not only the dream of a few enthusiasts, but a reality.

May I close, as usual, with a word of sincere thanks to all who have helped to make this year a success? The members of the Council have always been kind and tolerant, and the Secretary (Mr. David Waterhouse) has been, as usual, very helpful to me in every way. The Masters, one and all, and especially my good friend Mr. Potts, the second Master, and Rev. C. J. Perry, the Chaplain, both of whom, by their understanding help are always doing so much for me; the Matron, who has carried a tremendous burden during these last years; the Prefects, and especially Colin Hockney, the Captain of the School, who has made such a good job of his not easy task, and the boys who have co-operated in so much that is for the good of the School—to all these, ladies and gentlemen, I feel that I owe so much—and so do you—for the successful working of this School during 1946.

GAMES REPORT

Mr. Premier, Mr. Chairman, Members of the Council, Ladies and Gentlemen.

It is my pleasure and privilege to present the Games Report for the year 1946.

The four Houses—Bayly, Waterhouse, Cotton and School—have this year provided many close contests in their various encounters, and much interest has been taken by the School in these fixtures.

The first inter-House contest was the swimming, held at Henley. Congratulations are due to Reesema on his fine performances in Under 15 and Under 16 events. Burton also did well in winning the Open 55 Yards. On the day Bayly were the best, but Cotton provided powerful opposition.

The School sports were held on an ideal day, and the management of the sports was carried out efficiently. By defeating Candy in the 440 Yards Hurdles, Wicks won the School Cup, followed closely by Candy and Cooper. Although School House hadn't champions, their all-round ability gained them victory.

The inter-House football competitions resulted in many hard struggles, and the final, in which Cotton defeated School House, was particularly hard fought.

Bayly House showed their supremacy in the rowing, winning both the "A" and "B" Grade finals.

The tennis resulted in a win for Bayly, but this was largely due to the absence of Candy and Rowe when the final was played against Waterhouse. However, the team tried very hard, and deserved their win.

The cricket was decided between School and Waterhouse, and resulted in a win for School. Sharley helped the boarders along with a good score of 88, and the general ability of the rest of the team gained them an easy win.

Bayly House, by gaining most points in sport and in work, won the House Cup. Cotton were second, followed by School and Waterhouse. Congratulations to Des Steele on captaining the winning House, and also the committee, who worked untiringly.

In the Intercollegiate matches we opened the year well with an overwhelming victory over Saints in the tennis. The score of 14 rubbers to 1 indicates the great strength of our team. Don Candy and David Rowe must be congratulated on being selected for the South Australian Linton Cup Team. We congratulate Mr. Luke for his excellent coaching, and also Don Candy for the capable way in which he captained the team. Don has further added to the honour of the School by winning the Victorian Junior Singles Championship, and can now be rated as the best junior in Australia.

Our Head-of-the-River crew caused hopes of victory to run high when they won the Grayson Cup in the Metropolitan Regatta on the Saturday before the Schools Regatta. This is the first time a schoolboy crew has won this event, and our crew must be congratulated on creating this precedent. Unfortunately they did not perform so well at the Schools' Regatta, and were beaten by a stronger St. Peter's crew in the second heat. Saints then went on to win the Head-of-the-River and the Blackmore Shield, and we congratulate them.

In the minor events, however, our juniors were well to the fore, reaching the finals in every event and winning three. This augurs well for future crews. Our thanks go to Mr. Solomon and Mr. Coogan for their coaching of the Eight, and to Mr. Potts for his help as Master-in-Charge. We also congratulate John Cooper on his appointment and efficient handling of the position of Captain of the Boats.

In the Intercollegiate Athletics we found ourselves with a shortage of experienced seniors, whereas St. Peter's were very strong in this department, breaking three records. Jose, who broke the 120 and 440 Hurdles record, and Skewes, who again broke the Mile record, must be congratulated on their efforts. The result, P.A.C., 35, to St. Peter's 95 was not flattering to our boys, who tried hard and untiringly against much stronger opposition. We congratulate Wicks on winning the High Jump after a sterling tussle with Jose. We thank Mr. Steele, Mr. Johnson and Mr. Foreman for their untiring efforts in preparing the boys for this contest.

The football resulted in an overwhelming win for St. Peter's. We offer our congratulations to them, and also for their win over the previously undefeated Melbourne Grammar XVIII. Des Steele, John Cooper and Garth Cord-Udy were outstanding in the back lines for us, but the superior strength of Saints gained them the victory. We thank Mr. Leak and Mr. Smith and all those Masters who have given their valuable time to help our boys in the field of sport.

The Intercollegiate Cricket Match was won easily by Saints, as they passed our score with seven wickets still to fall. No doubt the illness of Brian Pittman was a handicap, as he had proved during the weeks before the match that he was in top form and could be expected to make a high score. Though we failed to win, I feel our team showed great promise for the future, as several of our younger players performed very well.

[Our outstanding performer was Colin Hockney himself, as readers will agree after perusing the account of the cricket match, which is given elsewhere in this issue.—Editor]

Before I close I must congratulate Don. Candy on winning the School Tennis Championship, Don. Watson for gaining a record number of points in the Gym. Competition, and Toby Berry for winning the School Boxing Championship.

Leaving Honours Bursaries

Once again our Leaving Honours students have done very well. As a result of the 1946 examination bursaries have been won by D. M. Waugh, B. J. Skinner, R. W. Smith and D. R. Watson. We include their photos, and also those of B. A. Chartres, R. G. Ferrett and G. B. Markey, who won high places on the Honour List and had already had been awarded Leaving Honours bursaries in 1945.

B. A. CHARTRES

B. A. Chartres' achievement in coming top of the examination in 1946, and in obtaining the first credit in all his five subjects, is outstanding. We congratulate him and all those whose photos appear on the opposite page on a very fine performance.

Scout Notes

Scouting work this term was rather interrupted by Public Examinations and other end-of-year activities.

A camp was held at our shack near Mylor in September. The camp was run as a patrol camp, and P. L. Duguid was in charge. Several boys passed tests, such as pioneering and axmanship, and some useful experience was gained by all who attended.

A second-class ambulance class, under P. L. Smith, has made good headway this term, and several boys have passed this test, some completing their second-class badges.

Competition for the Abotomey Cup has been keen, and the Magpies, under P. L. Duguid, are to be congratulated on winning the trophy this year.

Student Christian Movement Notes

The Student Christian Movement has held four meetings this term. The first, on 26th September, was taken by Rev. V. R. Secombe. Drawing from his experience as a Chaplain in the R.A.A.F., he stressed that we could not get the most out of life unless we had faith in God. Concentration on one particular phase of life—ambition, business, etc.—was, he pointed out and illustrated, not sufficient.

Rev. A. E. Kain, Rector of St Paul's and Chaplain of Pulteney Grammar School, gave us a very informative talk on the activities of the Society for promoting Christian knowledge. We were amazed to learn of the work that the Society has done and is doing in many parts of the world, so that the Church of England may disseminate Christian knowledge, particularly by its contributions in money for the building of churches and church schools.

Rev. J. H. Allen was our next visitor, and gave us an illuminating and interesting address, which was also of considerable topical interest, on the various religions of India, in which country he has spent a great part of his life. He discussed the progress made by Christianity against the older and more widespread Mohammedan and Hindu religions.

Mr. David Dunn, President of the University S.C.M., was the last speaker for the term. He outlined his intention of giving us a "Fitzpatrick" travel talk on the University. Despite the drawback of the lack of an American accent, he brightly described the 'Varsity buildings and its variety of sports and movements and associations. Among the last-named he stressed the importance of the S.C.M., with its morning prayers, discussion groups and annual Interstate Conference.

The S.C.M. has once again completed a successful year, and to all those who gave up their valuable time to come out to speak to us we extend our sincere thanks and a hearty invitation to re-visit us in the future.

Cadet Notes

At the beginning of the third term the Cadet Detachment was inspected by Brigadier Barker, Venner and Zanker being presented with their commissions. Brig. Barker pointed out in his address how important cadet work could be, complimenting the Corps on their high standard of drill, and the officers for their work in training the cadets.

For the Governor's visit to the School a special guard of honour was assembled, and was inspected by the Governor. The officers responsible for the guard of honour are to be congratulated on its polished work.

During the term the Corps spent an afternoon at Warradale to take part in the Empire Shoot for cadets. It has been reported that some of the targets may be used again.

In the Christmas holidays a camp will be held at either Warradale or Fort Largs for the training of potential N.C.O.'s and officers. Signals training will also be included for a section of the cadets. This camp will bring to a close a successful year in cadet training.

Music Club Notes

The Music Club ended this term on a grand note. Thanks to the efforts of our music-master, Mr. May, lunch-time concerts by eminent musicians were arranged for almost every Friday throughout the term, and the response of the boys to these recitals (once the attendance was over two hundred) showed how much Mr. May's efforts were appreciated.

Mr. May's lunch-time recitals are the first we have had in the School, and we congratulate him on his triumph in this, his first year as music master, and wish him even greater success in the future.

The first concert this term on 4th October consisted of a selection of Bach's piano works, and was presented by Mr. May himself. A small but appreciative audience heard, among other items, arrangements of "Sheep may Safely Graze," "Sleepers, Awake," "My Heart ever Faithful," and Cyril Scott's version of "Arioso". The recital closed in grand fashion with Liszt's arrangement of the Toccata and Fugue in A Minor.

The second concert, on 11th October, was presented by Miss Edna Dunn, soprano and Mr. Douglas Karran, baritone. The baritone opened with two songs, "Without a Song" and "Sylvia". Miss Dunn followed with a bracket, Schubert's "Trout" and "At the Well," a song by a Dutch-American composer. The rest of the programme was then presented by Mr. Douglas Karran.

Among the songs rendered were "Trade Winds," and the favourite, "On the Road to Mandalay." The performance of "The Song of the Flea," which, incidentally, was the first time both singer and accompanist (Mr. May) had performed the song, captured the audience's fancy.

Quite a large audience gathered to hear Miss Beryl Chinner's pianoforte recital on 28th October. Despite some distractions under the pretext of "Orders is orders," Miss Chinner's fine performance of Brahms' Variations on a Theme by Handel was whole-heartedly appreciated. Although she could not oblige all the requests of the more enthusiastic members of the audience, Miss Chinner rendered several Chopin encores.

The largest crowd for the year gathered in the Assembly Hall to hear Donald Weekes and Miss Audrey White perform the Beethoven Violin Sonata in A Major. Donald is an Old Boy of the School now, and this item was well received. Miss White also gained the approval of the audience when she rounded off the programme with Chopin's Fantasie-Impromptu.

Mr. John Horner, of the Elder Conservatorium, and Mr. Malcolm Hales (pianist) attracted another large audience. Mr. Horner gave an interesting discourse on counterpoint—shame on those who don't know "Three Blind Mice" when they hear it!—while Mr. Hales presented a varied programme, including works by Grieg, Brahms and Chopin.

The final concert for the year, on 6th December, was presented by the visiting Melbourne tenor, Mr. William Herbert. This delightful recital was a grand finale to a great year's work by Mr. May, and once again we offer our thanks and congratulations.

The Science Journal

The P.A.C. Science Journal for 1946 was published early in the third term. It is well up to the standard of its predecessor in the matter of content, while in the manner of its presentation it is a great improvement on last year's effort. The cover is quite attractive; the articles, which are on a variety of subjects and of varying degrees of complexity, are well arranged, and the diagrams generally are well drawn.

There is something in the magazine for everybody, the subjects ranging from Atomic Energy and Applications of Piezo-electricity to Ants, Heredity and Vitamins.

The purpose of the magazine is to encourage boys to make a special study of some aspect of science in which they are specially interested. Each member of the Upper Sixth Science Classes then writes a paper on the subject he has chosen, and the best and most suitable are selected by a committee of boys, comprising Chartres (editor), Markey, Skinner and Waugh, and published in the Science Journal, so that the benefits of these special studies may, in some measure, be passed on to others.

In this way it is hoped to stimulate, and make more interesting, the study of science in our School, and to prevent it from being regarded solely as something on which boys are expected to pass an examination at the end of the year. If it can encourage boys to read books on Science, or take up its study seriously at the University later on, its purpose will have been amply fulfilled.

The Branson Prizes, which are awarded for the best contributions to the Journal, have been won by Chartres for his article on Piezo-electricity and its Applications, and DeCean for his article on Atomic Energy and the Atomic Bomb.

Sales of the Journal have almost reached the 400 mark, and if there are any who would still like to secure a copy they are advised to make early application to Mr. R. T. Smith while there are still a few left, or else they will be disappointed.

Prefects' Palaver

The end of an eventful and successful year is drawing very near, and these last days are, for all but one or two of the prefects, their final school days. Through three interesting terms the School has been ably captained by Hockney, and we twelve have supported him to the best of our ability. Several sprightly maldoers appeared during this term, but were duly dealt with.

In the only intercollegiate game of the term, namely the cricket, the prefects were represented by Hockney, who incidentally made a fine century, and Gunning. The School Tennis Championship was won by Candy, with Rowe as runner-up, both of whom are members of our ranks.

True to the statement that prefects will try anything, one of our number, Cooper, entered the boxing contest. He distinguished himself by being slathered round the ring in his first bout. However, as would be expected of a prefect, he took his hiding in fine spirit. First and second places were obtained by the prefects in the gymnasium contest also, and in general sporting events were dominated by our stalwarts.

This third term is one in which a year's work is crammed into three months, and several of the prefects have directed their natural genius along these lines. The results of their labours will appear at later dates. Probably because of added application, the prefects' room was not so well frequented this term as in previous terms, and consequently is now in better condition than of yore.

Apart from a few games of indoor cricket the room has seen in the main a peaceful three months.

It is the general opinion that after such a term the holidays, which are almost here, will be most welcome.

The Rouge

Once more it was decided to hold our annual flutter on the polished floors of the Assembly Hall.

We heartily thank the Headmaster for giving us permission to do so. We also deeply appreciate the great work done by Matron, Mesdames Hockney and Ward, and the committee of mothers for the beautiful supper they prepared, as well as the never ending supply of drinks that was served out on the eastern balcony, from start to finish. Their job was made extremely hazardous by a party of gate crashers in the form of a thick swarm of flying ants that had invaded Adelaide and its suburbs. Fortunately, however, they gradually thinned out to such an extent that a dancer was able to see his partner without too much eye strain, and the dance went on regardless of all hazard. The magnificent flower display on the platform showed only too clearly the trouble the mothers had gone to in order to make the show a success.

The music was, as last year, provided by Len Perkins, an Old Red, and his band. No doubt the most popular tune of the night was "Three Blind Mice".

And now, on the following morning, a heavy-eyed student (almost an ex-student) writes these notes with happy memories of past schooldays and past Rouges.

House Notes 1946

The end of this third term has seen the completion of the House Competitions for 1946, both in sporting and scholastic spheres. The sporting events this term were Rowing, Tennis and Cricket. The House Cricket Championship was won by School in the final match with Waterhouse; while the Rowing and Tennis events went to Bayly. This completed a good year for Bayly, as they had already won the Swimming Sports, and thus remained victorious in three of the six inter-House Competitions. However, Bayly must consider themselves lucky to have won the Tennis, as the absence of Candy and Rowe from Waterhouse's team in the final must have greatly facilitated their victory.

Of the other competitions, School won the Athletics and the Cricket, and Cotton collared the Football honours.

Bayly also emerged as top House in the scholastic realm. To avoid unnecessary confusion it must be remembered that the House which produces the most Duces does not necessarily gain the most points for School work—if this were the case, then School House would have been the victor in this department. Points are awarded each House on the basis of percentage, all boys exceeding either 50%, 60%, 70% or 80% gaining points for their respective Houses. The larger the percentage obtained by each boy, the larger number of points goes to his House. Thus, although Bayly could manage only one Dux from the sixteen forms, apparently their all-round scholastic ability gave them the honours for school work.

With an edge in both Sport and School Work, Bayly House won the House Cup for the year, and to the members of Bayly the rest of the School extends its congratulations.

Below is a table showing the respective positions and points awarded accordingly for each House. By coincidence, each House obtained the same position for both Sport and Work:—

	Sport Points	Work Points	Total	Position
Bayly -	5	5	10	1
Cotton -	3	3	6	2
School -	2	2	4	3
Waterhouse -	1	1	2	4

BAYLY HOUSE

Last year a runner-up in the House Competition, Bayly showed its true form this year by winning the House Cup, being top both in sport and work marks.

This term Bayly won the House Rowing, each crew being undefeated in spite of the strife they got into at different times, and also, to the astonishment of a certain other House, came out top in the Tennis. Owing mainly to bad luck, of course, we came last in the cricket. Perhaps our men were saving up for the Intercoll. Match in which Captain Hockney made top score with 114, and was backed up by Trowse, Harley and Harris, with Griggs as twelfth man—all from Bayly.

Chartres held the position of Dux of the School for us well throughout the year, and Bayly earned top position in work marks with great assistance from members in all classes. We also extend our congratulations to Chartres for obtaining top position in the State at the Leaving Honours Examinations, and to the Vice-captain of the House (Watson), who obtained a Leaving Honours Bursary with ninth position.

The only fault to find with Bayly's record for this year is that it will be practically impossible for next year's members to uphold it, so brilliant is it.

COTTON HOUSE

This term has concluded a very successful year, more successful than was anticipated. We would like to congratulate Bayly House on winning the House Cup; however, we might add that we ran them a very close second.

In the Tennis we were unfortunate in meeting Waterhouse at full strength in the first round and were thus eliminated from the final, where Waterhouse did not have the services of Candy or Rowe. We were also beaten by Waterhouse in the first round of the Cricket, but we easily beat the top House, Bayly, in the second round. In both these competitions we had to be content with third place.

On the academic side of school life we did not have as much success as we would have liked, as regards Duces anyway, but the fact that Cotton finished second in points for school work shows that the average ability of the House is of a high standard. Our congratulations go to Parker who topped VIc and Fricker who was dux of VIc this term. In the Leaving Honours our representatives did well, Ferrett, Smith and Waugh obtaining third, seventh and fifteenth positions respectively on the Honours List.

In conclusion, we wish to thank Messrs Mutton and K. Smith for their interest in our activities throughout the year.

WATERHOUSE HOUSE

Despite the loss of both Tennis and Cricket in the finals, this term has been most successful for Waterhouse.

The Tennis, for which we were hot favourites, resulted in a win for Bayly, due largely to the absence of Candy and Rowe; however, Bayly fought hard, and we offer them our congratulations.

In the first round of the Cricket we defeated Bayly, due mainly to the efforts of Pittman, who, unfortunately, could not play in the Intercoll. Match owing to illness. Stevens and Sharland also played well, and we congratulate them on their inclusion in the Intercoll. Team. In the final against School House, however, Sharley (who incidentally played for Waterhouse last year) compiled a good score of 88 for the Boarders and won them the match. Congratulations to School House on their win, and also to Bayly on winning the House Competition for the year.

Our congratulations also go to House Captain Candy for his fine tennis wins. During this term he has won the Victorian Junior Championship, the Schoolboys' Open Singles Championship, and the Schoolboys' Open Doubles. Another Waterhouse representative, Head, did well in winning the Schoolboys' Under 15 Singles.

We thank Mr. Allen and Mr. Hart for their co-operation and help in the House activities for the term.

SCHOOL HOUSE

With the public exams. only a matter of weeks away, to be followed by the Christmas holidays, Boarding House life began somewhat more studiously and enthusiastically.

The House competitions were again carried on, but we allowed the opposition some measure of success this term. Congratulations go to Bayly for its rowing victory, and also on winning the tennis. However, taking a more serious view of the cricket, School in the first round comfortably defeated Bayly. In the second we met Waterhouse. After a disastrous beginning, we managed to scrape home, and so win the House cricket. Our success was primarily due to a carefully compiled, but invaluable, 88 by Sharley, whom we particularly congratulate, while extending congratulations to the whole team.

As usual, the Boarding House was called upon to supply the backbone of the First Eleven for the Intercollegiate Match. Of the eleven, we had five representatives. To vice-captain Gunning, Barker, Gann, Hall and Sharley we offer our hearty congratulations.

The Boarding House tennis tournaments, which had been begun in the first term, were completed, and brought forth several surprises. Gunning defeated Wilkinson in the Open Singles, Newman defeated Walkington in the Under 15 Singles, and Griffiths and Hobbs emerged victorious in the Open Doubles.

Seven of our members—Woodard, Bennett, Young, Knox, Kuhlmann, Pittman and Harvey—topped their forms for the year, and we offer our congratulations to them, as also to Berry and Scott, who worthily upheld School House traditions in their respective divisions in the boxing competition.

Once more congratulations are due, this time to Zanker on gaining his commission at the annual ceremonial parade in October.

Again, as usual, the Seniors and Juniors held their respective parties at the end of the term. We extend our gratitude to all who helped to make the parties a really great success, but would especially like to thank Mrs. Ward and Matron, without whose tireless preparatory efforts both parties would have been impossible.

Finally, we turn to the backbone of the House—the prefects! We welcomed a new member to our ranks at the beginning of the term in Wicks. We, too, in particular would like to express our thanks to Matron for all she has done for us throughout the year, and especially during the last term. Here may we wish next year's prefects every success in their strenuous task.

A COUNTRY HOUSE

The Intercollegiate Cricket Match

The annual cricket match between Prince Alfred and St. Peter's Colleges began on Tuesday, 10th December. The wicket provided on the Adelaide Oval was excellent. Hockney, our Captain, won the toss and sent Barker and Stevens to the wickets. Jose opened the attack for Saints, seven being scored from his first over. When he was 5, Barker mis-timed a full toss from Boothby and was easily caught. Gunning opened brightly, but was destined not to last long. He was beaten by a slower ball from Cocks which shattered his wicket. Stevens had been plodding along quietly against the well-directed medium-pace attack. Although he was at the wickets for 45 minutes, he never really settled down, and shortly after both he and Trowse were back in the pavilion—4 for 34. Trowse had played too late and sluggishly at a well-pitched ball and was bowled. Unfortunately worse was to follow. After Hall, Sharley, Gann had contributed 4 runs between them, Princes' total stood at 7 for 56. Saints' bowlers had varied their deliveries with judgment, and their accuracy prevented our batsmen settling down. Hockney and Sharland now became associated and defied the bowlers while they added 41. Several crisp fours from Hockney revived Princes' drooping spirits, but at 97 Cocks' slower ball scattered his stumps. The innings closed at 103, with Sharland carrying his bat for 20. That seven of our batsmen were clean bowled indicated that at no time was Saints' bowling mastered.

Princes now took the field, but were minus their wicket-keeper, Pittman, who was in hospital with an attack of appendicitis. Hockney kept wickets in his stead, and kept very well, seeing that he had had little practice. He claimed his first victim when he caught P. Bednall, off Sharland. Sargent, the other opening bat, looked very safe, but presently lost his partner, Hayward, who was run out—2 for 54. Dowding departed after notching 5, and, with the score at 60, Sharland, who had been bowling well, took 2 wickets with successive balls—5 for 60. The game had reached a critical stage and speculation was rife in the stands. Sargent now had Jose as his partner, and this was a very valuable partnership for Saints, as it added 94 before Jose was out to Gunning, caught and bowled. Saints score stood at 7 for 178 at the close of the day's play. Sharland had taken 3 wickets for 36, and Hockney, behind sticks, had caught three.

Second Day

Saints carried their score to 263 before all were out, Sargent compiling a chanceless 105, and Hutchings remaining 44 not out. We had tried no less than nine bowlers in our efforts to dismiss our opponents.

After lunch Princes went to the wickets again, but once again disaster overtook our early batsmen, 2 wickets being down for 7, and, a little later, 3 for 26. Trowse and Hockney, however, now came to the rescue and added 78 before being separated. Thereafter Hockney, striking unerringly at anything loose, carried on till stumps, when he was 75 not out and our score 5 for 143. It was slow cricket, but a plucky, up-hill effort. Trowse (34) had also assisted in the recovery.

C. F. HOCKNEY
Captain of the School and Cricket Captain

Third Day

Hockney and Sharley (10 n.o.) resumed and the score steadily mounted. At 177 Sharley was caught and bowled by Sargent for 24. Hall joined his Captain, who was playing a fighting innings. With the tally at 222, Hockney was caught off Sargent for 114. He was at the creases while the score mounted from 26 to 222, and his innings, which included 9 fours, occupied 259 minutes. Like Sargent's, his was a chanceless century.

Our remaining batsmen did not prove very troublesome to Saints' bowlers, and our second innings closed for the total of 236, which gave us a lead of only 76 runs, with our opponents still to bat. Sargent, not called on to bowl in our first innings, took four wickets with his slows in the second innings, having been thrown into the attack when Saints' medium-paced bowlers were losing their sting.

Sargent and P. Bednall again opened, but Harris clean bowled Bednall when the score had reached 4. Sargent and Hayward carried the total along to 19, when Hayward was caught by Harris. Sargent was soon after bowled by Sharland, but Dowding and Hutchings safely carried the score to 79, thus giving our opponents a win by 7 wickets.

Thus S.P.S.C. has won the last three Inter-collegiate cricket matches. Our last win was in 1941, the games in 1942 and 1943 being drawn.

CENTURIES SCORED IN INTER-COLLEGIATE GAMES

Colin Hockney's 114 in the second innings of the Intercol. Match, 1946, was the twenty-eighth century scored by a Prince Alfred batsman since the inauguration of these annual contests in 1878. Only twice has a batsman scored a century in each innings, and each time the feat was accomplished by a P.A.C. representative—B. W. Hone in 1924, and G. G. Fuller in 1941. The highest score in these matches was compiled by Clem Hill (P.A.C.) in 1893, while K. Gogler's double century in 1940 is the highest score made by a Saints' batsman. Sargent's 105 in the last Oval match was the 23rd century registered by S.P.S.C.

Cricket Critique

Gunning (vice-captain)—A forceful batsman with many good shots, but is inclined to be impetuous. Good slow bowler and safe field.

Trowse—A neat and polished batsman. Bowls well with the new ball, but is inclined to pitch them short. Fields well in any position.

Hall—A good bat who does not like slow bowling. A brilliant boundary fieldsman. Good slow bowler.

Sharland—Has bowled consistently and with more experience should improve considerably. Is a fair bat, but when fielding does not watch the ball.

Sharley—Much improved in batting and bowling. Is now one of the all-rounders in the team. His fielding and throwing into the wicket are excellent.

Harris—A good opening bowler who keeps a consistent length. Very forcing bat, and is capable of making many runs. Fields very safely.

Harley—Has bowled consistently throughout the year, and with more experience should do well. Fair bat; fields excellently.

Barker—A safe opening bat who watches the ball closely. Has improved considerably. Very fair left-arm change bowler. Safe field.

Stevens—A solid opening bat with many good shots. Very fair field. Should do well.

Gann—Bowls fairly fast, but is unreliable in length and direction. Fair bat; slow in the field.

Griggs (12th)—Was unlucky to miss the Intercol, but showed by his early form that he will be one of the best next year.

Hockney (captain)—Versatile cricketer, excellent bat, very good field. Slow off-spin bowler. Kept wickets at few hours' notice against St.

Peter's, and was voted the fielding prize by the players. Has captained the side well, and has had the full confidence of his team-mates.

Pittman—Excellent keeper and very good left-hand batsman. Has been making good scores. His loss to us in our big match through illness was felt very much, but we are glad to know that he is getting better.

UNDER FOURTEEN

The Under 14's had a successful season, winning more than half their matches. Our most successful batsmen were Perry and Southwood, while the bowling honours went to James, Hill and Michell.

Hall, Michell and Menzies were outstanding in the field, while others to do well were Scott, Southwood, James and Hill.

We would like to thank Mr. Perry for his services as coach, and also Mr. Cliff Harvey for providing transport for some of the boys when we had to play away.

UNDER THIRTEEN

The Under 13 cricket team enjoyed moderate success this term and gained the victory in three matches. Bridgeland was captain, and led the team capably; Looker was elected vice-captain.

Ducker and Lill developed into a sound opening pair, and rarely did they fail to give the team a good start.

The highest scores for the term were recorded by Lill with 56 not out and 89 not out, the latter innings being compiled in the whirlwind time of 85 minutes.

Gray was our most successful trundler, and in the match against Sacred Heart College he returned the fine figures of 6/13.

We are once again indebted to Mr. Allen for his help in coaching and for his interest in our matches.

The Boxing Competitions

The Boxing Competitions were conducted in the School Gym. on Monday, 9th December. The competitions this year were not as interesting as they usually are. It was no fault of the boys and their keen Instructor, Mr. Price. It just happened, as it is sometimes bound to do, that there was a boy in each division who stood out above the others.

Clarke and Cooper, of the first division, were the first pair. This was quite a good bout. Cooper started off a bit wildly, but soon settled down. Clarke had the longer reach, used his good left effectively and scored well with his right, when opportunity offered, and he was a bit too good for Cooper.

Berry and Waugh, of the first division, then entered the ring. Berry had the advantage of a lot of weight, and it won him the fight. Waugh did extremely well and caused Berry quite a bit of trouble. He boxed well; but was not strong enough to keep Berry's big bulk off.

Scott and Pitman, of the second division, came next. Scott is an extra good boxer, and Pitman soon found it out. Pitman pushed rather than hit, and, of course, that was no good. Scott was an easy winner.

Steers and Ellis, of the second division, were the next two boys. Steers decided it was do or die, and he went at Ellis like a whirlwind. Ellis had the longer reach and should have kept Steers out; but he did not do it and left himself open for Steers' attack, and so was beaten.

Kennett and Goldsack, of the third division, then came along. Kennett won because Goldsack had stage fright and didn't hit him when he presented him with the most wonderful opportunities. Kennett's idea was to look savage and make a blind rush, with his head turned away, his arms wide out, and he embraced Goldsack as if he were a long lost brother. However, he did what attacking there was, landed one or two hits, and won.

Coombe, of the third division, then fought a bye with Pitman. They hopped in a bit and made the bye a more interesting one than is usually the case.

Berry and Clarke then decided the final of the first division. Berry used his weight and bored in, and Clarke kept him off for a while; but it was of no avail, and Berry was the winner.

Scott and Steers, of the second division, came along to fix up the final of the second division. Steers attempted his previous tactics of hopping in and trusting to providence; but he found no providence in Scott. Scott just stopped Steers' rushes without any trouble, and Steers must have thought he had run into a tornado. Scott was an easy winner.

Kennett and Coombe, of the third division, then decided the final of their division. Kennett adopted his previous boring tactics, and got away with it, though once or twice Coombe became indignant at his loving embraces and gave him a whack as he rushed in. The trouble was, Coombe didn't get indignant often enough, and Kennett won.

We are pleased to report that this year more boys have joined the boxing class. We hope that next year the boys will again show a lot of interest and keep the numbers of the class up.

We were very pleased this year to have one of our pre-war judges back. He was our old friend Jack Williams. We hoped also to have had Frank Nicholls with us; but he found at the last moment he was unable to come down from Truro, where he is located. We hope that next year he will be able to put in an appearance. The judges were: Messrs. H. Mutton, J. Williams and Stan. Waterson. Joe Roberts again did a good job as referee. We thank all these gentlemen very much for their assistance. We missed Mr. Mick Schlank, and it was the first time he had not been present for many years. It turns out he made a mistake and forgot the date.

The Headmaster (Mr. J. F. Ward) and Dr. Ericksen provided the other two cups, and we tender all these Old Scholars our very best thanks.

Rowing Notes

The main feature of the third term in this sport was the House Regatta, held on 26th October. It was feared that the afternoon would be spoilt by rain, and some of the early races were rowed while it was still raining. Later the afternoon became very clear and sunny. The results of the races are as follows:

Form Races—

Form IV c d. IV b.
Form IV a rowed a bye.
Final: Form IV c d. IV a.

House Races: Senior—

1st Heat: Cotton d. School.
2nd Heat: Bayly d. Waterhouse.
Final: Bayly d. Cotton.
Also: Waterhouse d. School.

2. Cotton
3. Waterhouse
4. School

House Races, Junior—

1st Heat: Bayly d. Cotton.
2nd Heat: Waterhouse d. School.
Final: Bayly d. Waterhouse.
Also: Cotton d. School.

Final, Junior Order—

4. School

Order for the Day—

1st Bayly	-	-	6 points
2nd Cotton	-	-	4 points
3rd Waterhouse			3½ points
4th School	-	-	2 points

Thanks are due to Messrs. J. S. Steele and P. W. James, who capably filled the positions of Judge and Starter respectively.

After the Regatta four of our boys rowed in mixed Invitation Fours at the Adelaide Regatta. One of them, D. J. Bennier, gained a silver cup.

During the term Princes' boys also took part in the Torrens Regatta, and Stanton won a silver oar.

For a good many years Mr. Myer Solomon has been coaching the Eight and, whenever possible, assisting in the coaching of our junior crews. He has spent much time and expended a great deal of energy in carrying out this work. His enthusiastic zeal and his sound knowledge of rowing have achieved excellent results for us in the Head-of-the-River Regattas, and the School is very conscious of the debt it owes to him. His business no longer permits Mr. Solomon to coach our crews except in a small way, and so we take this opportunity of thanking him with all our heart for the splendid service he has rendered to his old School.

We extend to Mr. F. J. Frolich a hearty welcome to our midst, and hope that he will be happy and successful in coaching the Eight. He is a first-class oarsman, and we are looking forward to receiving the benefit of his skill and experience.

Tennis Notes

AGE CHAMPIONSHIPS, 1946

The Memorial Drive Championships this year were a triumph for Prince Alfred representatives. In the Schoolboys' Open Singles, which was won by Don Candy, three of our players besides Candy reached the Quarter Finals—Nicholls, Watson and Sauerbier.

Candy and Huelin won the Open Doubles in easy fashion, while D. C. Young took the Under 18 title. Head had a convincing win in the Under 15 Singles, and then paired with Billing to take the Under 15 Doubles title.

INTER-SCHOOL MATCHES—Third Term

In the Saturday morning matches at the Memorial Drive our "A," "B" and "C" Teams have all fared well. Each team has been defeated only once, and while the "A" and "B" teams are at the head of their Divisions, the "C" team is third on its premiership list.

DON CANDY

This term has been one of great success for our Tennis Captain, Don Candy, and has been a fitting conclusion to a brilliant tennis record at the School.

Early in December Candy went to Victoria as reserve member of the State Tennis Team, and took part in the Victorian Championships. In the final of the Victorian Junior Championship he defeated G. Worthington of N.S.W., a player of greater experience than himself, and by his handsome win, 6—2, 3—6, 6—2, Candy established his reputation as the best junior in Australia.

D. W. CANDY

Returning to Adelaide, Candy convincingly won the Schoolboys' Open Singles Championship, thus annexing the G. B. Hone Shield. He also paired with Keith Huelin to win the Open Doubles Championship.

In January Candy won the Australian Junior Tennis Championship at Sydney by decisively defeating his opponent, 6—1, 6—1. Thus Candy now holds, in addition to the National Junior title, those of South Australia and Victoria—a fine record. We wish him every success in his future tennis career.

The Gymnasium Competition

The contest for the Gymnastic Championship of the College was conducted in the School Gym. on Thursday, 21st November. Fourteen competitors came along to give of their best. The form of the contestants was good, and that of Watson (the winner) especially good. Watson lost only 3 marks out of a total of 190, and this was a magnificent performance. He made even those exercises requiring quite a strength test, look easy. I don't think any winner of the past has equalled or bettered this result. If any Old Scholar has done better than this, I would like him to let me know. I am quite willing to confess that it was a better effort than I put up in the year I happened to win. I can hear the boys say, "Fluke." Watson is an absolute enthusiast for gymnastics, and I don't think is ever happier than when he is on the apparatus. Watson, as well as being champion gymnast, was a member of the First Football Team, and he is a good tennis player, and in addition he occupied a high position in this year's Leaving Honours Exam.; so he is an all-rounder. It is very pleasing to see a boy so well equipped to face the future as Watson is.

Markey, another boy who did well in this year's Leaving Honours, was the runner-up. Markey is another fine boy, and it is very satisfactory that he, like Watson, faces the future physically and mentally well equipped.

Chapman came third, and he did quite a good job; but he wants to concentrate on neatness and the finer points of the exercises.

Berriman was next, and he worked well. He will no doubt improve a great deal as he gets older and stronger.

Hockney was next, and he was good while he lasted. On the trapeze he did well.

Of the others Higgins was the most promising, and next year, if he comes back, he should be very hard to beat.

Skinner, another boy who excelled in the Leaving Honours, worked quite well, and surprised himself by doing several exercises he had not been able to do before.

Wicks did quite well; but needs more practice.

Dunn didn't do as well as expected, but will improve with experience.

Gunning's effort wasn't outstanding; but it earned him the form medal.

I must now mention the Cord-Udy brothers. I have left them till last; but that was not their position. These two boys are happy, carefree fellows who know no fear. If the competition was decided on dare-devil tricks, then one of the Cord-Udys would have won. If we have a fete at the College at any time, I would suggest to the organisers that they get these boys to give a performance in the gym., and I will guarantee it will be the star sideshow. The agile Gibbon has nothing on them.

All boys were allowed time off to see the competition, thanks to Mr. Ward. The contestants showed the other boys what could be done by hard work and perseverance, and we hope what they saw stimulated a desire in many boys to emulate the deeds of the competitors. Good physical condition is essential for good health, and good health is probably one of life's best prizes. You can't get physically fit by correspondence or watching others exercise; you have to work, and, if you do, you will find it worth while. When you get fit, you will find you can do things you could never do before, and you will enjoy your games more and find yourself excelling in them. Instead of playing games in the fresh air some lads go to the pictures, and that doesn't help their health.

"OUR BILL"

You have an excellent gymnasium; modesty forbids my suggesting you have a good gym-master; you have football, cricket, tennis, running, rowing and boxing—so, with all those things to choose from, all boys ought to be suited. Boys who do not get into the sporting life of the School while they are there, are to be pitied. They miss one of the best things in life, and one of the best things to produce comradeship and life-long friendships. Boys who represent the School in sports are never forgotten by their contemporaries, and if they meet in after-life they live the times again when they fought for their School. Boys, don't be drones, make a 1947 resolution, and carry it out and get fit, and help the School and help yourself to feel well and full of energy. You will then pull your weight, and you will be pleased about it. To the boys who are endowed with more than an average share of brains I especially appeal. Many of these lads are sadly deficient in physique, and so are handicapped, and some of them do not make the progress expected of them in later years. The reason is in all probability that they haven't the physical strength to keep them going. I saw this sort of thing happen when I was a boy at Princes, and I have seen it happen time and again since I have been a Master, and every time I see it happen I feel a very sorry man. I always try my best to help these boys, but am not always successful. I feel absolutely delighted that Watson, Markey and Skinner did so well in the Leaving Honours and the Gym. Competition, and that Waugh, who also did well in the Leaving Honours, put up a good show against heavy odds in the Boxing Competitions. These boys are balanced and will, I am sure, in consequence, go a long way and do big things. We wish them the success they deserve.

Short Story Competition

The competition for the Kenneth Harley Memorial Prize for an Original Story or Short Play was not as keen as might be expected. The number of entries was not large, and it appears that some would-be competitors, postponing the job until it is too late, automatically ruled themselves out of the competition. It is a pity that this should be so, as Mrs. Harley, the donor of the prize, and the Headmaster are most anxious to encourage this form of original work in literature.

The winner's effort is included in this issue. D. L. Steele is to be congratulated on having written a story which the judges had no hesitation in placing first.

THE GRAY HOUSE

We were sitting around the big fire in the smoking room of the club in a snug little circle. It was a terrible night outside, gusty and pouring rain, and we could hear sharp bursts of hail rattling against the panes of the big windows. Perhaps this explained why no one had yet made any move homeward, although it was almost 10 p.m. As it often does when the night outside is gloomy and threatening, and everyone is cosy and somewhat drowsy by a bright fire, the talk veered to stories of the supernatural, ghost pictures that some of us had seen, and one or two stories that their narrators claimed were quite true.

Carstairs was always quiet and unobtrusive, and it must have been the night and the quiet air of "bonhomie" in the circle that persuaded him to tell us a story: a weird but true story he called it. We all know that he was well-known in Harley Street and on the subject of brain diseases, and we all listened eagerly when, with his piercing eyes glinting in the fire-light, he began his tale.

"You know, a doctor meets all kinds of creatures in the day's work, and while I think a good many of these so-called supernatural manifestations exist only in a disordered mind, I myself know of a—well, I'll call it a strange coincidence. I'd been at college, and then, later, at the University with Matthews, and we used to see a good deal of each other, so that we got on pretty intimate terms. He had come to England from India at the age of eleven, when his father, a Civil Servant, had died in mysterious circumstances. Anyway, his uncle was educating him, and, quiet and at times in almost trance-like periods of abstraction as he was, we got on well together, although not even to me did he speak about his father. Well, after I'd graduated and was struggling to get started as a young practitioner, we drifted apart, you know how it is, and I only saw him occasionally to have a bit of a chat and a laugh over old times. I suppose I'd been set up in my new specialist rooms for about a month or so, when I happened to look into the waiting room and saw, in one corner, a rather haggard and, to me, a surprisingly care-worn Matthews. I had him sent in as soon as possible, and after some of the usual aimless conversation between friends I asked him what had caused his visit here, whereupon he told me of the terrible fear in his life.

'About three months ago I first had an extraordinary dream or, rather, horrifying nightmare,' he added with a shudder. 'I seemed to be walking along a terrifyingly lonely path in the dark. On either side of me and behind me, scattered about the dreary, desolate plain I was walking across, were trees. Yet not really trees, just their bare skeletons lined the path. Tortured trunks with a few gaunt branches. A white swirling mist hung about the roots of these death-like trunks, and I seemed to be walking through shreds of it on the path. A horrible atmosphere of terror dominated my mind. A weird, sinister howling drifted across the eerie landscape, and I knew that some terrible thing was following hot upon my heels.

Suddenly I saw before me a shadowy building, dimpled with moonlight and shadows. I knew it was a church as soon as I saw the Gothic windows and the big double doors. The path led onwards into thicker mists, and I could not decide whether to stop here or go on, when behind me the thing came into sight, shambling past the mute leafless spectres, through the ghastly white shreds of swirling vapour, and with a horrified scream I ran for the church doors.

My scream must have woken me up, for I lay there trembling and sweating, too absolutely terrified to even get up to put on the lamp. Instead, pulling the clothes over my head I somehow fell into an uneasy sleep till morning. I could not forget the dream, now, and it kept recurring to my mind, until, a fortnight later, I had another night of utter horror. I was fleeing through the same ghastly countryside with its deathly mists and dead trees, and every detail was exactly the same as the dream before it. I knew I should come to the church, and I was panic-stricken, wondering if I should reach it before the originator of those approaching sinister howls. Suddenly I saw the gaunt structure, and with madly thumping heart I ran to the doors, forced them open and stood at the head of a few low steps, just within the threshold, peering outside along the path with its surrounding horrors. I seemed to stand thus for a long time, holding one great heavy door to stop it from swinging shut, but I could see no gnatly thing shambling along the road; no hideous shape came into sight through the weaving mist. Suddenly my spine and the hair on the back of my neck prickled with a terrible sensation, and I choked with sudden overwhelming horror as I sensed something behind me. Gasping, I spun around on my heel and saw revealed in the ghostly, slivery moonlight which shone through a narrow window the terrifying creature that stunned me with dream. God, I can see it now!

A vague, almost shapeless body draped in dark greenish robes that glimmered balefully in the solitary ray of illumination, topped by a misshapen, shaggy head with gleaming fangs, and strange glittering eyes, the eyes of a corpse, but how horrible with their terrifying fascination. Reaching towards me were two long arms and talon-like hands with long, horribly long, sharp, curved nails, all with the same ominous blackish-green tinge as its flowing garments. As I reeled back in suffocating terror, the big door slipped from my grasp and slowly swung shut behind me, and strain and tug as I might, I could not budge the mighty black portals of this horrible tomb-like building. I struggled, frantic with fear, with the door, sensing the noiseless approach of the thing, but then I managed—you know how you occasionally can in a nightmare, to force myself back to consciousness at this crisis of my dream, but it seemed to take an almost prostrating mental and physical effort, and I lay on my disordered bed shuddering and sweating. Then, though awake this time, I again sensed that I was not alone in the room, and uttering a feeble cry I rolled off the bed and stumbled to the light-switch, and I swear to you that as I turned the light on I felt a disturbance of the air, although my bedroom door and windows were closed, and felt, to the depths of my consciousness the departure of something horribly, frighteningly evil.

That was almost a week ago, but I have a terrible feeling that, shortly, I will dream again of that plain of death, that house of horror, and I dare not tell you, Carstairs, if I am trapped in that eery, desolate place again I shall be lost. You've no idea the tremendous effort it cost me to waken the last time I had this dream. I can't concentrate on anything, I keep living that terrible experience over and over again in my imagination; it's more than a dream. I feel as though I have actually had these frightful experiences, and I know that when I dream that nightmare again the power of evil that I felt in my room that night will not let me awaken in time to escape its talons that I know will be as cold as a gust from the tomb. A noiseless creature of terror and fear, ghastly in the ray of moonlight. It will come up to me as I struggle with those two implacable, fateful doors, and then—then—God knows—but I know I shall lose my soul!

As his voice died away in a hoarse whisper, I stared at him. I was indeed shocked at my old friend's condition, but his story staggered me. It seemed to have such an incredible, such an uncanny ring of truth. He was right. It seemed as if he had actually had these terrifying experiences that even now brought a profuse sweat out on his brow, and made his eyes large and dark in a white, strained face. He told of his dream as one might recount hunting experiences, or something of that sort.

Perhaps the fact that I call myself a 'Brain Specialist' may have something to do with my being often consulted in matters calling rather for a psychologist, but it seemed to me that Matthews had made this mistake, and I had to tell him that I was really quite unable to help him directly. However, I recommended him to a good psychologist, and even made an appointment for him on the following Monday. We chatted for a little, but I could see that his recent narrative had awakened all his old fears and imaginings, and I felt almost relieved when he suddenly got up to go. His hunted, fearful features were starting to affect me. As he was leaving he mentioned that he was going down to Haddon Hall, in Derbyshire, for the weekend, his cousin's fine old house. I remarked that a change would doubtless do him good, as he needed a bit of rest. I will never forget his face as he quietly replied, 'The time is approaching; I shall not sleep tonight, but when

I do, and if I return to that stark, misty land of death, my rest will last for ever.'

I pondered over his strange case that night, but was so busy the next day, Sautrday, that I forgot all about it, so it was a shock to me when, skimming through the Sunday paper, my attention was rivetted by the headlines:

'TRAGEDY AT DERBYSHIRE
STRANGE DEATH OF GUEST IN CHAPEL

The historic old chapel in the fine grounds of the Haddon Estate in Derbyshire, was the scene of the death of Mr. Matthew, city financier. Mr. Matthew, a relation of the present owner of Haddon Hall, was staying the weekend as one of a party."

I sped through the tense story and found it just as I had first surmised. It seemed that Matthews had been unwell on Saturday night, and had stayed back when the rest of the party went to a nearby hall. Returning home about two o'clock, his host had tip-toed into his room in slightly inebriated comradeship to see if he felt better, or if he could help him in any way, only to find the bed wildly disordered and the French windows open and swinging gently in the breeze. With the ready assistance of several members of the party a quick search was made, with no result until one of the group suggested looking in the old chapel at the bottom of the park. The cheerful party trooped down the winding gravel path, through the tree-lined park to the chapel, where, amid much joviality, the old doors were forced open. Matthew's body was lying just inside the threshold, and in the dim light they could see one hand clasped to his throat, while in the other was tightly clenched the big iron door-knob that he must have torn from the inside of the door in a paroxysm of strength. There were no signs of violence, and the doctor stated the cause of death as heart failure due to a sudden seizure, but confessed himself completely unable to explain the stark terror, the sheer horror etched on the unfortunate man's features.

So you see, gentlemen, it's hard to say whether I believe in ghosts or not. The facts, if you might so call them, seem to point to more than mere coincidence. I mean, why should he have gone from his bedroom in his pyjamas right down to the old church? No one will ever know, but I have some very queer ideas."

Carstairs' quiet voice ceased. I looked about me, the firelight flickered on the walls, not cheerfully, but coldly, strangely. The others of the circle were quiet, still tense from the story we had just heard.

The rain dashed against the window pane, and the wind moaned gently.

I decided not to leave the company and venture home by myself just yet.

A RUSTIC SCENE

Original Contributions

The Boarding House to which I belong is the smallest in the School, having only 150 storeys.

Each morning, at 6.45, I am awakened by an electric bell at the door of my study, and I then repair to the bathrooms, where I am washed, dried and dressed by mechanical hands.

At 6.50 another bell rings. The boys go to a lift and, as they pass through the door, they are counted by an electric eye.

From 7.00 till 8.00 the boarders are given special lectures on atomical research. These are often accompanied by open-air experiments at Bikini.

At breakfast-time we are given our food tablets, and are then allowed to have a short trip around Australia in our atomic cars.

At 8.45 the day-boys have all come in their jet-propelled helicopters, and the school begins.

This year the Intercoll. rocket race to Mars was won by Princes, by a short margin of 200 miles. This makes the sixth successive time Princes have won this event.

MY FUTURE

When I grow up, I'd like to be
A pirate on some Spanish sea.
From morn till dusk I'd rove the tide,
Until I whipped a poor man's hide.

And I would go in search of those
Who always are my bitter foes.
And I would make them walk the plank,
Then watch them till at last they sank.

When I die, I'd like to be
Upon my ship, in an unknown sea—
Fighting against odds of five to one,
Until I knew my duty was done.

JAY-WALKING

I stood on the brink of despair—
I had to go on then and there.
And so into the turmoil I rushed,
Swerving to avoid being crushed.

The enemy stormed left and right,
But I never gave up the fight:
Forward, and then a step back;
An art, but I hadn't the knack.

I was nearly to safety now,
Distracted by the terrific row;
But I heard a policeman talking,
And shouting in my ear, "Jay-walking!"

ICE SKATING

In cities like Melbourne and Sydney
They live at a furious pace:
Some spend days, others nights,
Ice skating with skill and grace.

The art once learnt is easy,
But to the beginner 'tis hard;
For to remain in an up-right position
He must continually be on his guard.

The knack being thoroughly mastered,
He goes to the thick of the fray;
And as there are so many tryers,
They all seem to get in the way.

But the time comes at last when with courage
And skill and confidence gay,
The "Fast skate" beckons him onward,
And patience has won the day.

EXAMINATIONS

The final exams, you must admit,
Require a lot of steady wit,
And only can be passed all right
If one works with all one's might.

The masters don't quite understand
That we would feel perfectly grand,
If exams were outlawed straight away
And holidays went on till May.

When the marks come in, we always try
To keep our heads, and not to fly
Into a rage 'cause we have got
Inscribed upon our paper, "Tommy Rot."

Exams are tiresome any time,
And it's very hard to make this rhyme;
So you'll excuse me, I am sure,
If I give up and write no more.

THE WANDERER

He wanders around the countryside,
Playing at every town.
He amuses the little boys and girls
With his very humorous clown.

It may be only a puppet show,
And a makeshift little stage,
But he is able to make things go
And earn a substantial wage.

He lives in a small, red caravan,
With a dog as his only friend,
And the horse that pulls the travelling home
Is as faithful as any man.

Under the tree he cooks his tea,
While the old horse eats nearby,
And as this outdoor scene takes place
The dog gives a mournful cry.

MY HISTORY NOTES

A Tragedy

The distant city clock's faint chime
 To my unwilling ear has told the time;
 And I curl more snugly in my bed
 And draw the warm sheets about my head.
 Alas, this trick is tried in vain,
 And worthless is my hope to gain
 A few more ticks of idle joy,
 Which is so much desired by a sleepy boy.
 A hand that I had not thought so near
 Takes a grasp of my shoulder, or else my ear,
 And a voice speaks up in determined strain,
 "Do I have to call you once again?"
 Or, "You lazy brat, it is now the hour,
 Just leave your roost and have your shower."
 I avoid the truth and answer back,
 "I'm sick; I'll have to see the quack!"
 But my breakfast, I know I must soon begin it,
 My shower will not take me half a minute;
 'Tis those History Notes my spirits mar:
 I will read up some facts in the moving car
 That I should have studied well last night;
 I hope I will get them off all right.

The scene is changed, and a short while after
 I greet some school friends with careless laughter.
 They chatter of football and rowing boats . . .
 Oh, well, good-bye to my History Notes!
 The college reached, the cloister's calm,
 Checks the youngster's brag to a truthful charm;
 And I hear with joy a bright youth say

'Twas only one goal he kicked yesterday.
 The Assembly bell rang for morning prayer,
 And you bet all the college lads are there.
 While the speaker's voice through the silence
 floats
 I think with dismay of my History Notes!

The scene is changed and the time has come—
 Will I soon be used as a kettle-drum?
 Or, if my fears he understands,
 He may put that stick across my hands!
 He speaks to me with suspicious brow,
 I answer him and I know not how;
 But it seemed to me that a mist of gloom
 Came to sweep like a cloud across the room.
 I think he was surprised to learn
 That Clive beat Blucher at Bannockburn;
 And that the bold pirate, Captain Cook,
 Wrote a recipe for aeroplanes in Doomsday
 Book.

The curtain's drawn, and the day steals on;
 The memories of the History class are nearly gone,
 But of one thing I'm certain, if the thought be sweet,
 There is no dust upon my trouser's seat!
 And the very next time I have work to learn,
 I'll go to it steadily, give diligence a turn;
 I'll swot History carefully, read every single word—
 I vow it by the beard of Pope John the Twenty-third!

Preparatory School Notes

This has been a very busy term—so busy, in fact, that next year the year's activities will be spread more evenly over the three terms. It is intended to hold the Athletics in the first term and the Concert in the second.

THE GOVERNOR'S VISIT

On 7th November we were honoured by a visit from Their Excellencies, Sir Willoughby and Lady Norrie. Lady Norrie was presented on arrival with a posy of lilies of the valley by Barry Jeffreson. The Governor and Lady Norrie visited each class, pausing a brief moment to see it at work. They stopped long enough in the Infant Room to allow the Aide-de-Camp to master the art of "marbling". The Headmaster granted us a half holiday on the following day at His Excellency's request.

THE CONCERT

On the 11th and 12th of October we held our Concert in the Assembly Room. As the attendance at the last Concert overtaxed the seating accommodation it was decided to hold the Concert on two nights. This arrangement proved wise, as the Assembly Room on both nights was comfortably filled. Weeks of hard work on the part of Mrs. Anderson, Mr. May, Miss Dunn and Mrs. Dennis had their reward in the general excellence of the programme. There were accidents and mistakes, but these only served to add additional enjoyment.

The first item, a group of three numbers by the junior forms' Percussion Band, conducted by diminutive conductors, was as usual warmly applauded. The next item, "Play Time," was a playlet, a fairy tale, a romp, a menagerie all rolled into one. It was admirably suited to the requirements of small boys, as it provided plenty of action and its cast was elastic enough to include a whole form. IIB handled it admirably.

On Friday night R. G. Peters played as a pianoforte solo "Military Polonaise," and on Saturday, D. G. Pope played Dussek's "Rondo in G". Both boys acquitted themselves well.

In item four, A. A. Milne's "Bad Sir Brian" was recited by IBC. The small boys enjoyed their own performance so well that they infected the audience with their enjoyment.

The junior boys next entertained with a choral selection, which included "The Camel," "Wagtail" and "The Kookaburra's Dinner," all by Edith Harray. The boys sang these three pleasingly original songs very sweetly.

Item six was a fantasy, "The Days of Romance," played by III B. It foretold what we might expect to be reality fifty years on. The acting of the whole cast, which contained a number of very sweet little girls, was very convincing, and the excellent humorous lines of the play were put over in such a way that they were appreciated by the whole audience.

II A next took the stage with A. P. Herbert's "The Round about Turn" and "A China Tragedy." In these recitations solo parts were taken by C. B. Sumner, J. C. McKenzie, R. W. Hercus and G. C. McKay.

Next came a musical interlude. We were treated to two songs by the Senior Boys' Choir and to a vocal solo by P. R. Tanner. He chose "She shall have Music," which was enthusiastically received by the audience.

III C gave us a comedy, "The Christmas Party." J. A. Renk played a long part with aplomb, and was ably supported by the whole cast.

III D followed with verse speaking, and gave us "The Portsmouth Road" and "Dad's Bath".

III A, as the piece de resistance of the evening, gave us a mystery story, "S.O.S." This contained a master spy, a disgruntled henchman, two nimble-witted Boy Scouts, a secret agent, nigh unto death, and two officious Air Raid wardens. Evans as Krunz, the enemy agent, gave a sparkling performance.

The senior boys brought the performance to a close with Handel's "Where'er You Walk" and Morley's "Now is the Month of Maying."

Our thanks are due to Mrs. Anderson, Mr. David Anderson and Mrs. Martin for the work they did behind the scenes in making up the players.

THE PREP. SPORTS

The Preparatory School Sports were held on the Back Oval on 9th November. In the morning the weather was inclement and showers threatened to wash out first the lines and then the whole programme. However, the afternoon was delightfully fine, and a large crowd of parents and friends assembled to see the events. Excellent co-operation between the parents, who acted as judges and stewards, and Mr. Potts and Mr. Dixon, the starters, kept events well up to time. The highlights of the afternoon were the excellent running of G. Marshall, who won four events, and the valiant, though ill-starred endeavours of the diminutive runners, G. Stansfield and B. Jeffreson, in the Three-legged Race. P. Clarkson, who ran a close second to Marshall in most of his starts, is to be congratulated on his persistent effort.

Mrs. M. W. Evans presented the prizes.

We would like to thank Mr. N. I. Gryst for his generosity in again presenting prizes to all the competitors in the Under 8 Handicap. The joy with which each boy received his aeroplane would have delighted Mr. Gryst's heart.

THE CRICKET

The Under 13 B Cricket Team has had a very successful season. It was unfortunate in missing two matches, one against Unley High School and one against St. Peter's. These had to be cancelled because of our Sports and St. Peter's Fathers and Sons Match. It played six matches and won them all comfortably. In the six games the School team scored 736 runs for 30 wickets, while its opponents scored 339 for 46 wickets.

Fuller is to be congratulated on heading both the batting and bowling averages, on his able captaincy of the team throughout the year and on winning the cricket cup presented annually by his father, Mr. L. O. Fuller.

Our thanks are again due to Mr. Fuller for his untiring efforts with the team. Its results show the quality of his coaching. He, much to our sorrow, will not be continuing next year, but we know that the interest he has shown during the last two years will continue, and that he will feel himself amply rewarded if the boys he has coached continue in the way they have been started.

Three House matches have been played this term. In the Firsts' game, Robertson defeated Chapple by five wickets through the able batting of Fuller (57 retired) and the forceful but more fortunate innings of Evans (24). Had he been dismissed on either of his early chances, Chapple's total of 100 might easily have been sufficient.

In the Seconds' match, Chapple, with 107, proved too strong for Robertson, who scored 55. Mann again played a captain's innings, compiling 26. He was ably helped by Cooper with 23.

The Thirds' House match did not affect the House Competition. It was played to give some of the boys who have not played in a match that experience. Chapple (9 wickets for 108) defeated Robertson (5 for 91). Goldsack (34 not out) and Standish (23 retired) were the highest scorers for Chapple, and Gibbs and Cox (26) shared the honours for Robertson. Brown, with four wickets, bowled well for Robertson.

On 7th December, the Fathers and Sons Match was played on the Back Oval. The sons batted first, and by punishing anything loose on the leg ran up a total of 232. Easton 43 retired, Barton 31, and Cornish 24 retired were the highest scorers. The fathers, in the three-quarters of an hour of play before rain stopped the game, had lost with considerable skill 8 wickets for 89 runs.

Mr. L. S. Walsh, by going out into the by-ways and hedges, and disdaining to use the ground placed at his disposal, scored 35 not out.

During the afternoon tea adjournment, Mr. Fuller was presented with an engraved silver tray by Mr. Hall as a token of the appreciation of the fathers of the boys Mr. Fuller had coached, and of the School. Myles Fuller presented his father with a framed photograph of the team, the gift of the boys.

If Lord Macaulay had witnessed the game he might have written thus—

The parents of the Prep. Team,
By the nine gods they swore,
The venerated fathers
Would stand defeat no more!
By the nine gods they swore it,
And named a trysting day;
And bade their messengers ride forth,
East and west and south and north,
To summon their array.

I was among the parents
Assembled on the field,
Though muscles ached, their hearts were strong,
Determined not to yield.
Forthwith up rose the captain,
Up rose the fathers all,
In haste they girded up their loins
And plied them to the ball.

Then out spoke doughty Fuller,
The captain of the sons,
"The School expects that you will all
Get in amongst the runs.
And how can man bat better

Than facing fearful lobs
For the ashes of his fathers
And the heart that in him throbs.

Hurl down the ball, O bowlers,
With all the speed ye may;
I with one more to help me
Will hold the foe in play.
With my straight bat each over
I'll treat most cautiously.
Now who'll defend the other end
And open up with me?"

Then out spoke David Evans,
A lusty lad was he,
"Lo, I'll be glad to smite my Dad
And go to bat with thee."
The others, as they answered,
Were entered in their turn,
For under each of sixteen shirts
A loyal heart did burn.

So Fuller faced the bowlers,
The fast men and the slow,
Till Barton with a twister,
Laid his off wicket low.
But Eaton, Barton, Cornish,
Long handle gaily plied,
Built up the score, with four on four,
For the honour of their side.

As the evening shadows lengthen
And rain clouds crowded in
The fathers started batting
With two hundred odd to win.

They snicked, they hoicked, they lofted,
With mid-iron, mashie, cleek,
But though their hearts were willing
Their defensive play was weak.

Though Walsh with fine abandon Hit lustily about,
His comrades fell around him
Till eight of them were out.
The score was only eight-nine
When rail held up the play,
Then son and dad each ran like mad,
Concluding thus the day.

TENNIS TOURNAMENT

This year Mr. J. E. Stephens, an Old Boy, who spent three years as a prisoner of war with the Japanese, presented a Tennis Championship Cup. Between thirty and forty boys entered, and many of the ties which were played off in the lunch hours and after school were keenly contested. R. R. Hill, who entered the finals by defeating R. G. Johnson in a gruelling three set match, defeated W. Johnson, the Robertson House Champion, also in three sets.

Interest has been keen in tennis this year. The court, since it has been relaid, has scarcely ever been idle. Mr. Luke has devoted quite an amount of his valuable time to starting the boys in the way they ought to go. Even the babies have not been too small to escape his notice.

PREPARATORY CRICKET TEAM — COACH, L. O. FULLER ESQ.

There was very little let-up for Mrs. Anderson and Mr. May after the concert was over. Almost immediately they began preparations for Speech Night. As a reward for their good work the singing group were taken in by Mr. May to 5AD to have their voices recorded. They were fortunate enough to have Mr. William Herbert to help them with the recording. Mr. May made arrangements for the Station to broadcast the record, and we listened to it several days later during assembly.

CHARITIES

Collections for all charities this year have amounted to about £107. Of this total about £60 have been devoted to the various Food for Britain Appeals. During the last fortnight of the term a special effort was made to raise money for the Tommy Trinder Fund. The sale of toffees and meringues, a penny museum, and a "knock-'em-over" sideshow assisted the collection, which reached the very satisfactory amount of £27. Quite a number of boys subscribed the necessary five shillings to win a signed photograph of Tommy Trinder.

DISPLAY

On Thursday, 5th December, IIB and IA, B and C held a display of handwork. There was a large attendance of parents, who spent a very pleasant afternoon watching the children at work and examining their exhibits. These included examples of weaving, paper mache, marbling, spatter painting, potato prints and felt work. Afternoon tea was served in the large dormitory which had been turned temporarily into a refectory.

VISITS

The senior Assembly had two interesting visitors this term. One was Miss Khanduala, an Indian representative to the New Education Fellowship Conference. She spoke very interestingly on education and conditions in India. The other was Rev. F. Silwood, who chose the provocative title of "Punctuation Marks" for his instructive address.

On Monday, 9th December, Mr. Mitchell provided not only the Prep. but the Senior School with a musical treat. He prevailed on Mr. William Herbert, a former scholar of his at Trinity Grammar, Melbourne, then visiting Adelaide to sing the tenor solos in the "Messiah," to come out to sing to us. The Assembly Room was filled with a very appreciative audience, who heard Mr. Herbert sing "To Celia," "Duna," "I saw Three Ships" and a solo from one of Edward German's operas, "An English Rose".

HOUSE CUP

Competition for the A. W. Welch Cup has been very keen. Chapple led at the end of the second term by nine points. This term points were even, so Chapple has scored its first win for some years, 84 points to 75.

We are very sorry that we must say good-bye to Mrs. Dennis. She came to us during the second term, but in her short sojourn with us she has endeared herself to her small boys and impressed all of us with the quality of her work. We gave her our good wishes, and we hope that we shall see her frequently to renew our acquaintance with her.

To those boys who are leaving us to go to Senior School we also give our best wishes. We hope that they will not forget us and the happy hours they spent with us.

CHRISTMAS

Christmas bells are ringing,
Children carols singing,
Christmas trees are in the halls,
Coloured papers line the walls.

Christmas night, when I'm in bed—
Presents laid around my head—
I dream about the morn to come,
When I'll play my brand new drum.

WISHES

I wish I had an aeroplane;
I wish I had a boat;
I wish I had a castle,
Surrounded by a moat.

I wish I had a motor car;
I wish I owned a bus—
If people stood upon the step
I'd make an awful fuss.

THE CLOUD

The cloud is full of show'ry rain,
That falls into the muddy lane,
Upsetting folk in noonday dreams,
Filling brooks to running streams.

Chilling the air and cooling houses;
Making wet all farmers' trousers;
Water running down stems of wheat;
The foot-paths slippery for your feet.

THE CRUSADER

The daring Crusader came out of the West
To fight the sons of the East:
To fight for the grave of the Crucified Christ,
To fight for the Christ he loved best.

The battle waxed sore, the desert sands know,
Ere the daring Crusader was struck from his horse
He was mortally wounded, in chest and in thigh,
By the sword of an Infidel foe.

MOON STRUCK

There was an old man called Falloon
 Who built an enormous balloon.
 To his friends' great surprise
 It rose to the skies
 And nearly knocked over the moon.

SPRING

I like to hear the birdies sing
 In nests among the trees,
 And see the wild flowers bloom in spring,
 And hear the buzzing bees.

THE CLOUD

I am a cloud, the largest e'er seen,
 I water the grass — Oh! ever so green.
 I water the trees — Oh! ever so tall,
 And water the buds — Oh! ever so small.

LEAVES

The moonlight shone upon me.
 The wind blowing my leaves
 Made a rustle and disturbed
 The silence in the woods.

The sunlight scorched my leaves;
 My leaves were so green,
 My boughs so mossy,
 It was a pity to be a tree
 And see the sun
 Scorch my leaves to death.

THOMAS BRIGGS

A little boy called Thomas Briggs
 Was likened unto common pigs,
 Because of a peculiar habit
 (Many other small boys have it),
 Of parking gum behind his ear.
 But he learnt his lesson, never fear.

Behind his ear, when he did grasp,
 He found his gum was stuck quite fast.
 He pulled with all his might and main
 And evidently suffered pain—
 For Tommy's ear came right away,
 And he's not forgotten to this day.

So all you little boys take heed,
 And think about the words you read.

G. J. P., III A

CLOUDS

The clouds that roam the misty sky
 Roam the world, but I don't know why.
 They all float past from day to day,
 And drop their dew-drops in the hay.
 And all the boys that play in there
 Catch the dew-drops in their hair.

LIMERICK

There was an old man in a tree,
 Who was horribly bored by a bee.
 When he said, "Does it buzz,"
 They replied, "Yes, it does,"
 To that unhappy old man in a tree.

The Objects of the Association are: To keep Old Boys, wherever they may be, in touch with one another and with the boys at the School; also to foster and maintain their interest in the School.

"Old Boys' Week" is observed annually towards the end of July, during which a dinner and other social functions as well as sports contests are held. Also social gatherings are held whenever any occasion arises that makes them desirable.

"The P.A.C. Chronicle," of which a large part is devoted to matters of special interest to Old Boys, is forwarded to each member of the Association.

The subscription is six shillings per annum. It is suggested that Country Members should remit sufficient to cover four years' subscription or become Life Members by payment of £5 5s. Any Old Boy wishing to become a member can do so by forwarding his name and address to the Head Master, or to any member of the Staff, or to the Secretaries.

The Association has donated the following Scholarships to the School:

H. W. A. Miller (Old Collegians') Scholarship.

J. A. Hartley Scholarship.

Fredk. Chapple Scholarship.

W. R. Bayly Scholarship.

A. G. Collison Scholarship.

Editorial

Although those things which we know, and respect as principles, and upon which the maintenance of a well-balanced society depends, appear to some extent at least absent in this Post War World, sane outlook sees them as the keystone in the arch of human integrity; or of an import so great as to be the very foundation upon which the superstructure of a democratic community rests.

But principles cannot be plucked like fruit—they are that which is infused into the individual; they are absorbed in his tender years in their simplest form, and in the home and in school-day life nurtured, and further developed until they form the very basis of true citizenship; they are the guide rails which direct for good, or ill, the force of human endeavour.

But are not principles evolved? Are they not swaddled in the shawl of Tradition? and are not both tradition and principle so interwoven as to be almost one? Have not those things for which we stand, tried and proved in the light of honourable conduct, and defined as principles, become traditional?

What manner of principles are those which are so signally manifested in the traditions of those who have cried, "Fac Fortia et patere"?—what nobler principles can be said to have been taught to those men than those which have their basis in the following: To elevate the morals of our people; to hold up the law as a sacred thing, which likened to the Ark of God cannot be touched by irreverent hands; to frown on every attempt to displace its supremacy; and to unite our people in all that makes the home pure and honourable, as well as give our energies to the material advancement of our country.

Such ideals appear wide—they appear all embracing, and yet, when we pause to translate from the Latin "Fac fortia et patere," how apparent it is that the motto to which we so proudly subscribe embraces them all.

The legacy of Tradition from the School to its sons, of a right demands a service—an adherence to the principles by which and upon which that very tradition endures. It is in the preservation of these principles, these ideals that every Old Boy may, in part, repay his indebtedness to the "Best School of All."

The maintenance of such principles, the upholding of tradition lies in such service, be it manifestly shown or unobtrusively rendered. And more than this, their maintenance depends upon continued observance of them. In these years of Peace it must not be forgotten how essential is our adherence to our ideals; we must not forget the precedent established during those years of war, out of the clouds of which we have just emerged; we must not forget the sacrifice made by those whose principles were put to the full test. Let us remember at the "Going down of the Sun, and in the Morning," those sons of the School who unswervingly upheld the ideals and traditions of Prince Alfred, and who, in many cases, in adding lustre to the traditions of their Country and their School, made the Supreme Sacrifice.

Those ideals for which they fought, those things for which they fell, are precious—they will be taught the generations yet to follow, and in what more fitting halls than those which will rise as Memorial Buildings to be erected at the school of their youth, by which the memory of those sons who served, and who fell, will be perpetuated; by which we shall forever be reminded to cry, "Fac fortia et patere."

For King and Country

"At the going down of the sun, and in the morning, we will remember them."

FLYING OFFICER ALAN B. ROSS

SQUADRON-LEADER COLIN LESLIE GILBERT

Squadron-Leader Gilbert, aged 24 years, who was previously reported missing, is now presumed to have lost his life whilst on Active Service with the R.A.F. during bombing operations over Germany early in 1942. He was the son of Mrs. and the late Mr. L. Gilbert, of Prospect. He gained his wings at Point Cook, having joined the R.A.A.F. in 1936 and proceeded to England in 1937. He was attached to the R.A.F. in 1938, and was in the crew of the first bombers to fly over and bomb Norway and Germany. He attained the rank of Squadron-Leader at the age of 21. Whilst at College he was Dux of the School in 1936, and topped the list at Point Cook in 1937. He had a splendid athletic record, and was in the Head-of-the-River crews in 1934, 1935 and 1936. He was a member of the College Rifle Team that won the coveted Earl Roberts trophy, and also was Champion Junior Amateur Cyclist of S.A. He leaves a widow and one son, who are at present residing at Prospect. He attended the School 1933-1936 (School Register No. 7046), and was a Life Member, No. 1083, of this Association.

SGT. ROBERT HOWELLS DALL

Sgt. Robert Howells Dall, aged 20 years, only child of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Dall of 290 Goodwood Road, Clarence Park, who was previously reported missing as a result of air operations with the R.A.A.F. on 25th August, 1942, is now presumed to have lost his life on that date. As a member of No. 6 Squadron he was in a Hudson Aircraft which failed to return to its base at Moresby from a reconnaissance flight in the vicinity of Keita and Buka in the Solomon Islands. He enlisted in December, 1940, and did his initial training at Victor Harbour, and was then posted to Ballarat, Geraldton and Richmond. He attended the School 1934 to 1936 (School Register No. 7101).

FLYING OFFICER ALAN B. ROSS

Advice has now been received of the death of Flying Officer Alan Barton Ross, aged 23 years, of 100 Squadron, R.A.A.F., which for official purposes has been presumed to have occurred on 25th February, 1943, failing his return from air operations to his base, Milne Bay, in New Guinea.

F./O. Ross joined the R.A.A.F. in June, 1941, and trained at Victor Harbour, Ballarat and Sale, at which place he gained his Commission. After further services at Bairnsdale and Nowrah, he left Australia early in January, 1943.

He was educated at the College, leaving there in 1934 to join the staff of the Queensland Insurance Coy. He was keen on sport, more particularly in yachting and lacrosse; he was single and lived with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ross at 111 Wattle Street, Fullarton. He was a member of this Association (School Reg. No. 6937).

Our President

Dr. Mervyn W. Evans, our new President, has been actively associated with the School for over 30 years. He attended the School 1916 to 1926, and was elected to the Association Committee in 1930.

After passing through the Preparatory School he ultimately became Dux of the School, its Head Prefect, and Captain of Cricket, Athletic and Football Teams, and in 1924 made a century in the Intercollegiate Match. On the results of the Leaving Honours Examination he was awarded a bursary, and he continued his studies at the University, where he topped every year of his course graduating as a Bachelor of Dental Surgery in 1929. By thesis and examination he obtained the Degree of Doctor of Dental Science in 1943. He represented the University in Football, Cricket and Athletics and was awarded his "Blue" for football, and was also awarded an "all Australian" blue. He played Interstate Amateur Football for many years, and whilst playing for the Old Collegians' Team he twice won the Hone Medal for the fairest and best player in the League, and was runner-up on two other occasions. He coached the University Interstate Amateur footballers for four seasons, and in 1946 the Old Scholars' Team on the occasion of its first premiership win. He played "A" grade cricket for University and Sturt, and later joined the Turf Association to play with the Old Scholars' side, which he has captained for the past ten seasons. He won the fielding trophy for five consecutive years. He recently retired from the game, having made over 10,000 runs, an average of 43, including 31 centuries. For many years he has been an Honorary at the Dental Hospital and other institutions, and an instructor and demonstrator in his faculty at the University. He was recently awarded a grant for Research by the National Medical Council of Australia. He is President of the Dental Students' Society and served as a Councillor of the S.A. Dental Association. He has been actively associated with Apex Club since its inception, holding many executive positions, including that of President. Early in the war he volunteered for service, but was rejected. He is a Life Member of this Association and has always shown keen interest in all matters connected with the School and the Association.

Prince Alfred College War Memorial

Although only a few weeks have elapsed since an appeal was made for the above object, as fully described in the last issue of the "Chronicle" (September, 1946), the response has been most gratifying, and amounts totalling nearly £6,000 have been subscribed. With this encouraging start, the committee controlling the fund anticipate being able to achieve the desired object of £25,000, which will enable them to provide a suitable memorial in memory of those who served and, more especially those sons of the School who made the Supreme Sacrifice.

Many boys entered the Services direct from schoolrooms, and there is no more suitable place for a permanent memorial to those who fell than at the School, where they had spent so many happy years.

Contributions to the Fund may be forwarded to Mr. E. M. Forbes, Epworth Building, Pirie Street, Adelaide, or to Mr. W. Douglas Verco, 178 North Terrace, Adelaide, or to the Association Secretaries.

He designed and supervised military buildings and other works and won the highest testimonials for his work. He has now been appointed to a responsible position in the Federal Works Department, which proposes to spend several millions in the near future on housing, public works and aerodromes.

We congratulate Brian Manuel, son of Howard Manuel, who recently broke the Australian Schoolboy Weight Putt Record at the Associated Grammar School Sports. His shot putt was 49 ft. 5 in. He attended the Preparatory School 1935-1938 before proceeding to Melbourne.

We congratulate Dr. E. A. H. Russell upon being appointed Commissioner for South Australia of the St. John Ambulance Brigade (Overseas).

Eric E. Story has just left for Ascension Island, South Atlantic Ocean, to resume duties with Cable & Wireless Ltd.

The Late Dr. C. T. Madigan

Dr. Cecil Thomas Madigan, scientist, explorer and lecturer in Geology at the University of Adelaide, died on the 14th January, 1947, in the Daws Road Military Hospital.

Dr. Madigan, who was 57, left a widow, three sons (Messrs. D. C., R. T. and M. R. Madigan), and two daughters (Misses N. W. and R. W. Madigan).

Dr. Madigan was a member of the Mawson Antarctic Expedition in 1911-14.

His great interest in the centre of Australia took him there on many expeditions. Best known of these was his crossing, with a party of scientists, of the Simpson Desert in 1939.

He was a brilliant scholar, of commanding appearance and great charm of manner, and his extensive travels and wide interest in sport and community activities gave him many friends. He was born at Renmark on 15th October, 1881. He attended the School in 1906 (School Register No. 40408), and then attended Adelaide and Oxford Universities.

Dr. Madigan was the Rhodes Scholar for South Australia in 1910, and took his M.A. degree in 1919. In 1922 he was appointed lecturer in Geology at the University of Adelaide.

In 1932 he gained the B.E. degree. Two years later Oxford University awarded him the D.Sc. degree for his original work in Geology, Geography and Meteorology.

His most important Geological work was done in Central Australia, to which he made six excursions—five as leader.

The objectives of the Legacy Club found in him an ardent supporter, and he was elected President in 1935.

Believing that European countries were leaving Australia behind, physically, he played an important part in the activities of the National Co-ordinating Council for Physical Fitness, on which he was appointed South Australian representative in 1939.

The Boy Scout movement was another of Dr. Madigan's many interests, and in 1934 he was appointed Chief Commissioner in this State.

In the first World War he was a Captain in the Royal Engineers and with a rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, he was called up early in World War II, his first duty being to found the Australian schools of military engineering, in which 300 young officers of the A.I.F. were trained.

Subsequently he entered the headquarters of the New South Wales Lines of Communication Area, where his main task was to report on the water resources of the State. He was a Life Member (No. 937) of this Association.

Old Collegians Abroad

We were pleased to receive the following correspondence recently:

From Mr. E. H. Stephens, O.B.E. (Box 10, Maseru, Basutoland, South Africa), who has recently been spending a holiday at Port St. Johns. It is 32 years since he visited Adelaide.

From Dr. S. M. Corry (118 Ryelands St., Hereford, England), expressing appreciation for a gift parcel, which recalls old associations.

Also from Mr. Franklin White (England) and Mr. A. Menzies Sharpe (Ponsbourne Manor, Hertford, England), who describes the difficulties of many "bottlenecks" in British industry at the present time.

From Mr. J. H. Watts (93 Gresham Street, London, EC2, England), who was retiring from the service of The British Metal Corporation Ltd. in December after 26 years' service. It is possible that he may return to Adelaide early in 1947.

Also from Mr. F. A. Gibbs (c/o No. 8 Cornborough Avenue, York, England), acknowledging the gift parcel and forwarding a donation to the Education Fund, and also describing the difficulties of a very meagre food ration.

Annual Meeting

The Sixty-eighth Annual General Meeting was held at the College on Thursday, 28th November, 1946. There was a very satisfactory attendance of members.

Mr. Geoffrey K. Ryder, President, occupied the chair until the election of officers, when Dr. M. W. Evans, the newly-elected President, took office. The Annual Report and Statement of Accounts were presented and adopted, the principal features being, the membership of 2,549, which constitutes a record, and the very satisfactory financial statements showing accumulated funds of over £10,000; also the Education Trust Fund which now totals approximately £2,200.

In accordance with the Rules, all the officers and seven committeemen retired. Dr. M. W. Evans was elected President, and Messrs. J. F. W. Dunn, G. T. Clarke and G. K. Ryder as Vice-Presidents. Several nominations were received for the General Committee, and the following were elected: Messrs. F. E. Piper, A. V. King, C. J. Glover, J. Lavis, R. W. Pearson, R. W. M. Johnson and J. B. Craven.

Owing to being elected a Vice-President, Mr.

G. T. Clarke did not seek re-election as Hon. Treasurer, and Mr. N. S. Angel was unanimously appointed. The Joint Secretaries, Messrs. L. B. and Harold Shuttleworth were re-elected, and the Hon. Auditors, Messrs. C. W. L. Muecke and R. F. Middleton, were also re-elected.

Votes of appreciation were recorded to the retiring President (Mr. Geoffrey K. Ryder), the retiring Committeemen (Messrs. H. N. Shepley, W. H. James, R. S. Cooper), and to Mr. G. T. Clarke, the retiring Treasurer, Messrs. C. W. L. Muecke and R. F. Middleton, and to Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Ward for their help and assistance during the year, and especially during Old Boys' Week. After concluding the business, the Rev. N. Claridge Goss gave an address on "The Serious and the Humorous in a Clergyman's Life." The address of Mr. Goss was most instructive and entertaining. In his inimitable manner, Mr. Goss described many incidents and events which occurred during the course of his work in Australia.

An adjournment was then made to the Dining Hall for refreshments.

Retiring and New Committeemen

Mr. H. N. Shepley has retired from the Committee after serving the Association for 12 years. In 1943 he was elected President. He has always been a very active and loyal supporter of the School and Association, and was a very active member of the Old Collegians' Cricket Club.

Mr. W. H. James, who has retired owing to business reasons, has been a very active and useful member of the Committee for eight years, and we regret to lose his service.

We also regret to lose the services of Mr. R. S. Cooper, who has retired after a brief period of service on the Committee.

A vote of appreciation for their work was recorded at the Annual Meeting.

Mr. R. W. M. Johnson, who was newly elected to the Committee, has two sons at the School at present. He is keenly interested in Municipal work, and is a Councillor of the Campbelltown District Council and President of Campbelltown Progress Association. He is a member of various committees associated with the Congregational Union and a Governor of Parkin College.

Mr. John B. Craven, who was also newly elected to the committee, spent several years in England just prior to the war. He joined the R.A.A.F. in 1940 and obtained rank of Flight Lieutenant in 1942, and was posted to Air Sea Rescue Squadron in early 1945. He has now returned to his former employment as a Director of J. Craven & Co. Ltd.

Mr. N. S. Angel, who has been elected Hon. Treasurer, attended the School 1920 to 1924, and obtained his Diploma of Commerce at the Adelaide University in 1930. He joined the A.I.F., serving in Darwin and the Islands with the 23rd Infantry Battalion and was in action at Bougainville when hostilities ceased. He joined the staff of the Executor Trustee & Agency Co. Ltd. on leaving school, and now holds the position of Trust Officer.

Dr. A. R. Southwood, C.M.G.

We offer our heartiest congratulations to Dr. A. R. Southwood, C.M.G., upon the honour recently conferred upon him.

Dr. Albert Ray Southwood has been awarded a C.M.G. for excellent work in connection with hospital and health organisation. He has been chairman of the Central Board of Health for many years, but has combined with that service as honorary physician at the Royal Adelaide Hospital, chairman of the State Advisory Committee on Food and Drugs, member of the National Health and Medical Research Council, president of the medical science section at the Science Congress in Auckland in 1937, and lecturer in public health and preventive medicine.

During the recent war, Dr. Southwood was Deputy-Director of Medical Services in South Australia with the rank of Colonel.

EDUCATION FUND

This fund is being raised for the purpose of educating the children (boys and girls) of Old Boys who lost their lives on Active Service. The response to this worthy object is very gratifying to your committee, and over £2,100 has now been subscribed, of which £1,600 has been invested in the Victory Loans.

Messrs. C. J. Glover, N. S. Angel and L. B. Shuttleworth have been appointed Trustees to administer this fund, under direction of the Association Committee. Enquiries are now being made to ascertain those who are entitled to the benefits of the fund. Members are requested to notify the Secretaries should they learn of any child desiring educational benefits.

MONTHLY LUNCHEONS

The Monthly Luncheons which are held on the Second Thursday of every month at the "Apollo" Rooms (Myers), Rundle Street, are being well attended.

Professor L. A. Mander, an Old Boy who has been in the U.S.A. for a number of years, spoke to us in October, his subject being "Twenty Years' Residence in America." The Professor, who occupies the Chair of Political Science at the University of Washington, Seattle, treated us with a most interesting and instructive address on American life in general, and more particularly in regard to the educational development of schools and universities.

In November Mr. Eric Story, who has been on duty in Shanghai with Cable and Wireless Ltd., spoke of his experiences in Eritrea, Shanghai and Cocos Island. The scope of his talk covered the war years, and the speaker's references to the many events which took place in those years, and with which he and his Company were associated, proved most interesting.

At the December Luncheon Mr. John Horner, of the Elder Conservatorium was our Guest speaker, and dealt with this subject, "Do Governments Govern?" a subject which he treated broadly, mixed with a good deal of clever humour.

No Luncheon was held in January, as many members are on vacation extending into the New Year. The February Luncheon will be held at the usual time and place.

COMMITTEE VISITS SCHOOL

At the invitation of the Headmaster, Mr. J. F. Ward, the Association Committee paid its annual visit to the School, attending the School Assembly on Thursday, 21st November, so as to enable the whole of the Senior School to be present. The President (Mr. Geoffrey K. Ryder) fully explained the activities of the Association and, in addressing those boys about to leave, urged them to maintain contact with the School and their former school mates by immediately joining the Association. Mr. Ryder also reminded the scholars of the importance of Old Boys Week, with its sporting and social functions, which it is hoped will be fully restored during the coming year and in which the School would co-operate and play its part.

SUCCESSSES OF OLD BOYS

As the University Commemoration will not be held until March next, the list of successes of Old Boys is held over until the next issue of the "Chronicle" in June, 1947.

In order that the list may be as complete as possible, Old Scholars are requested to forward to the Association Secretaries full particulars of their successes at the University, School of Mines and elsewhere.

ANNUAL SUBSCRIPTIONS

Subscriptions for the year ending 30th September, 1947, are now due, and members are requested to remit promptly to facilitate the work of the Association.

As the amount of Annual Subscription, 6/-, is so small, it is suggested that members forward two, three or four years' subscriptions thereby saving postage and exchange. The prepayments of subscriptions will also save the Association expense of postage, etc.

The work of the Association, on account of enlistments, war records, etc., has increased considerably, and your co-operation by prompt payment of subscriptions is requested.

Country Reunions

EYRE PENINSULA BRANCH

The first post-war Country Reunion was held at the Pier Hotel, Port Lincoln, on Saturday, 12th October, 1946. Mr. C. R. Doudy occupied the chair and there was a very satisfactory attendance of Old Boys from near and far districts.

The toast of "Our Alma Mater" was proposed by Dr. B. W. Wibberley (Tumby Bay), and supported by Mr. C. R. Doudy. The Headmaster, Mr. J. F. Ward, in reply, thanked the proposers, and later outlined the full proposals in connection with the P.A.C. War Memorial Fund.

Dr. A. J. Clarkson proposed the "Old Collegians' Association" in serious and humorous vein. Mr. Geoff. Ryder (President) replied, giving a resume of the Association's work during the war years, which was supported by Mr. L. B. Shuttleworth (Joint Secretary).

The proceedings were interspersed with several musical items and also community singing.

The local Committee was Dr. A. J. Clarkson and Mr. K. E. Jacobs, who are to be congratulated on the success of the evening and for the arrangement and entertaining of the City visitors.

The School was represented by the Headmaster, whilst Messrs. G. K. Ryder, R. W. Pearson, H. N. Shepley, D. A. Clarkson and L. B. Shuttleworth attended on behalf of the Association.

The Association Committee will be pleased to assist in organising Country Reunions. Will local committees kindly suggest tentative dates and communicate with the Association Secretaries.

OLD COLLEGIANS' FOOTBALL CLUB

The Old Collegians' Football Club celebrated its 21st year by winning the Premiership, Grade A2, in 1946. The Committee is looking forward with confidence to the coming season, and hopes to field two full teams. Last season the "B" team carried on under difficulties of shortage of players.

The club will shortly be holding its preliminary meeting, and all intending players are asked to communicate with the Secretary, Mr. Ross Johnston, c/o A.M.P. Society, King William Street, Adelaide, as early as possible.

OLD COLLEGIANS' RUGBY CLUB

The Old Collegians' Rugby Club suffered from a shortage of players last season, but now that most service men have been discharged it is hoped to be able to field a team worthy of the Old Boys. Intending members should communicate with Mr. J. B. Heinemann, 71 First Avenue, St. Peter's (or telephone C. 5228).

OLD SCHOLARS' BOWLS

For the convenience of Country Members who may be visiting Adelaide for the International Cricket, the Bowls Match against St. Peter's Old Collegians has been arranged for Wednesday, 5th February, at South Park Bowling Green.

OLD SCHOLARS' TENNIS

The Tennis Match against St. Peter's Old Collegians will be played, as usual, in March. Old Boys who desire to play are asked to communicate as early as possible with this Association's Secretaries.

New Members

The enrolment of new members still continues very satisfactorily, but your Committee wants every eligible Old Boy to join now and give the Association added strength.

If you know of an Old Boy who is not a member, send his name and address to the Secretaries; or, better still, bring him along personally to join up.

OBITUARY

Mr. Alexander Livingstone Nairn, of Murwillumbah, N.S.W., who died at Brisbane recently, was born at Kapunda in 1879. He attended Prince Alfred College and had a brilliant scholastic career, winning a Government bursary, the John Colton and Longbotham Scholarships and the College University Scholarship. At the University he completed his B.A. course and won the John Howard Scholarship. Subsequently he was appointed mathematical master at the Guildford (W.A.) Grammar School, Armidale (N.S.W.) Grammar School; Christ's College, Christchurch, N.Z.; and St. Stephen's College, Hongkong. There he joined the staff of Adml. Li at Canton and was associated with him during the Boxer rising, the whole staff escaping at midnight with the aid of a British gun-boat. A year or so later he began an adventurous trek from Canton into the mountainous, then unknown, country bordering on Tibet, mostly on foot, mule, and occasionally small boat, then on return via the Yangtse-Kiang River to Shanghai, on the eastern coast—altogether a distance of about 2,000 miles, over a period of about five months. For this Lord Forrest obtained his election as a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. In later years Mr. Nairn was associated with the New South Wales Education Department as headmaster at Maitland and Newcastle, also Assistant Director of Education, retiring as superintendent of the Murwillumbah High School. On his return to South Australia from China he obtained his M.A. degree. His mathematical knowledge was extensively used for the calculations of the Einstein theory. He married Miss Eva Hill, of Inchiquin, Clare, and has left a daughter.

VICTORIA

Mr. A. N. Dawkins, c/o Electricity Supply Department, Town Hall, Melbourne, is Branch Secretary. Phone No. JM 1511. His private address is No. 110, Elizabeth Street, Kooyong, S.E.4.

OBITUARY

Dr. B. T. Zwar, a distinguished physician and surgeon, who gave nearly 50 years' service to the community, died on 16th January, 1946, at his home in Hamilton Road, Malvern. He was 70. He attended the School 1891-1894 (School Reg. No. 2336).

His association with public hospitals began in 1900, when he was appointed senior resident medical officer of the Royal Melbourne Hospital. He was also associated with Austin and St. Vincent's Hospitals early in the century. In World War I he joined the Australian Army Medical Corps and saw action at Gallipoli.

After serving on the honorary staff of the Royal Melbourne Hospital for 24 years, he was appointed to the committee of management in 1935, and became President in 1937. He was a member of the University Council and was Deputy Chancellor for two years. He was one of the founders of the Australasian College of Surgeons, the anti-cancer council and the medical advisory committee of the Repatriation Department. He was created Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George in 1941.
