Cricket this weekend

The tragic passing of Australian cricketer Phillip Hughes has had a profound impact on many levels of society both in Australia and abroad.

Various sporting bodies, including the SACA, have chosen to cancel this weekend’s games in honour of Hughes’ life and legacy.
We understand the SACA’s decision given Hughes was a player in this competition and had many connections at that level.

After deliberate discussions we have decided to play our scheduled games this weekend.

First and foremost, we believe that playing is a terrific way to honour his life. We feel that the joy and camaraderie of playing was visible in the way Phillip Hughes played the game and that his love of the game can be seen in every boy who plays for Princes.

In order for us to pay our respects, all boys who play on the weekend, will be invited to wear a black armband. Those boys who represent the College at Senior level (Year 10 and above) will also, at the discretion of both teams coaches, undertake a minute silence at the start of the game.

We share this information so that you can have clear understanding behind our rationale to play and so that you might choose to discuss with your sons.
