Introducing the Captains of Boarding

Prince Alfred College is proud to introduce its 2022 Boarding Captains and present their perspectives on leadership, life in the Boarding community, and what they hope to achieve this year as students and leaders.

AEDEN BOLWELL

Kingscote, SA

Captain of Boarding

As Boarding Prefects, we are tasked with ensuring that the needs of the boarding community are met. To hold the position is equally as much of a job and responsibility as it is a privilege and a reward for maintaining high standards. This is what we were told when we began the selection process, and I can say it certainly holds true. A benefit of prefectship is the satisfaction of collaborating with staff and student leaders as equals, whilst working towards the same goals.

Personally, I pride myself on striving for academic excellence, whilst maintaining sporting commitments to fit the well-rounded profile of the Princes Man. I make it my goal to try and always remain respectful of staff and colleagues and grateful of the efforts made by those around me, which is something I wish to inspire in others.

I am keen to pursue building upon our relationships with boarders at other Adelaide schools, especially our sister school, Seymour. Next year I hope to have left the boarding community in a better place with students realising the opportunities available for them to pursue their ambitions.

ANGUS HAWKINS

Minimay, VIC

Vice-Captain of Boarding

Being elected Vice-Captain of Boarding is a huge privilege. It has allowed me to build on the strong 153-year legacy of the Boarding House.

With the start of a new year, we have recently welcomed a large and diverse group of new boarders from regional SA, interstate and overseas. For some boarders this transition of living away from home can be tough; however, it will also mark the beginning of new lifelong friendships.

This year the Boarding Prefects are planning initiatives and events including the annual Boarders' Herald newspaper and Boarders' Week festivities. We are also increasing our service and fundraising commitments including Relay for Life, the Royal Flying Doctor Service and the Salvation Army.

Come next year, I know I will be well prepared to tackle a career in agriculture due to the well-rounded education that PAC has provided me.

JUSTIN CHEUNG

Hong Kong

Vice-Captain of Boarding

I started in 2018 as an international boarder. After all these years being able to lead the Boarding House is a huge honour and responsibility that I am prepared to take up and do my best.

As the Boarding Vice-Captain, I plan to integrate the different cultures within the boarding community to make it a more culturally rich place for all boarders to experience. As an international student, it can be hard to connect with the local boys at first. This may be due to factors such as cultural and language barriers. However, I believe that I can unite borders from all backgrounds and ethnicities to make the boarding house a more diverse and open place for people to learn from each other.

I hope to do this by involving more boarders in boarding activities and highlighting the importance of different cultures during boarder's week.
